Another summit hits town

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

Senior political figures from Thailand and neighbouring countries will once again be descending on Hua Hin next week, this time to take part in the first Mekong River Commission (MRC) summit, which runs from 2nd to 5th April, at an as yet undisclosed location in the town; however as previous meetings have all been held at the Dusit Resort, that seems like a likely candidate this time as well.

The MRC summit is unlikely to cause the same disruption as the ASEAN summit did in October last year, but nevertheless some very high profile people will be attending, including the controversial Cambodian Prime Minister Hun Sen, who caused a stir when he arrived at the ASEAN summit and immediately criticised the Abhisit government and said Cambodia would deny the extradition of convicted former prime minister Thaksin Shinawatra. Abhisit himself invited Hun Sen to this summit.

Prime Ministers Abhisit and Hun Sen at the ASEAN summit last year

The Summit, which is the first of its kind, will gather together regional political leaders and a range of experts in the field of integrated water resources management.

This event marks the 15th Anniversary of the Mekong River Commission and will serve to reaffirm at the highest level, political commitment of Member Countries to the mission of the MRC. It will aim to reaffirm the continued good relationships that the organisation has with Dialogue Partners China and Myanmar; and discuss a range of challenges and opportunities facing the Mekong Basin today, especially the long-term effects of climate change and the role of River Basin Organisations in poverty alleviation.

Hopefully what it won't achieve is gridlock in the town centre, and will help raise the profile of the town. No doubt there will be an increased police and army presence with such distinguished guests present in the town.

Play with Kathy Lloyd

Kathy Lloyd is another page 3 icon who appeared in early 1986, whilst she was still 17, making her debut in The Sun. Kathy went on to become one of the most famous Page 3 Girls ever, her image a far cry from the typical pouting blondes prevalent in the industry.

In the 90s, she attempted to diverse into television, but apart from a two year stint as main hostess on gameshow, Bob's Your Uncle, work was thin on the ground. Then in the mid 90s, her marriage broke up when it was revealed that her husband was having an affair with rival glamour model, Kirsten Imrie.

Kathy returned fulltime to modelling, getting noticed by Playboy who shot a video special of her, and appearing regularly in the new wave of men's magazines such as Maxim, Loaded and FHM. In 2002, Kathy was given a contract by Granada Television to host the show, Talking Dirty, on their Men & Motors satellite station. She followed this up by hosting Kathy Lloyd's Naughty Business for the same station.

Do you wonder why we say certain things, or what they really mean? Each week we will examine a different word or phrase and telly you how it came about.

This week it is... Piggyback

On the back and shoulders of another person.

"Who are you calling a pig, David?" Beckham and Heskey demonstrate the fine art of piggyback

As we will see below, 'piggyback' began its life as two words, so lets start from there.

What's the connection to pigs and to other 'piggy' phrases like 'on the pig's back', 'high on the hog' etc? Well, there isn't one - because 'piggyback' has nothing to do with pigs. In the 20th century, we settled on the 'piggyback' spelling, but the term has existed in myriad forms over the years - 'a pick-apack', 'pick-a-back', 'pig-aback' and so on.

The earliest forms of 'piggyback' were the mediaeval 'pick back' and 'pick pack'. These are cited within a year of each other in the 1560s, both in essays on religious themes:

John Rastell's A confutation of a sermon pronounced by Mr. Juell, 1564 - "What a tale is this, that the oblation of the church should be borne vpon an Angell (on pick pack perchaunce)."

James Calfhill's An aunswere to (John Martiall's) treatise of the crosse, 1565 - "To easy... is that way to heauen, whereto we may be caried a pickbacke on a Roode [a horse]".

The common 'pick' part of these derives from 'pitching', either in the sense of 'placing', as in pitching a tent or 'throwing', as with a pitchfork. 'Pack' and 'back' refer to the load and the place it is carried respectively, and it is clear that 'pick pack' and 'pick back' are effectively the same expression.

Pigs aren't known as beasts of burden, so why 'piggyback'? This appears to be no more than a misstating of the earlier forms of the phrase. Pigs don't get involved until the 18th century, as listed in Robert Ainsworth's, Thesaurus linguae Latinae compendiarius, 1736:

Back, To carry on pig back

'Piggyback' arrives in 1843, in Baynard Rush Hall's The new purchase: or, Early years in the far West, in which Hall recounts a tale of a group of rowdies playing at racing with pigs carried on their back. It's clear from the citation that 'piggy-back' was then a term known to the book's readers:

Meanwhile, two thus doing piggy-back in reverse order, had gradually advanced to the door.

■ AMSTERDAM, NETHERLANDS

Dutch nurses: stop asking to have sex with us

A union representing Dutch nurses is launching a national campaign against patients demanding sexual services as part of their standard care.

The union, NU'91, is calling the campaign 'I Draw The Line Here', with an advert that features a young woman covering her face with crossed hands. The union said in a statement that the campaign follows a complaint it had received from a 24-year-old woman who said a 42-year-old disabled man asked her to provide sexual services as part of his care at home.

The young woman witnessed some of the man's other nurses offering him sexual gratification, the union said. When she refused to do the same, he tried to dismiss her on the grounds that she was unfit to provide care. 'This type of action is not part of the job responsibilities of carers and nurses,' NU'91 said. The case has been reported to police, the union added.

■ NORTHAMPTON, ENGLAND

Police made to take cycle lessons

A decision to ban police officers from riding mountain bikes unless they have received 10 hours of training has been described as "a health and safety doctrine gone too far". Officers in Northampton have been given the push bikes to patrol the Parklands area of the town, but it emerged they are sitting idle until constables have been given the necessary training.

Councillor Malcolm Mildren, an independent member of Northampton Borough Council, said the police's stance became apparent at a meeting last week for residents in Parklands, which he represents.

■ ILLINOIS, USA

Arrested woman uses phone call to dial 911

A woman arrested for allegedly refusing to pay a cab fare then called the emergency services to say that she was 'trapped' in jail.

29-year-old Carly Houston was arrested in Naperville, Illinois after she allegedly screamed and swore at a taxi driver when he asked for directions to her destination, and then refused to pay the fare when police showed up. She was arrested and taken to the local police station, where she was offered the chance to make a call to a friend or family member.

But instead Houston used the call to dial 911, which connected her to Naperville police dispatchers - to whom she reported that she was 'trapped inside the detention facility'.

Unfortunately for her, the Naperville police department proved strangely reluctant to free her from the clutches of the Naperville police department. Instead, she was charged with 'theft of labor or services', criminal trespass, disorderly conduct and, for good measure, making a false 911 report.

Just when we had almost given up on Spanky the monkey, he rolls in as bold as you like and plonks these predictions on the AWOL editor's desk. When asked where he has been he tells us he has been on holiday with an infinite number of monkeys who have written the works of Shakespeare...and we get this!

Capricorn
Dec 22 - Jan 19

The lyrics of a golden oldie which you hear in a bar some time on Sunday early morning, will prove very true: love is indeed in the air. Too bad for you there's a strong wind, and your not a particularly tall tree.

Aquarius
Jan 20 – Feb 18

Tall trees catch many F-16s as the Dutch proverb goes. You will be reminded of that by a close friend, when you see one of them accidentally crash in your thirty-second floor deluxe condo.

Pisces
Feb 19 – Mar 20

The thirty second floor deluxe condo is very pretty, and the view is indeed amazing. So far the sales person is right. What he is wrong about is that it's in your price range, you poor sod.

Aries
Mar 21 – Apr 20

Poor sods and peanut butter will play a particularly large role in your life this week. How it all fits together, isn't crystal clear, but that's perhaps because I'm not looking in a crystal ball.

Taurus
Apr 21 – May 21

Crystal balls have no place in horoscopology. They belong in the huge niche market of crooks and fraudsters. No, what it really comes down to is precision when spanking Spanky. And today my aim's a little off.

Gemini
May 22 – June 21

Your aim's a little off this week, and you better be prepared with spare balls when you hit the green, and an extra roll of tissues when you hit the sack – especially when you're not alone.

Cancer
Jun 22 – Jul 22

You're not going to be alone much this week, despite your desire for a good night sleep. It's going to be party till you drop, because an ugly sap like yourself isn't likely to get laid anyway.

Leo
Jul 23 – Aug 22

You're going to get laid this week – or not. If you do, it'll be the first time in what, four years? It all depends on whether or not you have the guts to jump a motorcycle over a Boeing 747.

Virgo
Aug 23 – Sep 22

No, you're not sick in the guts. Not even a slight ache. Not the slightest bit of fever, or even a little headache. But if you dare use this excuse to get out of something this week, you're going to be sorry!

Libra
Sep 23 – Oct 23

Sorry that you think all horoscopes are fiction, but you will be convinced of Spanky's skill next week. Because next week's prediction is going to be spot on. As is this week's, but you're unable to read between the lines.

Scorpio
Oct 24 – Nov 21

Line up! It's holiday time for many schools in Thailand. Are you enjoying it? But of course not: you're not in a regular Thai school. And for those who are, it's just too hot these days to have any sort of fun.

Sagittarius
Nov 22 – Dec 21

In the next 36 hours, you will meet a woman willing to have nasty, hot fun with you in the bedroom. This means a the end of a very long dry spell for you, provided you can get over the pools of yellow-ish cream oozing out of every one of her holes.

Your Problems SOLVED

Relationship woes?
Bar girl blues?
Sexual deviant?
Send your problem to Mary Ann Cotton on submissions@awolonline.net

We are beginning to suspect that Mary Ann's continued absence and replacement with her teenage niece is not due to 'women's problems' as we were told, and the strange concidence of Spanky the Monkey from the 'Your Stars' page over the last few weeks is somehow connected. However, keep sending your problems in, as the teenage prodigy agony aunt really knows her stuff!

■ DEAR MARY,
I am thinking of buying my girlfriend a sexy negligee to wear in bed. I have the suspicion that this might be more arousing to look at than her usual '2005 Hua Hin Jazz Festival' T-Shirt-and-Tesco-Lotus-sweatpants-combo. However, I don't want to upset her by buying anything too racy. Do you think something in black and red lace with nipple holes and a split-crotch gusset will strike the right chord of subtle femininity?
Angus, Cha Am

Dear Angus,
Whatever you buy your girlfriend, make sure you ask yourself this first: in the event of drowning, can the garment be removed swiftly and fashioned into a primitive life-preservation aid? If you don't take this into consideration, your girlfriend could end up like Wendy Mackenzie in swimming lessons last week, battling wildly against the wave machine in a Winnie-the-Pooh quilted nightie, with the rest of the class laughing and pointing at her from the edge of the pool. Honestly, from the sounds of it, the item you are proposing is neither water-tight, nor buoyant, and so I'd maybe go back to the drawing board with this. Hope that helps!

Patravadi's Eclipse

AWOL Review

A spectacle of music and dance at Vic Hua Hin Theatre

This year, Hua Hin has become blessed with a wealth of venues for the performing arts, none more significant than the Vic Hua Hin Theatre. A state-of-the-art indoor performing space, the Vic sits as the centerpiece of a remarkable complex on 30 acres of land on Petchkasem Road in Nongkae, just south of central Hua Hin.

This past Saturday saw the opening of the first show at the Vic following the finish of the Fringe Festival, and only the second in-house production from Patravadi Theatre (the first was Phra Lor). From what I saw there, the future of performing arts in Hua Hin is bright indeed.

Eclipse is a spectacular show, and not to be missed. More a music and dance spectacle than a conventional drama, the theme of Eclipse is the play of the sun and moon that periodically produce lunar and solar eclipses, the way that humans have responded to these natural phenomenon through the ages, and the parallel development of our understanding of the nature of life, as reflected in Buddhist philosophy. There is no dialog, but narration in both English and Thai illuminate the meanings.

The headliners of the show are Zion Daoratanahong of the Bangkok Opera and Dancer/Director Manop Meejamrat, a past winner of the prestigious Silapathorn National Award for Contemporary Performing Artists. Respectively, they portray the Moon and Sun, albeit in highly symbolic fashion. Both are remarkable artists at the height of their powers, and deliver stellar performances here. But for my money, the real star of Eclipse is the music, a thundering contemporary score delivered by a mixed ensemble of traditional Thai drums together with both Western and Thai classical instruments and highlighted by Khun Zion's amazing voice. Remarkably, most of the instrumentalists are young students from the Patravadi School in Ratchaburi, ages 12-14. The skill and athleticism displayed by these youngsters is something to behold, and bodes well for the future of performing arts in Thailand.

Eclipse will be performed six more times, Saturday. 27 March, 3, 10, 17, and 24 April, and for the last time on May 1. Shows begin nominally at 8 pm but early arrival is recommended. Tickets are priced at 500 to 1,000 baht, with a 10% discount for Hua Hin residents and 50% for students. The show is recommended for everyone (teens and children will not be bored). Go and experience it! You'll be very happy you did.

Football Preview

Premier League

(all times Thai)

Saturday, 27 March 2010

Birmingham v Arsenal, 22:00

Tough game to predict, as Brum will be keen to bounce back while the Gunners will have one eye on the Champions League. We are plumping for a draw.

Chelsea v Aston Villa, 22:00

Crunch time for both teams who were held to unexpected draws last week; you have to back Chelsea at home though.

Hull v Fulham, 22:00

New manager Dowie (above) has a tough task to save Hull but he can be glad that the opposition are normally so poor away. Can't see a win here though, so a draw.

Tottenham v Portsmouth, 22:00

This match just seems set up for a shock away win, as Pompey attempt the impossible while Spurs, managed by their old boss, try to break into the top four. Pompey to keep the dream alive and a win.

West Ham v Stoke, 22:00

The second crucial home match for the Hammers in five days in their battle to avoid the drop. Stoke are awesome at home but pathetic away this season but Zola's boys have not been sparkling. Could easily end up a draw.

Wolves v Everton, 22:00

As with the other teams at the bottom, the home games are crucial; Everton though are in good form and we can't see Wolves getting anything here - away win.

19	Hull	30	-35	24
20	Portsmouth	31	-30	13

Sunday, 28 March 2010

Bolton v Man Utd, 00:30

Bolton seem to have a habit of beating the teams around them and being thumped by everyone else, so on that basis this should be a thumping! However it is also a local derby which always changes the dynamics, and we expect a narrow away win here.

Burnley v Blackburn, 18:00

Burnley have had a poor run, while Rovers have done well against the bottom half teams, so this should be an away win.

9	Thailand Lover	32	1589
10	AWOL Wanderers	62	1574

Please note that the above table does not include all scores from last week.

Liverpool v Sunderland, 22:00

Rafa's boys are struggling to even get 4th spot now and really need a win here; Sunderland seem to have turned a corner so this should be close. A narrow home win.

Tuesday, 30 March 2010

Man City v Wigan, 02:00

Wigan are so inconsistent it is very hard to predict their results, as they can beat anyone on their day. City are settling into a nice run of form and we expect them to continue that here however, so a home win.

Beckham Misses Out On 'Perfect' World Cup Seat

Posh not happy; Will have to buy tickets now

■ RUSTENBERG, S. AFRICA

David Beckham looks set to lose his spectator position alongside Matthew Upson and Michael Carrick on England's bench during the South African World Cup, following an achilles injury suffered whilst playing for AC Milan.

The injury is set to ruin Beckham's dream of watching England's World Cup campaign from a seat just yards from the actual pitch whilst wearing a brightly coloured safety vest.

A Beckham family spokesperson told reporters, "David is devastated, as you can imagine. Unless you've played the game at the highest level, I don't think you can really understand just how good the view is when you're sat between the physio and the man who washes the kit."

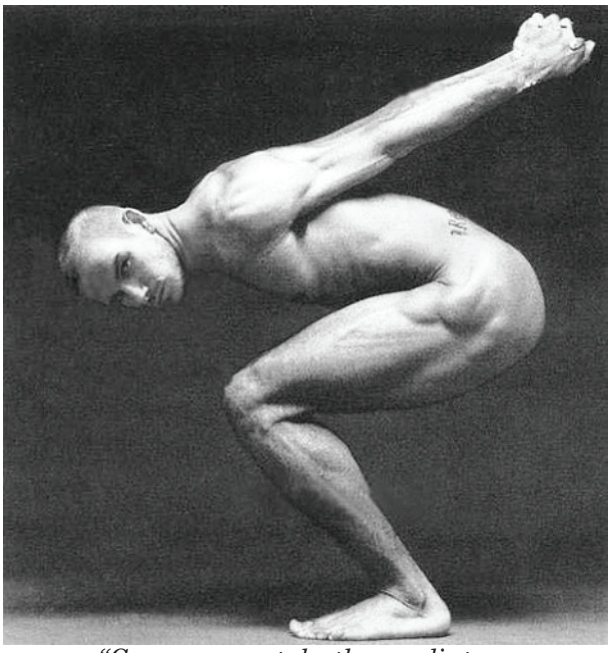
"Sometimes the manager would let him run up and down the line so it would almost feel like he'd be on the pitch with the other players."

"He was genuinely excited about watching Walcott, or Wright-Phillips, or Lennon, or Young playing in his preferred position, and now that dream has been cruelly ripped away from him."

Surgeons have already explained that modern medical techniques will mean that the injury is unlikely to be career threatening.

A leading achilles specialist told us, "He'll be up and around walking within a month, and can return to his modelling commitments shortly after that, the scar will be small and hardly visible - if photographed from the correct angle."

"I would suspect that by July or August he'll be back endorsing products that faceless global corporations would like you to buy just as if this injury never happened."



"Can someone take these splinters out? Rio? JTsey? Lampsy?"

An England supporters association spokesperson said they were disappointed by Beckham's injury, but it did have some benefits.

"Don't get me wrong, Beckham would always give us a wave from the bench, which was nice."

"But on the bright side, South Africa is now likely to be 100% posh spice free, which is nice."
