Expat businesses boost local economy & facilities

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

Over recent weeks several local businesses with expats behind them have shown one of the reasons why Hua Hin, and Thailand, benefit greatly from the presence of foreigners here. As an 'other side of the coin' to our headline last week, there are many foreigners here who are committed to this area and this country, and put their money where their mouth is.

Above, the new X-Plode Football Arena is suitable for up to 7-a-side games

Prime examples of this are the opening of the X-Plode football arena in Soi 10 - an artificial all weather floodlit pitch which has been the dream of the people behind it for many years, and has now been realised (see ad page 14). Not only does it provide a much needed sports facility but also provides work for local Thais.

Another ongoing example is the commitment shown by the team at Hot Property to continue to put on top class comedy shows in the town (see review on page 2).

The French cafe, Chez Lou Lou, is also providing, once again, a venue for local musicians and music fans to play and appreciate good music. Their weekly (every Wednesday) jam sessions got underway at Railway Plaza again this week, and while there is a tendency towards jazz and blues, all styles and all nationalities are welcomed (for more see Hua Hin Live on page 12).

While all of these undertakings, and the many others that occur from time to time, are done with some commercial consideration, whether as simple promotion of their business or to turn a profit, the prime concern behind all of them is to provide something for the area and the people who live here that wasn't available otherwise.

AWOL hopes that all of them are rewarded for their efforts, and long may they continue.

Rolling In The Office

Another hit comedy night at Hot Property

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

As compere Australian Darren Sanders pointed out, the reviews of this show could genuinely say 'they were rolling on the floor', and even without the two chairs breaking that sent those members of the audience sprawling, the comment was true - Hua Hin was once again treated to a top night of comedy, courtesy of the Punchline Comedy Club. From the quirky 'Portuguese' Philberto (below) with his perfect Glasgow accent, to Sanders' droll delivery and finishing up with the UK's Pierre Hollins (above) acerbic but hilarious observations, the two hour show swept past, aided by the free bar. We can only hope the Hot Property team continue to bring these nights to us.

Do you wonder why we say certain things, or what they really mean? Each week we will examine a different word or phrase and tell you how it came about.

This week it is.. Vis-à-vis

In a position facing another. Literally 'face to face'. Often now used in the sense of 'in relation to'.

The term is French and began to be used in English in the mid 18th century. The French spelling is vis-à-vis, i.e. with the grave accent, although that is often omitted when written in English. It is now frequently printed, no doubt to French shrugs and mutterings, as 'vis-a-vis' or even 'viz-a-viz'.

When 'vis-à-vis' was introduced into England it was provided with two distinct meanings, both of which were in use from the 1750s onward. Oddly, it seems that these were both introduced by the author and politician Horace Walpole. The first was the literal translation from the French, i.e. 'face-to-face'. Walpole was an incurable letter writer and, fortunately for us, many of his letters have been published in a collection of books, which provides the first citation we have of the term in English, in Letter to George Montague, July 1753:

"He was walking slowly in the beau milieu of Brentford town, without any company, but with a brown lap-dog with long ears, two pointers, two pages, three footmen, and a vis-a-vis following him."

What he meant by a 'vis-a-vis' in that letter was 'a small two-seater carriage, in which the passengers sat face-to-face'. The meaning was extended to apply to any person or thing that was facing another, for example, one's dance partner, someone sitting across the table at mealtime, couples meeting in the street, etc.

Secondly, it meant 'with regard to'/'in relation to'. Horace Walpole again, in Letter to R. Bentley, November 1755: "What a figure would they make vis-à-vis his manly vivacity and dashing eloquence."

It is this second meaning that we have held on to. We can now safety substitute 'with regard to' for 'vis-a-vis' with little fear of misinterpretation.

If you frequent square dances, you are likely to find yourself 'vis-à-vis' with your partner. When the dance caller shouts out do-se-do (also spelled 'dosey doe', 'dozy-doe' 'do si do', 'dosado' etc.) you had better turn around, for what he really means is 'dos-à-dos' - in the original French 'back-to-back'. Dos-à-dos was employed as widely as 'vis-à-vis' in the 19th century, being used as a name for carriages, duelling partners - anything in fact where the participants are back to back.

Weird News

■ HELSINKI, FINLAND

Finnish newsreader drinks beer on air, gets sacked

Finnish TV newsreader Kimmo Wilska showed a bit too much bottle when he drank beer live on air, a prank that got him the sack.

Mr Wilska, the country's most well-known English-language anchor, got in trouble after he tried to give a story he was delivering about Finland's licensing laws a bit of extra fizz.

While recorded footage showing beer being pulled was broadcast, Mr Wilska whipped out a brew in the studio – a gag intended not for broadcast, but to make the crew laugh.

Unluckily, Wilska, who's known as the Barry White of Finland for his gravelly voice, was caught swigging from the bottle as the report cut back to the studio.

Looking alarmed, he put the bottle down, spilling some on his suit as he did so, and wrapped up the show.

A facebook page showing support for the beer-sipping anchor is fermenting nicely, with over 44,000 supporters so far.

Fan Vilhjálmur Ólafsson pleaded with Wilska's bosses, saying 'Come on, you guys. It was a joke…'

■ FREIBURG, GERMANY

Man throws washing machine out of window, police unhappy

A man in Germany has got himself in trouble with the authorities after he thre his washing machine out of his 8th floor window - because he couldn't be bothered to carry it down.

48-year-old Gunther Koenig was, apparently, too lazy to carry the old washing machine down from his eightth floor flat, and so instead took the more direct route of chucking it out of the window for his Freiburg appartment.

The washing machine promptly exploded into hundreds of pieces on impact, scattering debris over a wide area and the road needed to be closed for a short while so that the mess could be cleared up.

Koenig told Local media: 'I don't know what the fuss was about - I checked there was no one underneath before I dropped it.'

BUSINESS
(thanks to Bill)

Morris (the father) says to his son: "I want you to marry a girl of my choice."
The son says: "I will choose my own bride."
Morris says: "But the girl is Bill Gates' daughter."
The son answers: "Well, in that case, yes, ok."
Morris then approaches Bill Gates and says: "I have a husband for your daughter."
Bill Gates answers: "But my daughter is too young to get married!"
Morris says: "But this young man is a vice-president of the World Bank."
Bill Gates answers: "Ah, in that case, yes, ok."
Finally Morris goes to see the president of the World Bank.
Morris says: "I have a young man to recommend as a vice-president."
The president answers: "But I already have more vice-presidents than I need."
Morris says: "But this young man is Bill Gates' son-in-law."
The President answers: "Ah, in that case, yes, ok."
And that is how successful people do business.

RIBBON SALESMAN
(thanks to Bill again)

Yankel Goldstein, in his late 80s and still gainfully employed as a ribbon salesman, has been trying, unsuccessfully, to sell ribbon to Macy's for many years.
Last week, he made another attempt to speak with the anti-Semitic buyer.
"Goldstein," the buyer says laughingly, "you've been trying to sell me ribbon for at least the last 25 years or so. Now, here is your chance. Send me enough yellow ribbon to reach from the tip of your nose to the tip of your penis."
Three days later, four tractor trailers full of yellow ribbon drive up to Macy's receiving dock. The ribbon buyer goes ballistic.
He calls Goldstein and yells, "You putz, what's going on here? I only ordered enough yellow ribbon to reach from the tip of your nose to the tip of your penis, and you send me four trailer-loads full of it!"
Goldstein replies calmly in a soft voice: "The tip of my penis is in Poland."

LIGHT BULB
(thanks to dr c)

I saw one of my mates the other day, he's only got one arm, bless him.
I shouted "Where are you off to?"
"To change a light bulb" he said.
I said, "Thats going to be a bit awkward isnt it?"
"Not really" he said, "I've still got the receipt."

Your STARS

Capricorn Dec 22 - Jan 19
While you're often disgusted by the shallowness and ignorance you see all around you, you have to admit it's made it easy for you to get dates

Aquarius Jan 20 – Feb 18
Although they say it's not over until the fat lady sings, increasingly unrealistic body-image standards mean it's over when it's any female over 135 pounds.

Pisces Feb 19 – Mar 20
While it may be true that the emperor has no clothes, you have to admit that if you were the emperor, you'd walk around naked, too.

Aries Mar 21 – Apr 20
A messenger from the Lord appears to you in glory this week and, in a voice that shakes mountains and shivers oceans, announce price hikes on all divine services.

Taurus Apr 21 – May 21
Mars and Venus will both appear in your sign this week, as will Zach Galifianakis, who is apparently in everything these days.

Gemini May 22 – June 21
When the moment of truth you've been praying for finally arrives, you'll reject it out of hand rather than admit that it's all been the cat's fault.

Cancer Jun 22 – Jul 22
While you've always had good luck at work using the buddy system, next week's attempt to move to the bum-buddy system will be a complete disaster.

There's a curry in your future at

Leo Jul 23 – Aug 22
While you're starting to think your problem is that you're too "in your head," it's actually a rare species of cranial tapeworm.

Virgo Aug 23 – Sep 22
Your attempt to achieve fame no matter what the cost in blood will fail, although the stories of the What's-His-Name Killer will be told for generations.

Libra Sep 23 – Oct 23
The king's men part you can understand, but you've never really comprehended how all the king's horses were supposed to help..

Scorpio Oct 24 – Nov 21
You'll be trapped in a paralyzing dilemma that can only be solved if you learn something new, take the initiative, or have an original thought of your own.

Sagittarius Nov 22 – Dec 21
This is a good time to make aggressive moves in your romantic life, but not so aggressive that you actually cause yourself physical harm with the Fleshlight.

Your Problems SOLVED

Mary's niece has once again stepped in this week...

■ DEAR MARY
I require your help with a rather sensitive issue, regarding the size of my wife's backside. When we were married, many moons ago, it was neat and pert like a ripe peach. Unfortunately, as the years have passed, her posterior has grown exponentially, to resemble something not dissimilar in size to a naval destroyer. I have gingerly attempted to address the matter by subtly hinting that she might want to take up pilates or get on an exercise bike once in a while, but she's too busy shovelling cake into her massive gob to take any notice. Can you offer a suggestion as to how I can broach this issue without getting punched in the balls?
Harold, Cha Am

Dear Harold,
I am really sorry to hear about your wife's bottom. Perhaps you might want to write a poem about it, just like the one Oliver French wrote for the Harvest Festival. In our school, every year at Harvest Festival we have to bring in food and old clothes to send to people less fortunate than ourselves in poor countries like Bangladesh and Scotland. This year, our teacher got us all to write a poem or story about food to make into a big display. Oliver French wrote a poem about Frances Hall, the fattest girl in the school, who eats a whole multipack of Monster Munch for a mid-morning snack and whose knickers have to be specially made from old bed sheets because her bum is so vast. To accompany his poem he drew a lovely picture of Frances with a snout and a curly tail eating from a trough. Although many of us felt the composition to be a work of genius, the teacher didn't seem to agree, and nor did Frances Hall's parents, possibly because Oliver hadn't fully mastered the iambic pentameter or something. Perhaps your wife would enjoy it if you penned a similar ditty about her unfortunate bulk? Either that, or just pack up her cakes and send them up to Scotland, where they are so desperately needed.

Fixtures and Predictions
(all times Thailand)
Saturday, 23 October 2010

Tottenham v Everton, 18:45
This will be a tough game for both teams - Spurs are on a good run, while Everton will be buzzing after their derby win. Draw.

Birmingham v Blackpool, 21:00
Another tight game where we can't see a winner; Blackpool are lively but lack the killer punch while Birmingham are better than their position suggests. Draw.

Chelsea v Wolves, 21:00
Not a game that the Blues will be relishing but they should be up to the physical challenge posed. Home win.

Sunderland v Aston Villa, 21:00
Solid and unspectacular is probably the best summary of these two so far, and this will probably etend to this game as well - draw.

West Brom v Fulham, 21:00
West Brom are on a real roll at the moment and we think their momentum will earn them a home win against a Fulham team struggling for goals.

Wigan v Bolton, 21:00
Wigan are so unpredictable we have stuck a pin in here and come up with an away win.

West Ham v Newcastle, 23:30
A game that could finally lift the Hammers out of the relegation spots, and it promises to be a cracker. We can see a home win.

Sunday, 24 October 2010

Stoke v Man Utd, 19:30
This will be quite a test for the away side after their cave in last week; it sounds crazy but we think a home win.

Liverpool v Blackburn, 21:00
A team in crisis versus a dogged Allardyce team equals a draw in our book.

Man City v Arsenal, 22:00
Should be the game of the weekend with some fantastic talents on display. Plenty of goals and a narrow home win.

The REAL Rooney?

Secret reasons revealed for impending Old Trafford exit

■ MANCHESTER, ENGLAND

In a frank and somewhat surprising interview for 'Hi!' magazine, Wayne Rooney's wife Colleen has let the cat out of the bag as to why her husband wants to leave Manchester United.

Rooney was branded disrespectful this week by his manager, Sir Alex Ferguson, after it was revealed that he has refused to sign a new contract and wants to quit the club.

Many reports appear to suggest that Rooney and Ferguson have had a major falling out, and that the striker feels he is now destined for greater things at a club such as Real Madrid, Barcelona, Chelsea or Blackpool.

However the startling interview with his wife tells a very different story; Mrs ~~Shrek~~ Rooney has laid bare information about their private life and her feelings after learning of her husband's dalliances outside their marriage, and more intriguingly the real reason he wants to leave the club.

"Wayney may look like a thug, and play like a thug, and treat me like a thug, but underneath it all he is just a frightened little boy. Sometimes he has been in tears after coming home from training because that nasty man Berbatov keeps putting a Shrek mask on, creeping up behind him and giving him a wedgie."

She continued, "Then there was that time when that poof Owen Hargreaves gave him a cup of tea filled with laxatives and the whole team made fun of him and started calling him 'Skidmark'."

"Probably the worst time though was when they had finished training one day and all the other players made sure my Wayne got in the bath first, as they had put some green stain in the water which meant he was all green for days after."

"He's just had enough of all the practical jokes, the apple pie beds, and being propositioned behind the bike sheds by some of the gay players there - you know who I mean."

Quite how Rooney would cope with a move to the Bernebau or Bloomfield Road given these revelations is hard to fathom but it has been reported that Cristiano Ronaldo (below) is particularly excited at the possible return of his lost love.
