Chelsea star 'spotted at exclusive resort'

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

The Chelsea and England footballer and captain John Terry has probably had a couple of weeks he would like to put behind him, after the injunction imposed was lifted regarding reporting his scandalous affair with his former teammate's girlfriend Vanessa Perroncel.

And where better to come than our very own Paradise City? Rumours have been circulating around the town that Terry is here with his wife, Toni Poole, in a last ditch attempt to save his marriage. It was widely reported that this was taking place in Dubai, but it is believed to be a smokescreen to keep the press at bay, and that they are staying at a private luxury resort on the outskirts of Hua Hin.

Our source will not name the resort because of fears he will lose his job. Hua Hin is no stranger to celebrities arriving here in secrecy, and many often head to the luxury spa resorts such as Chiva Som, or the hotel hideaway the Evason Resort, and indeed that is where Terry's colleague Joe Cole stayed when he was in Hua Hin a couple of years ago.

Our source has told us that Terry and his wife have been out in the town, and plan to again, but in disguise with him as a woman (see photo above) and her as a man, and one report suggests that they were at the Blue Angel show on Wednesday night. It has also been reported that they are driving around in an old Ford Capri to be as unobtrusive as possible, complete with furry dice dangling from the mirror, and a sticker across the top of the windscreen saying 'John and Toni'

By the time you read this it could be that we should be describing Terry as 'disgraced former England captain' and reading headlines in the British press like 'Love Rat Terry Being Sued For Divorce', or will the Hua Hin air revive their relationship?

Important news from the British Consular Correspondent

UK passports no longer issued in Bangkok

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

British Passport holders.

With effect from the 8th March 2010 all new and renewals of British Passports will be undertaken in Hong Kong. The British Embassy in Bangkok will still be able to produce an emergency travel document if required.

Please check for more details on the Embassy website at http://ukinthailand.fco.gov.uk/en/passports/

Steve Ketteringham is the liaison between the Police, Tourist Police, Immigration and Hospitals with the British Embassy. He is available to give advice on British Consular assistance in respect of arrest, accidents, hospitalisation, death and loss/theft of passports to all British Citizens in Hua Hin.
He cannot assist with the production of notarised letters re pensions etc (this has to be done in Bangkok) or with UK visas. Although the visa issuing office is co located at the embassy it is the responsility of the UK Home Office and not the FCO and therefore he has no sway one way or the other as to whether a visa is issued. He will however assist with completing the visa application form if required.

If you are a British Citizen it is strongly recommended that you register your name and address with the FCO, their website is https://locate.fco.gov.uk so that in the event of a crisis you can easily be contacted. It is also recommeneded that you have medical insurance; it is quite surprising how quickly your bank account can be depleted through hospital bills.

Steve can be contacted by phone on 086 7933461 or by e mail steve@ketteringham.com

Have you ever wondered where a certain phrase comes from, or what it really means? Every week we will expand your knowledge of English and its etymology with a different word or saying. This week it is...

Get on my wick

Annoy me; get on my nerves.

The slang term 'wick' features in several variants of this phrase 'you get on my wick', 'you're getting on my wick', we even find 'he got on her wick', although, as we will see below, the latter isn't strictly anatomically correct. The expression is of UK origin but sounds a little dated now and was much more widely used in the mid 20th century.

'Wick' isn't just slang, it is Cockney Rhyming Slang. For the source we have to visit the South West London district of Hampton Wick. The 'Hampton Wick' rhyme is with 'prick', which was later shortened to just 'hampton' or, less frequently, to 'wick'. As with other words that are now considered acceptable in everyday speech, e.g. 'berk',and 'cobblers', 'you are getting on my wick' is often used without the speaker or hearer considering the genital origin.

That's not surprising as many slang terms are euphemistic in the sense that they are attempts to smuggle innuendos past the uninitiated.

'Hampton' and 'wick' are right up there in this league. The best example of this is seen in the ongoing battle that Spike Milligan (the writer of the classic BBC comedy The Goon Show (below)) and his writing colleagues had with the BBC censors. Following WWII, a crop of comedy writers returned from wartime service and the baudy barrack room humour they brought with them was anathema to the rather stuffy establishment types who managed the BBC.

'Wick' as slang for 'prick', and the first use of the phrase in question, appears to have begun in the British services during WWII. The first reference that can be found to it in print comes from a military context, just at the end of the war - Penguin New Writing XXVI, 1945:

Parades and bullshit get on his wick.

Private Milligan would certainly have been familiar with the sexual origin of the slang 'wick' and 'hampton' but the BBC censors, more likely to have been captains than corporals, apparently weren't. In the Goon Show episode The Battle of Spion Kop, broadcast in 1958, he managed to introduce the character Captain Hugh Jampton (played by Michael Bentine, in a pretty good impersonation of the chinless wonder censors that they were satirising). The audience were up to speed with the innuendo and found Hugh Jampton (Huge Hampton, of course), and the fact that he was 'excused shorts', hilarious - at least I, as a nine year-old schoolboy, did.

The name of the district itself derives from 'wick', which has long held the meaning 'dwelling place; town'. Many English place names derive this way, for example, Smethwick (probably as 'place of the [black]smiths'). Why rhymers chose the up-market Hampton Wick rather than Hackney Wick, a district much nearer to the Cockneys' habitual East End stamping ground, isn't clear.

■ LIAONING, CHINA

World's biggest bottle of wine created, world's biggest hangover to follow

Anybody want to share a bottle of red? A group of Chinese winemakers have claimed the new world record for the world's biggest ever bottle of wine.

The 15ft high bottle contains an astonishing 1,850 litres of wine, produced by Wang Chen Wines in Liaoning, northern China.

That's over three times the amount held by the previous record-holders, Austrian winemakers Kracher, whose bottle held 490 litres of Grande Cuvee TBA NV No.7 2005.

'We are very proud, and the wine is very good. We have all had a glass from the bottle to celebrate,' said a company spokesman.

■ MASSACHUSETTS, USA

Chilli makes truck driver crash into house

A truck driver in America crashed into a house after he was knocked unconscious by the chilli he was eating while driving.

The chilli incident occurred in Lowell, Massachusetts, where the truck driver - named as Eric Gremm - was eating the chilli when his truck ran over a bump. This caused him to choke on the chilli, upon which he passed out.

The truck promptly veered off the road, and smashed into the house, leaving a gaping hole in the side of the building and damaging the foundations.

59-year-old Gremm, who was taken to hospital with minor injuries, said he couldn't remember passing out. 'I didn't even realize it happened,' he said.

'I'm glad I didn't knock two houses down. I sure wrecked that one,' he added, putting a positive spin on the whole affair.

Nobody else was seriously injured in the crash. Police said that Gremm could now face charges of eating while driving.

AWOL Sudoku

brought to you by
J.B. Consultancy Services

Each week we will present you with two Sudoku puzzles; an easy one and a hard one. Just fill in the empty squares so that each horizontal and vertical line has all the numbers 1 to 9, as well as each section.

Sudoku Hints For Beginners

Look for the obvious.

Is there a section that has one cell unsolved? Quickly find the solution by counting from 1 to 9 locating each number in that row, column, or region. The missing number is the solution.

Where do you start?

Take a systematic approach to solving Sudoku. A good way to start is by first looking for a number that has the most "givens".

Look for the only possible choice.

Sometimes there is only one place a number can possibly go. This is discovered by working systematically through each line and box in turn. Good luck!

A TRIBUTE TO JOHN TERRY

Unless you have been living somewhere away from the news, you will have heard that a court injunction taken out by England and Chelsea footballer and captain John Terry has been lifted, allowing the reporting of his sordid affair, and the pregnancy and abortion that Vanessa Perroncel, former girlfriend of former team mate and friend Wayne Bridge, had as a consequence. Naturally this has led to the usual flurry of jokes, so here is the pick of them...

It's been announced on Sky Sports News that England manager Fabio Capello has phoned Wayne Bridge to let him know that John Terry has lost his captain's armband.
He has asked Bridge to check under the bed.

Wayne Bridge has said he wont play for England with John Terry as captain; England fans have inundated Terry with pleas for him to shag Emile Heskey's missus as well.

Ashley Cole was caught doing 104mph in a 50mph zone. When questioned by police as to why he was speeding he said, "I've just heard John Terry is parked outside my house"

I don't know why everyone is giving John Terry such a hard time.
As a footballer, getting a girl to consent is a rarity, he should be commended.

Fabio Capello has decided that instead of dropping John Terry from his team he will instead switch him to the right wing; in Fabio's eyes he's proven himself more than capable of getting past left backs and scoring.

John Terry to star in a new TV series - "Other Footballers Wives"

John Terry's sponsorship deal with Samsung has fallen through.
Siemens are rumoured to be interested though

The England team have voted for Terry to keep his place in the World Cup squad. With the ban on WAGs travelling to South Africa, no one wants him left behind.

Pisces
Feb 19 – Mar 20

You will suffer permanent disfigurement some time on Wednesday, after an unfortunate cooking accident, while you attempt to let off some steam.

Aries
Mar 21 – Apr 20

You can't stand it anymore. Those silly things your boss asks you to do, that he seems to think is your job, really has you fuming with anger; and that despite the 'no smoking' sign in the office. Perhaps it's time for a change. Putting your fist through your bosses nose would certainly accomplish that.

Taurus
Apr 21 – May 21

There's no point holding it in any longer, and your cheating girlfriend is going to hear it soon. Either she starts practising the vowel sounds on all fours, or she's out the door.

Gemini
May 22 – June 21

Whatever it is they say about red skies in the morning - while you're not a shepherd, nor a sailor, you should take heed when you see one this week. It may cause misery, suffering, death or worse, flooding.

Cancer
Jun 22 – Jul 22

There's a Chinese proverb, 'life is just like a river; it's never the same for too long'. This proverb wasn't based on your miserable and event-less life. Nothing will happen to you again this time around.

Leo
Jul 23 – Aug 22

Avoid confusion this week. Wear a big sign on your chest stating who you are, what your birthday is, and the date of that day. That way the prison's file system won't get clogged with stupid pranks.

Virgo
Aug 23 – Sep 22

Spanky the Monkey has just one thing for you this week: "Don't mock me," he says. "Or you'll regret it!" He's now grinning, but I see a dark fire smouldering... Does he know what is in store for you?

Libra
Sep 23 – Oct 23

Pray to all gods you've ever heard of; true or false, good or evil, pay them equal respect. This will upset them all, so they won't pay attention to your fate, which improves your odds of winning the lottery.

Scorpio
Oct 24 – Nov 21

There's quite a lot to say about you this week. First we look at your personal history, and explain how everything has come to pass. Then we might get to a basic prediction for the near future. But I don't want to be rude, so I'll refrain from all that.

Sagittarius
Nov 22 – Dec 21

How did your private life get so messed up? Isn't it obvious? The reason your member has a hole in it is so your brain gets some fresh air, occasionally. But recently you've dipped it in so many different places that you have no clue what you're doing anymore!

Your Problems SOLVED

Relationship woes?
Bar girl blues?
Sexual deviant?
Send your problem to Mary Ann Cotton on submissions@awolonline.net

This week, Mary Ann has once again handed the column over to her daughter Betsy Jane, who gives a unique 11 year old's perspective on your problems...

■ DEAR MARY,
I've been married to my wife for nearly twenty years and we have two wonderful children together. Regrettably, I seem to have accidentally had sex with a woman at work and I am worried my wife might find out. The main catalyst for this unfortunate situation is that my wife is a dried-up, bootfaced old hag who spends most of her time arguing with me and complaining about my attitude, whereas my colleague is a nubile and leggy strumpet who smells of vanilla, has a chest like a bouncy castle, and lets me ride her doggy-style. As a red blooded man I feel there is little I could have done to prevent this occurrence, and yet I can't help but feel slightly guilty. What should I do to stop this creeping feeling of regret?
Geoff, Prachuap Kiri Khan

Dear Geoff,
You seem to be experiencing a classic Freudian struggle between ego and superego, much like that which I experienced recently when I sabotaged Melissa Riley's eleventh birthday party. On the one hand, I felt bad for telling everyone that Melissa's family are riddled with scabies and her dad is on the sex register. On the other hand, she should have thought first before pressing down so hard on my new felt tip pens and ruining at least seven of them, including the pink one which was my favourite. Hopefully she finally understood her callousness when she found herself playing pass-the-parcel alone, with no little friends to share her custom-made Barbie princess cake.
In the end, you have to remind yourself people like Melissa and your wife bring it on themselves, and that you are only reacting in a reasonable manner to a situation beyond your control.

Football Preview

Premier League

(all times Thai)

Saturday, 6 February 2010

Liverpool v Everton, 19:45

Both teams have not produced what was expected this season, but this will still be a full blooded derby. We expect a home win though.

Bolton v Fulham, 15:00

Fulham are so dire away from home it is hard to see them getting much here. Best they can expect is a draw, which is what we think it will be.

Burnley v West Ham, 15:00

Yet another crucial match in the relegation zone. The Hammers have tightened up defensively and the new signings should increase their firepower but this will be close. Another draw.

Hull v Man City, 15:00

Hull got a creditable draw against leaders Chelsea but we don't think they can match that here. Away win.

Man Utd v Portsmouth, 15:00

Surely the banker home win of the weekend, with Rooney on fire currently. Home win.

Stoke v Blackburn, 15:00

Rovers must be one of the dullest teams to watch and this will be a grind of long balls and set pieces. Stoke to win it.

Sunderland v Wigan, 15:00

Neither side is in great form and this won't be a classic. Another draw.

Sunday, 7 February 2010

Tottenham v Aston Villa, 00:30

Sours are a bit erratic at the moment, while Villa are showing some consistency. This will be another close game with Spurs just sneaking it.

Birmingham v Wolves, 20:30

The Blues are the form team at the moment and will be keen to add to Wolves relegation fears in what should be a hotly contested local derby.Home win.

Chelsea v Arsenal, 23:00

Another massive game for both teams, and the Gunners will want to improve on their lacklustre outing last time.Chelsea are not in great form now so we think this will be another draw.

Premier League Table

18	Hull	24	-26	21
19	Burnley	23	-23	20
20	Portsmouth	22	-16	15

Wednesday, 10 February 2010

Man City v Bolton, 02:45

Another local derby which should be a more straightforward one, and a home win.

Portsmouth v Sun'land, 02:45

Portsmouth desperately need a win soon, and this could be the opportunity as the Black Cats are a bit out of sorts. Home win.

Wigan v Stoke, 02:45

Predicting an away win for Stoke is a bit like winning the lottery, because it isn't going to happen! Close but a home win.

Fulham v Burnley, 03:00

Fulham, great at home, Burnley awful away equals home win.

Thursday, 11 February 2010

Arsenal v Liverpool, 02:45

The third in the trio of massive games for Arsenal and unluckily for them it seems that Liverpool are coming back into form. Away win.

Aston Villa v Man Utd, 02:45

Villa have been found wanting against the top sides and the same is likely here. Away win.

West Ham v Birmingham, 02:45

Sullivan and Gold will want this one more than any other, facing their formerly owned club. Zola's boys need the points too; home win.

Wolves v Tottenham, 02:45

This won't be easy for Spurs but they really ought to be winning this. Away win.

Blackburn v Hull, 03:00

Wake us up when this one is over. Boring draw.

Everton v Chelsea, 03:00

Everton at home are a tough proposition and we can't see a winner here. Chelsea to drop more points in a draw.

England Captains to be Eunuchs

FA announce strict guidelines

■ LONDON, ENGLAND

Following the current press furore over England Captain John Terry, tough disciplinarian Fabio Capello and the FA are considering making all future England captains an 'offer they can't refuse'. In what would be a landmark moment for English soccer, Capello might force Terry and all future captains to undergo 'the snip' before being allowed to take the field.

All the FA academy youngsters and any teenage players earmarked as future England internationals will be offered castration as a fast track to success. They have already instructed several advertising agencies to come up with a campaign based around the slogan 'Snip it to win it'.

Leading international coach and Bolton fishmonger, Vince Mortenson, is convinced that compulsory vasectomy is the only way forward.

"We 'ad the same sort of John Terry problem years ago with Bobby Moore", he revealed. "When old Bobby got it together with an air-stewardess, all we could do in them days was kick him in the nuts", he explained. "It worked as far as his affair was concerned. Except the following afternoon Bobby was all over the place and the Wolves centre forward scored a hat-trick".

"At the end of the day it all comes down to science", said Vince. "Pre vasectomy we had problems. But nowadays it's far easier to staunch a captain's sperm problem than fix his knee cartilage or one of them metatarsals".

"Terry could have the op on a Friday and be fit to play Saturday afternoon", he claimed.

Eighteen per cent of British men have had 'the snip' in which the tubes that carry sperm are severed and 'heat sealed' in a twenty minute operation.

Meanwhile, boxing promoter Frank Warren is hoping to set up a special pay per view spectacle involving John Terry (left) and Wayne Bridge (below), the wronged party in the scandal. Warren said, 'The aim is for the fight to be as fair as Terry was to Bridge; so Bridge will have full body armour, spiked gloves and a mace, while Terry will be chained, naked, face down on a box in the centre of the ring. Our working title for the event is 'A Bridge Too Far - Mr Chelsea Takes It Like A Man'. Tickets are expected to be priced at £1000, while the PPV will be £25 - we are expecting it to be the biggest ever TV audience, although negotiations with Terry are a bit difficult.' Warren added that part of the package offered to Terry was a groundbreaking operation to remove the tear ducts from his eyes so he won't ever be seen on live TV crying his eyes out. Oh, wait a minute...
