We Want Snow!

Poll reveals that Thais want it, expats miss it

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

AN exclusive survey carried out by Associated Weather Opinions Limited has revealed that far from the residents and visitors to Hua Hin feeling smug as they watch the chaos and mayhem in Europe and America brought about by the heavy snow and weather conditions, they actually want it here.

The surprising poll results are at odds with the commonly held belief that the weather in Thailand is one of the major factors when people choose to visit or live here, although the Thai part of the poll is less surprising if you have ever spent any time on a Thai air conditioned bus. Participants in the survey were presented with a muff to keep them warm in case it does snow.

The questions asked in the survey, carried out over four hours in the Lost Cafe, Khao Takiab last Saturday, and the varying answers to those questions were as follows:

(left)Sledging in the UK, January 2010; the big freeze brings joy to these youngsters but how would Thailand deal with snow?

"What is the white powdery stuff that falls from the sky called?"

Snow - 67%
Dandruff - 23%
Don't know - 8%
Cocaine - 2%

"Have you ever seen snow in Thailand?"

No - 95%
Yes - 4%
Don't Know - 1%

"Would you like it to snow here?"

Yes - 75% (Thai 90%)
No - 20%
Would it be free? - 5%

While very few people (actually all except one) think it will ever snow in Hua Hin, local weather guru, Pitpat Pitapata, is convinced that snow will fall here sometime in the next fifty years. He said, "People may laugh, but with the climate changes being experienced now in other parts of the world, I predict that tourists will be visiting Hua Hin not for the hot sun but for the excellent ski slopes!".
When it was pointed out to Khun Pitpat that Thailand and Hua Hin were tropical climates because of their proximity to the equator, and thus nearer to the sun, he started humming to himself and stuck his fingers in his ears, saying "I don't want to hear it, it's not true."

If you have seen the movie Bitch Slap, or played the video game, Resident Evil: Biohazard then you will know all about Julia Voth; well, enough to know why she is this week's page 3 girl anyway! For anyone who hasn't seen Bitch Slap, one reviewer described it as "a pure exploitation pic — chicks, boobs, guns and bad guys, in that order."

Speaking at the time Resident Evil: Biohazard was released, Julia said of the game, "Honestly I don't like playing as Jill (Valentine, the character based on her). Playing yourself is a strange thing. However, my brothers loved to play me and, of course, kill me in gross ways."

English corner

Have you ever wondered where a certain phrase comes from, or what it really means? Every week we will expand your knowledge of English and its etymology with a different word or saying. This week it is...

By and large

On the whole; generally speaking; all things considered.

Many phrases are wrongly ascribed a nautical origin just because they sound like mariner's lingo. This one really is and, like many such nautical phrases, it originated in the days of sail.

To get a sense of the original meaning of the phrase we need to understand the nautical terms 'by' and 'large'. 'Large' is easier, so we'll start there. When the wind is blowing from some compass point behind a ship's direction of travel then it is said to be 'large'. Sailors have used this term for centuries. For example, this piece from Richard Hakluyt's The Principall Navigations, Voiages, and Discoveries of the English Nation, 1591:

"When the wind came larger we waied anchor and set saile."

When the wind is in that favourable large direction the largest square sails may be set and the ship is able to travel in whatever downwind direction the captain sees fit.

'By' is a rather more difficult concept for landlubbersto follow. In simplified terms it means 'in the general direction of'. Sailors would say to be 'by the wind' is to face into the wind or within six compass points of it.

The earliest known reference to 'by and large' in print is from Samuel Sturmy, in The Mariners Magazine, 1669:

"Thus you see the ship handled in fair weather and foul, by and learge."

To sail 'by and large' required the ability to sail not only as earlier square-rigged ships could do, i.e. downwind, but also against the wind. At first sight, and for many non-sailors I'm sure second and third sight too, it seems impossible that a sailing ship could progress against the wind. They can though. The physics behind this is better left to others. Suffice it to say that it involves the use of triangular sails which act like aeroplane wings and provide a force which drags the ship sideways against the wind. By the use of this and by careful angling of the rudder the ship can make progress towards the wind.

The 19th century windjammers like Cutty Sark were able to maintain progress 'by and large' even in bad wind conditions by the use of many such aerodynamic triangular sails and large crews of able seamen.

■ TORONTO, CANADA

Man arrested for drunk snow blowing

A civic-spirited but ill-advised attempt to remove snow from a Canadian road caused traffic chaos, and ended up with a man being arrested for operating a snow blower while drunk.

The 41-year-old man sparked mayhem in rush-hour traffic after pushing the snow blower into a major intersection on roads in Barrie, 50 miles north of Toronto, police said.

Authorities say the man was almost hit by cars twice as traffic struggled to get through the large clouds of snow he was blowing up, before police eventually managed to reach him and put a halt to his snow-blowing efforts.

The man was arrested, held until he had sobered up, and charged with public intoxication. He didn't offer an explanation to officers of why he was so keen to blow snow off the intersection.

'His capacity to make sound decisions was obviously affected,' police Sergeant Robert Allan told the Toronto Star.

■ WEST LOTHIAN, SCOTLAND

Two escape ice canal car plunge

Two men were plunged into a frozen canal after they decided it would be a good idea to drive a car along ice covering the water, it was revealed today.

Police said the men, aged 22 and 24, were driving on the Union Canal near Winchburgh, West Lothian, yesterday afternoon when the ice gave way beneath them.

They managed to escape from the Peugeot 406, which was discovered shortly afterwards by the emergency services, with the front section of the vehicle was submerged in the canal.

Lothian and Borders Police said the men were later arrested and charged with reckless conduct. They will appear at Livingston Sheriff Court at a later date.

A force spokesman said the men had a lucky escape: 'While it goes without saying that the vast majority of people have the good sense not to take their vehicles on to frozen waterways, this incident serves as an example of the type of stupidity that the emergency services occasionally have to deal with.'

AWOL Sudoku

brought to you by
J.B. Consultancy Services

Each week we will present you with two Sudoku puzzles; an easy one and a hard one. Just fill in the empty squares so that each horizontal and vertical line has all the numbers 1 to 9, as well as each section.

Sudoku Hints For Beginners

Look for the obvious.

Is there a section that has one cell unsolved? Quickly find the solution by counting from 1 to 9 locating each number in that row, column, or region. The missing number is the solution.

Where do you start?

Take a systematic approach to solving Sudoku. A good way to start is by first looking for a number that has the most "givens".

Look for the only possible choice.

Sometimes there is only one place a number can possibly go. This is discovered by working systematically through each line and box in turn. Good luck!

THE BLONDE JOKE TO END ALL BLONDE JOKES

A blonde woman was speeding down the road in her little red sports car and was pulled over by a woman police officer who was also a blonde.

The blonde cop asked to see the blonde driver's license. She dug through her purse and was getting progressively more agitated. "What does it look like?" she finally asked.

The policewoman replied, "It's square and it has your picture on it."

The driver finally found a square mirror in her purse, looked at it and handed it to the policewoman. "Here it is," she said. The blonde officer looked at the mirror, then handed it back saying, "Okay, you can go. I didn't realize you were a cop."

THE ACCIDENT

Hillary Clinton and her driver were cruising along a country road in upper New York State one evening when an ancient cow loomed in front of the car. The driver tried to avoid it but couldn't—the aged bovine was struck and killed.

Hillary told her driver to go up to the farmhouse and explain to the owners what had happened. She stayed in the car making phone calls to lobbyists.

About an hour later the driver staggered back to the car with his clothes in disarray.. He was holding a half-empty bottle of expensive wine in one hand, a rare, huge Cuban cigar in the other, and was smiling happily, smeared with lipstick.

"What happened to you?" asked Hillary.

"Well," the driver replied, "the farmer gave me the cigar, his wife gave me the wine, and their beautiful twin daughters made mad passionate love to me!"

"My God, what did you tell them?" asked Hillary.

The driver replied, "I just stepped inside the door and said, I'm Hillary Clinton's driver and I've just had an accident and killed the old cow. The rest happened so fast I couldn't stop it."

Capricorn
Dec 22 - Jan 19

You'll take it like a man this week, which pretty much just means you'll be too embarrassed to ask what "it" is. Take heart: There are people with bigger problems than yours, and acting like you care about them will get you laid.

Aquarius
Jan 20 - Feb 18

You said you'd never forget all the little people who helped you along the way, but since becoming rich and famous you haven't thought about those midgets once.

Pisces
Feb 19 - Mar 20

Were it officially sanctioned, judged by an impartial panel, and taking place somewhere other than your kitchen late at night, you'd pretty much shatter all existing hot dog eating records.

Aries
Mar 21 - Apr 19

Turns out it's not your relationship with your father that's been eating you up inside, but rather a three-foot long parasite lodged directly below your kidney.

Taurus
Apr 20 - May 20

It takes a real man to admit when he's made a mistake. However, now that you're a woman, you can blame the sex-change operation on someone else.

Gemini
May 21 - Jun 21

While it's natural for human beings to be resistant to new ideas, after losing your family, job, and home, it's probably time you start accepting some from passersby. Due to its high incidence of hijinx, tomfoolery, and puns, you'll finally decide to stop answering doors during knock-knock jokes.

Cancer
Jun 22 - Jul 22

The stars, in their infinite wisdom, indicate that the cute blonde you've been pointing them out to couldn't be more bored if she tried. Judging by that lightheaded, dreamy feeling, this would be a good time to stop giving blood.

Leo
Jul 23 - Aug 22

You'll continue to grow as a human being this week, much to the relief of all those geneticists. However, in many ways, you're still a child. None of them, however, will prevent you from being tried this week as an adult.

Virgo
Aug 23 - Sep 22

Home is where the heart is. Specifically, beneath the floorboards of the common room. You'll find yourself shunned when the man you famously taught to fish dies of mercury poisoning.

Libra
Sep 23 - Oct 23

Every day on Earth is like a beautiful gift from God, which is thoughtful and all, but you'd probably prefer something you can actually use.

Scorpio
Oct 24 - Nov 21

Juggling three young children isn't easy for any mother, but then, that's why you start with tennis balls and bowling pins first. A man is defined by the decisions he makes. Not listening to this piece of trite advice is probably a good start.

Sagittarius
Nov 22 - Dec 21

Nothing will be what it seems this week, especially breakfast sausages. The debate over stun guns will take a strange turn when you drunkenly decide that they probably wouldn't work on you.

Your Problems SOLVED

Relationship woes?
Bar girl blues?
Sexual deviant?
Send your problem
to Mary Ann Cotton on submissions@awolonline.net

■ DEAR MARY,
There's a man at work who has expressed an interest in going out with me, but I am not sure what to do. The main problem is that he is a bit of a loner and, if I am honest, a little weird. It's not that I'm obsessed with appearances, but he wears very thick glasses, has a greasy comb-over and a nervous twitch which involves him licking his lips frequently. I've also noticed he carries a bread knife and a roll of duct tape about in a carrier bag wherever he goes. I might be being overly suspicious, but something is preventing me from going out with him. However, aside from these minor things he seems to be a really sweet man and I feel a bit sorry for him. I am also desperate for a shag and he is the only one to have shown any interest in me for months. Should I accept his advances?
Elizabeth, Chumphon

Dear Elizabeth,
You don't mention in your letter either this man's first name nor what he does at your workplace, but these are important indicators as to how you should deal with this. If his name is Josef, Adolf or Fred then this is a clear warning not to go near him. If he is a filing clerk, works in accounting or has a mind numbingly repetitive job, avoid him like the plague. If he has both of the above, then change jobs immediately.
However, if his name is Simon, John or Finbar then you should be in safe hands. If his work is something creative or people orientated you should also feel comforted. And the two together should result in a fantastic date and a wonderful night of love making. However there is still a 25% chance that you will have the duct tape placed roughly over your mouth and be slowly butchered to death with the bread knife, but I think those are odds that most desperate women can live with. Adds a bit of excitement to the date as well, don't you agree?

Lidl opens first Dubai supermarket

As prices on the Dubai stock market dropped even further, pushing the emirate to the brink of financial collapse, Lidl announced plans to cater for the newly poor Arabs by opening a flagship store in Dubai.

With Dubai World struggling to pay its debts, Lidl have snapped up a prime location near Jumeirah beach from which they will provide discount foods to poverty stricken oil men.

A Lidl spokesperson told us, "We make it our mission to provide discount products wherever they are needed, whether that be a council estate in Manchester, or a bankrupt emirate in the gulf."

"We do not discriminate, and we feel paying 5p for a tin of beans should be the fundamental right of every poor person on the planet."

"The fact that some of them drove to the supermarket in a platinum plated Rolls Royce is irrelevant."

A Dubai spokesperson said they were delighted by Lidl's move to include them in their global bargain shopping family.

"We are glad to see the name Dubai mentioned in the same breath as Runcorn, Basildon and Stockport."

"We continue to welcome tourists to Dubai who can now experience our new world of frugal entertainment."

"Why not spend the day playing in the sand - we have a lot of that, and it's free."

"Then pop to the supermarket and feed a family of six for a tenner."

"We like to think of ourselves as Clacton with sunshine."

Small island nation running low on supplies of salty sand

■ GREAT BRITAIN

The small island nation of Britain is running short of grit for the nation's snow-covered roads as experts wrack their brains trying to discover a way to get their hands on lots and lots of salty sand.

Thousands of roads across the nation remain impassable thanks to significant snowfall and continued cold weather, with many councils running low on stocks of salted sand to treat the roads in their communities.

"We're at a loss what to do, we're almost out of salty sand, and aren't expecting another delivery till next week", said a Cornwall council spokesperson Andy Bell.

"I went for a walk along the beach this morning in the hope of coming up with a solution."

"Plus the beach is just about the only place I can walk safely at the moment, because for some unknown reason the snow doesn't seem to have settled anywhere the beach."

"Unfortunately, as solutions go, I drew a complete blank."

The issue has left many councils with little option but to consider significant road closures.

Mr. Bell continued, "If only there was somewhere close by where we could go and simply help ourselves to a seemingly limitless supply of well-salted sand, this issue would go away almost over night."

A beach in Cornwall, amazingly clear of snow

"So, if any members of the public know of a large sources of salty sand that could be made readily available, preferably free of charge, I urge you to contact your local council immediately."

Premier League

(all times Thai)

Saturday, 16 January 2010

Stoke v Liverpool, 19:45

We think that you would have got pretty good odds against there being only 3 places between these sides at this stage of the season, and a win for Stoke here would move them within six points of the Reds. We think they will do it as well.

Chelsea v Sunderland, 22:00

Tricky one to predict with Chelsea missing some key players such as Essien and Drogba (below). This will be tight and we're plumping for a nil-nil draw.

Man Utd v Burnley, 22:00

Surely Burnley can't go to Old Trafford and get a result? We think the answer is no, despite the Red Devil's wobbly form, we can't see them not getting a comfortable win here.

Portsmouth v Birm'ham, 22:00

Home games like this are vital to Pompey's chances of survival but Birmingham are in good form. Unlikely to be many goals but we think this might be a surprise home win.

Tottenham v Hull, 22:00

This should be a straightforward home win for Spurs, but Hull have had a habit of upsetting the form teams in the past. Spurs are also missing a couple of key players. We think this will be too close for comfort and a narrow home win.

Wolverhampton v Wigan, 22:00

A vital game that both need to win and consequently hard to predict. Neither are very consistent but both are capable of good performances. Sit on the fence time and a draw.

Sunday, 17 January 2010

Everton v Man City, 00:30

A very good performance from the Toffees against Arsenal in one of the few games played last weekend will have given them a lot of confidence. In City however, they are facing a confident team with Carlos Tevez (above) in red hot form. Looks like an away win to us, but it will be close.

Aston Villa v West Ham, 20:30

Unless a takeover and the signing of a new striker happen in the next couple of days there appears to be absolutely no way that the Hammers can get anything from this. Home win.

Blackburn v Fulham, 22:00

Rovers will be glad of this game after being comprehensively beaten on Monday night. Fulham are still brittle away from home but are in good form. Looks like a nailed on draw to us.

Bolton v Arsenal, 23:00

Quite a tester for a new manager's first game, and we don't think Owen Coyle will be able to assemble a silk purse from the sow's ear that is Bolton. Unless the Gunners have one of those mad days that they sometimes have where they try to walk the ball into the net, this should be a convincing away win for the Wenger boys.

LIVERPOOL SQUAD DOWN TO FOUR PLAYERS

■ LIVERPOOL, ENGLAND

RAFAEL Benitez last night said he had cleared out the dead wood from the Liverpool squad, leaving him with the four players he really needs.

Thirty seven players have been sold by the manager, raising almost £400 in transfer fees. Many fetched far greater sums than expected as they came equipped with their own boots and training bibs.

Benitez said: "We no longer have Dossena clumping around the pitch like 14 stone of porridge in shorts, but we do have a new kettle for the boot room."

Liverpool will be looking to their talismanic players Torres and Gerrard even more in the coming months as they will be expected to cover nine-tenths of the pitch by themselves.

"I said 'pass to the primadonna with the big boobies'!"

Benitez said Reina will continue to man the goal and defensive duties will be covered by Carragher, adding: "Selling a fat Russian porn actor masquerading as a striker was one thing, but trying to offload a defender with the turning circle of a dead horse and an accent like a tuba having a row was impossible."

The manager said the club's next big task is to move the entire stadium slightly to the left 'so we can unearth the pirate king's onions that have cursed us with poor results'.

Assistant manager Sammy Lee said "I can't leave him alone for five minutes. Last year he set fire to the pitch because the grass was 'looking at him funny'. Please do bear with us, it won't be long now."

Liverpool director to take lessons in English swearing

■ LIVERPOOL, ENGLAND

After resigning from his role on the board of the club, former Liverpool FC director Tom Hicks Junior is to undergo intensive swearing training, following his overly-Americanised attempt to abuse a supporter.

An Anfield spokesperson told us, "We have let Tom Hicks Jnr know in no uncertain terms that insults such as 'blow me fface' are not of the quality we expect from Liverpool football club representatives."

A fans representative spoke of their disappointment, "Liverpool has a rich seam of perpetuated stereotypes with which to enhance any insult, yet he chose not to use any of them. Not a single mention of signing on, going thieving, or 'calming down'. It's typical of the dismissive nature of our current owners to make such a prosaic insult."

Hicks Jnr. has been enrolled in a three months intensive course run by one of the nation's most beloved swearing experts, Gordon Ramsay. "He should be embarrassed, frankly," began Ramsay upon reading Hicks' application for his swearing course. "He went with 'Blow me fface'? Christ, even my week one students know he should have said, 'suck my wrinkly ballsack, c-knuckle' - it's basic swearing at the most elementary level. Come and see him in April, I'll have him putting together the most beautifully exotic insults, crafted from the finest expletives these shores have to offer. Or he'll just be calling everyone a c."
