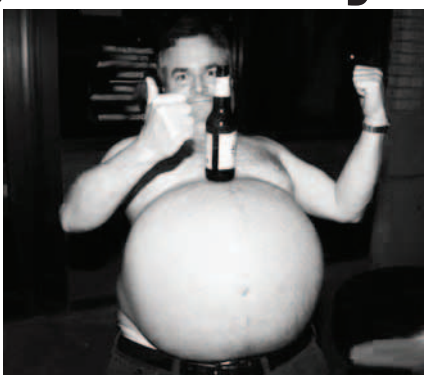
New study reveals shocking truths about Hua Hin foreigners' lifestyles

HUA HIN, THAILAND

Over the last few weeks, unknown to the expat population, a secret survey has been carried out on the lifestyles and health implications for expats living in the area. AWOL obtained a copy and we can now exclusively reveal the stunning findings;

- An estimated 60% are alcoholics or borderline alcoholics;
- Drinking alcohol is a daily activity for 90%;
- 80% have minimal or no exercise every week;
- The average expat spends 5 hours a day sitting at their computer;
- 50% who play golf only walk to the cart and the bar;
- The average age of expats is 56.7 years old, although this is 10 years younger than the last such study in 1999;



A typical Hua Hin expat?

On the plus side, most expats eat reasonably healthily, with most opting for the cheeseburger rather than the Whopper or Big Mac, and a higher proportion than average take regular 'stress relieving' massages.

The study was commissioned by an insurance company to assess whether premiums for expats should be changed, and doctors advising the company are convinced that the dangerous combinations outlined are a severe risk.

A self proclaimed expat spokesman, Mr Marvin Hank (pictured left), rubbished the study, stating 'its not worth the paper its written on' before ringing the bell and falling on the floor.

The study is due to be published online soon at www.youvebeenspoofed.com.

Former Hua Hin stalwart succumbs to illness

■ BANG SAPHAN, THAILAND

Regular readers will remember our front page story from January when local expats in Hua Hin and Bang Saphan rallied round the stricken Englishman Chris Brown (pictured right) as he lay in a local hospital struggling for life; it is now our sad duty to inform everyone that Chris finally lost his battle against his various ailments last Friday, 30th October at 8.20pm.

Twenty days earlier Chris had collapsed at home and was taken by his wife Oi to Surat Thani hospital, closer to where her family live, as the Bang Saphan hospital could not treat him apparently. After extended treatment at that hospital, on the 26th October Chris was brought back to Bang Saphan by his friend Ben from Germany, only to discover that his house had been burgled and his dogs brutally slain. The electricity and water was also off as the bills had not been paid while he was in hospital, so Chris was taken to other accommodation by Ben. While staying at this accommodation, Chris had another relapse and collapsed, and was rushed to Bang Saphan hospital for emergency treatment and a blood transfusion. Among his many health problems he was diagnosed as having a liver disease and the prognosis was not good. After being stabilised he was then moved to the hospital in Prachuap Kiri Khan, where two different doctors examined him and he was put on a life support machine to give him the best chance of surviving, although the doctors said that he only had a twenty to thirty percent chance of making it through the next few days. Sadly these odds were too much for his weakened body and a decision was made on the Friday evening to switch the life support machine off.

In his time in Hua Hin from around 2003, Chris had opened the All Bar Won bar which was later renamed Sugar Cane and is still open now, next door to JWs, after being taken over when Chris moved to Bang Saphan. Chris was heavily involved in the Hua Hin Pool League, and was almost solely responsible for the huge increase in participating teams every Wednesday night. While the pool scene in Hua Hin has now fragmented into a variety of different leagues held on a number of nights, Chris helped establish pool as a main feature of the social scene here, and this commitment was one of the reasons that his plight in January was so quickly and generously responded to. He was also a handy pool player himself and great company. Aside from what Chris did in practical terms, he was a hugely knowledgeable man, able to converse with almost anybody on any topic in both an informative and humorous manner, and his online persona 'Guess' will be sorely missed on Hua Hin After Dark as well; there are tribute threads running on there with those who knew him sharing fond memories and saying goodbye, and those who only knew him through his posts saying that they felt as if they knew him. The team at AWOL did know him and we would like to join with the many others in expressing our sadness and condolences to his family and friends, as well as to be thankful that we met and were friends with such a decent, interesting and honest man. Rest In Peace Chris.

Notes from the British Consular Correspondent

The British Embassy appointed Steve Ketteringham their Consul Correspondent for the Hua Hin district earlier this year. He is the liaison between the Police, Tourist Police, Immigration and Hospitals with the British Embassy. He is available to give advice on British Consular assistance in respect of arrest, accidents, hospitalisation, death and loss/theft of passports to all British Citizens in Hua Hin.
He cannot assist with the production of notarised letters re pensions etc (this has to be done in Bangkok) or with UK visas. Although the visa issuing office is co located at the embassy it is the responsility of the UK Home Office and not the FCO and therefore he has no sway one way or the other as to whether a visa is issued. He will however assist with completing the visa application form if required.
If you are a British Citizen it is recommended that you register your name and address with the FCO, their website is https://locate.fco.gov.uk
Steve can be contacted by phone on 086 7933461 or by e mail steve@ketteringham.com

Hua Hin's Hot Topics from HHAD

We are sad to announce the loss of a good friend and long-time forum member this week. Chris Brown passed away in the evening of Friday October 30 in a hospital in Prachuab following long term illnesses. Chris, known as 'Guess' on the boards, befriended many Hua Hin expats during his time here running the Sugar Cane bar, many would visit the bar just to have a chat with the man that has been referred to as a 'font of knowledge'. He moved to Bangsaphan last year to settle down a little following persistent illness but remained active on the forum where he became known for his dry sense of humour. Chris will be missed by many, rest in peace friend.

The weather seems to have taken a turn this week as cooler winds came in from the ocean urging those hardened long-term expats to dig out their sweaters. This usually marks the start of the dry season although we have had very little rain this year so something still maybe around the corner. November also marks the start of the high season however tourist numbers are still slow compared to previous years. This hasn't stopped Hua Hin's hotels and golf courses hiking up their prices though despite the obvious lack of patrons this year.

A trip to the local shooting range produced a good report and some photos from one member, there are a couple around but the most popular range can be found along soi 6. There are a number of activities in and around Hua Hin that rarely see the action because they are not promoted, marketed or publicised. In addition to shooting ranges there are paintball parks, ATV courses, gyms, sports centers, and a number of golf ranges.

Loy Krathong, which was celebrated on Monday, had its usual discussion and aside from the beach there is no real good place in Hua Hin to celebrate this. Khao Tao and Pranburi seem to be the places to go and with large lakes and rivers they are very popular spots for the raft floating festival. The annual event is held on the first full moon of the twelfth month of the Thai lunar calendar (which is November for us), its origins are Hindu however Thailand's Buddhist populations celebrate it to venerate Buddha with light and release their grudges and anger and start anew.

Finally a mini-van accident in Hua Hin also made the news, details were sketchy but we do know that there were fatalities. Our thoughts go out to those families and friends that have lost loved ones.

For all of these hot topics and plenty more get online at www.huahinafterdark.com/forum/ - Hua Hin's only active web community.

Driver: I did not see six foot tall orange rabbit

A driver involved in a hit-and-run incident told a court that he did not see a six-foot tall woman wearing a bright orange rabbit costume riding a pedicab before he ran into her.

34-year-old Edward Cespedes-Rodriguez was convicted of hit-and-run driving in Portland, Oregon's Multnomah County Circuit Court, but was cleared of recklessly endangering another person - after he claimed that he didn't spot the pedicab-riding six-foot-tall orange rabbit because he was fumbling with his mobile phone.

The rabbit in question, pedicab rider Kate Altermatt, told The Oregonian newspaper that she was disappointed by that part of the verdict, given that her pedicab was clearly visible, being equipped with reflectors and a blinking red light. And the fact that she was dressed as an orange bunny.

Altermatt says she found it difficult to get local police to take her initial complaint seriously, possibly because she was still wearing the rabbit suit.

She claims that she smelled alcohol on Cespedes-Rodriguez breath when she confronted him after being hit at around 2am on April 12 this year. However, police were unable to track Cespedes-Rodriguez down in time to administer an alcohol test.

For his part, Cespedes-Rodriguez claimed that he had to flee the scene of the accident as he feared for his safety, claiming that another pedicab driver had smashed his windscreen after the car had hit Altermatt. The judge agreed that the damage to his car suggested it had been deliberately struck by someone.

UN security in finger lickin' fiasco

An audacious actor dressed like Kentucky Fried Chicken founder Colonel Sanders sneaked into United Nations headquarters and shook hands with a senior official before finally being ejected, according to reports.

The Colonel impersonator, dressed in his trademark white suit and black bow tie and named by KFC as Robert Thompson, evaded tight security at the midtown complex and had his photo taken while shaking hands with Ali Treki, president of the UN General Assembly. An investigation has been launched into the incident, which was part of a KFC stunt to promote the fast food chain's new grilled chicken line, a UN spokeswoman said Tuesday.

KFC has been "lobbying" for Grilled Nation to be accepted as a member state, even writing letters to UN Secretary General Ban Ki-moon on behalf of the fictional chicken-loving republic.

English corner

Have you ever wondered where a certain phrase comes from, or what it really means?
Every week we will expand your knowledge of English and its etymology with a different word or saying. This week it is...

Caught red-handed

To be caught in the act of committing a misdemeanour, with the evidence there for all to see.

The Red Hand has long been a heraldic and cultural symbol of the northern Irish province of Ulster. One of the many myths as to its origin is the tale of how, in a boat race in which the first to touch the shore of Ulster was to become the province's ruler, one contestant guaranteed his win by cutting off his hand and throwing it to the shore ahead of his rivals. Red-handed doesn't have a mythical origin however - it is a straightforward allusion to having blood on one's hands after the execution of a murder or a poaching session. The term originates, not from Northern Ireland, but from a country not far from there, Scotland. An earlier form of 'red-handed', simply 'red hand', dates back to a usage in the Scottish Acts of Parliament of James I, 1432.

Red-hand appears in print many times in Scottish legal proceedings from the 15th century onward. For example, this piece from Sir George Mackenzie's A discourse upon the laws and customs of Scotland in matters criminal, 1674: "If he be not taken red-hand the sheriff cannot proceed against him."

The earliest known printed version of 'red-handed' is from Sir Walter Scott's Ivanhoe, 1819: "I did but tie one fellow, who was taken redhanded and in the fact, to the horns of a wild stag." Scott was an avid student of Scottish history and folklore, and he is certain to have heard 'redhand' before writing Ivanhoe. The step from 'redhand' to 'redhanded' isn't large, so calling Scott the originator of the term is perhaps being over generous to him. Nevertheless, the enormous popularity of his books certainly brought 'red-handed' to a wide audience and, without him, the term might now be long forgotten.

16th and 17th century Scottish sources provide various examples of 'apprehended redhand', 'taken with redhand' etc. but the earliest known citation of the currently used 'caught red-handed' phrase is in the English novelist George Alfred Lawrence's work Guy Livingstone; or, 'Thorough', 1857: My companion picked up the object; and we had just time to make out that it was a bell-handle and name-plate, when the pursuers came up - six or seven "peelers" and specials, with a ruck of men and boys. We were collared on the instant. The fact of the property being found in our possession constituted a 'flagrans delictum' - we were caught "red-handed."

Your STARS with The Sage Monkey

brought to you by my.opera.com/bentrein

Sometimes we do wonder whether the Sage Monkey is a truly gifted and clairvoyant freak of nature, or just a trained chimp; last week he was seen wandering around with a tray containing a teapot, sugar bowl, milk jug and cups and saucers, shouting out 'Coo-eee, Mr Shifter!' at anyone who passed, before pouring them a cup of tea (PG Tips of course). But then we come across a set of predictions as presented this week, with such searing insights and complete conviction, as well as a command of English that is out of this world, and we have no more room for any such doubts - Spanky must be a trained chimp and someone else is writing the horoscopes for him! Still, he makes a fabulous cup of tea so we're not really complaining!

Hubby looks her up and down and replies, 'Your sense of humour!

THE DUCK IS DEAD

(thanks to Karl from the Railway Tavern)

A woman brought a very limp duck into a veterinary surgeon. As she laid her pet on the table, the vet pulled out his stethoscope and listened to the bird's chest.

After a moment or two, the vet shook his head sadly and said, "I'm sorry, your duck, Cuddles, has passed away."

The distressed woman wailed, "Are you sure?"

"Yes, I am sure. The duck is dead," replied the vet.

"How can you be so sure?" she protested.

"I mean you haven't done any testing on him or anything. He might just be in a coma or something."

The vet rolled his eyes, turned around and left the room.

He returned a few minutes later with a black Labrador Retriever.

As the duck's owner looked on in amazement, the dog stood on his hind legs, put his front paws on the examination table and sniffed the duck from top to bottom. He then looked up at the vet with sad eyes and shook his head.

The vet patted the dog on the head and took it out of the room.

A few minutes later he returned with a cat.

The cat jumped on the table and also delicately sniffed the bird from head to foot. The cat sat back on its haunches, shook its head, meowed softly and strolled out of the room.

The vet looked at the woman and said,

"I'm sorry, but as I said, this is most definitely, 100% certifiably, a dead duck."

The vet turned to his computer terminal, hit a few keys and produced a bill, which he handed to the woman.

The duck's owner, still in shock, took the bill. "$150!" she cried, "$150 just to tell me my duck is dead!"

The vet shrugged, "I'm sorry. If you had just taken my word for it, the bill would have been $20, But with the Lab Report and the Cat Scan, it's now $150."

Your Problems SOLVED

to Mary Ann Cotton on awol@huahinmedia.com

DEAR MARY,
I have an elderly female neighbour whose husband died earlier this year. I live alone and have an active social life, so I took pity on this lady and have been helping her with many things, from gardening to shopping to odd jobs around the house, and generally trying to help her when I can. The only problem now is that I think she has a crush on me! She has started making suggestive remarks, patting me in places she shouldn't and even wearing revealing clothes when I go there; the other day her next door neighbour called round and told me that she doesn't stop talking about me when she goes there. What can I do?
Cradle Snatched, Bangkok

Dear Cradle Snatched,
I don't really see the problem here; there is you, a young stud with plenty of energy and a kind heart, and there is your neighbour who is obviously gagging for some action and can probably teach you a thing or two. Give her a good seeing to - wrinkly sex is the next big thing!

DEAR MARY,
I met a bar girl while on holiday in Hua Hin who I really like, but I know all the horror stories about demands for money, sick buffalos, new mobile phones etc. I was expecting this after we exchanged our goodbyes, phone numbers and email addresses, but I have to say that I have been mildly disappointed so far; she calls me every day and pays for the calls; she has already sent me a number of gifts like clothes and after shave and there have been no demands of any sort. Is there something wrong with me?
Big Willy, Hartlepool, UK.

Dear Willy,
I have heard of this new approach by the girls before but it normally only happens when the guy in question is particularly well endowed in the pants department. You don't mention this in your letter so is your name ironic or does it reflect reality? Anyway, this girl is obviously desperate so I would dump her quick and find a normal money grabbing girl that you can trust. I have sent you my personal number just in case.

Sudoku Hints For Beginners

Look for the obvious. Is there a section that has one cell unsolved? Quickly find the solution by counting from 1 to 9 locating each number in that row, column, or region. The missing number is the solution.

Where do you start? Take a systematic approach to solving Sudoku. A good way to start is by first looking for a number that has the most "givens".

Look for the only possible choice. Sometimes there is only one place a number can possibly go. This is discovered by working systematically through each line and box in turn. Good luck!

Premier League

(all times Thai) Please note that tables opposite do not include the West Ham v Aston Villa result.

Saturday, 7 November 2009

Aston Villa v Bolton, 22:00

Bolton were hammered by Chelsea and are looking like potential relegation candidates at the moment. Villa again look like contenders for the European places. Has to be a home win.

Blackburn v Portsmouth, 22:00

Rovers are another team looking at the bottom of the table and Portsmouth finally got a result that their performances have deserved. Tough game though as the home side look to stem the recent influx of goals and a draw likely.

Man City v Burnley, 22:00

This could be a very entertaining game and pretty close. City are in the doldrums but are still in good shape, while Burnley will be delighted with their showing so far. Narrow home win.

Tottenham v Sunderland, 22:00

Spurs look to have petered out after their bright start and Sunderland are a bit shaky on the road despite the recent form of Andy Reid (above), Darren Bent and Kenwyne-Jones, so we are drawn to this being a draw.

Sunday, 8 November 2009

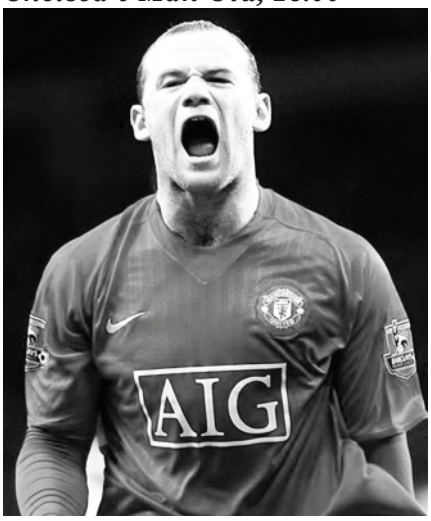
Wolves v Arsenal, 00:30

A good result for the Wolves last week but Arsenal are in such impressive form at the moment it is hard to see them not winning. Away win.

Hull v Stoke, 20:30

Hull seem to be in disarray at the moment and red hot favourites to be relegated. We expect Stoke to bully them and continue their good form with an away win.

Chelsea v Man Utd, 23:00



The top two clash and these are normally momentous games. Chelsea are clearly in better form but United are getting results while not playing well. No doubt controversial, and no doubt Drogba, Rooney (above) and Terry will be part of it. Score draw.

West Ham v Everton, 22:00

The Hammers are showing signs of regaining last season's form but their defence is a worry for Zola. A clean sheet here would do wonders with Carlton Cole regularly finding the net and with Everton not exactly sparkling in front of goal away from home we think this will be a home win.

Wigan v Fulham, 22:00

Wigan need to bounce back after last week's poor showing, while Fulham will be keen to continue where they left off last week. We think the away side can do so - away win.

Tuesday, 10 November 2009

Liverpool v Birmingham, 03:00

You have to feel a bit sorry for Birmingham here, as they will surely catch the Reds backlash from last week's defeat. Combine that with the return of key players and we predict an easy home win.

FIFA demand gender test for Torres

Liverpool star is 'too pretty' to be male

■ MANCHESTER, ENGLAND

Premiership footballer Fernando Torres (right) has been asked to take a gender test to eliminate concerns he is a woman, according to football's governing body FIFA.

FIFA says it demanded the test three weeks ago amid fears he should not be able to play in the all male' Premier League.

Michelle Platini, himself a suspected women, said the "extremely complex, difficult" test results were not due for several weeks.

"It will take us a considerable amount of time to check if Mr, or Mrs, Torres does, or does not, have the male sexual reproductive organs."

"This sort of test cannot be conducted quickly without medical specialists, there are several ways to cheat the traditional 'cup and cough' approach."

Liverpool Football Club, said that they are "completely sure" that Torres, 25, is a female but felt that she should be entitled to play in the all male league due to her popularity with team-mates Jamie Carragher and Steven Gerrard.

A source at Liverpool said, "Jamie and Stevie have put in hours of hard work on the training ground with Torres and were both on the verge of securing a much sought after date".

"We would not have signed Torres if she hadn't been so pretty. She's so graceful, with her flowing locks and smooth skin."

"Some of our fan base is made up of heterosexual males, and posters of Torres adorn the walls of many of those fans".

FIFA stated: "If it is proved that Torres is female, she will be withdrawn from all FIFA competitions and matches she was involved with will be forfeited to the opposition."

The Spanish Foreign Minister, Miguel Angel Moratinos, said "we have no issues with Torres' gender. We may be filthy racists but you can't accuse us of sexism".

He added, "We are however concerned that our Euro 2008 triumph might be written out of the history books because of a technicality".

Under fire Liverpool manager Rafa Benitez will be hoping that he doesn't lose the services of his golden girl, and may also have concerns that the gender testing will be applied to other members of his squad. Given that they have been playing like a bunch of old women recently there are now strong suspicions about a number of his players, most notably the waif like Yossi Benayoun, the Brazilian Lucas and the recently signed Thai player Kay 'BaaBaa' Kae (below).
