Well, Did You Evah!

Lineup announced for 2010 Jazz Festival

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

The Jazz Festival is on! Details of the artists and schedule were announced this week via the official Festival website (www.huahinjazz2010.com), although with the usual proviso that the artists and performance times are subject to change without notice.

The festival will take place from 18th - 20th June on two stages, a Beach stage near the Sofitel and the Jazz Royale stage at Phonkingphet Public Park on the road up to the railway station.

The international headline acts this year are guitarist Lee Ritenour (Saturday 19th June, Beach stage), saxophonist Eric Marienthal, keyboardist Jeff Lorber and bass player Jimmy Haslip (all three sharing the Beach stage on Friday 18th June), while the headliners on the Jazz Royale stage on the Friday are The Brass Munkeys from the Phillipines, who are also appearing on the Beach Stage in the early evening on Saturday 19th June..

Well known Thai artists performing include Jazz DOJO, Crescendo and ETC. Appearing again this year is Noon from Japan, while newcomers to the event are Jack Lee Asianergy & Hye Mi from Korea.

We will publish the full schedule on our website (www.awolonline.net/hhlive.html) and in the paper as the festival approaches, and will of course keep everyone informed of any changes.

No turn on red

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

Some readers may have been frustrated recently at the town centre traffic lights if they have been used to being able to turn left on a red light. The lane marking changes made a couple of months ago have brought with them yellow signs in Thai at the two traffic light controlled junctions in question, stating that motorists can no longer turn left while these are red, although this has not stopped some drivers continuing to do so, nor eased the frustration expressed by out of town (or non-Thai speaking) drivers by sounding their horns at those obeying the law in front of them.

It would seem that this change has been made to hopefully make these crossings safer for both pedestrians and motorists, which can only be a good thing.

Do you wonder why we say certain things, or what they really mean? Each week we will examine a different word or phrase and tell you how it came about.

This week it is....Bangers and mash

As all Brits know, this refers to the meal of sausages and creamed, or mashed potatoes, and is a meal that can be found in may places in Hua Hin, including this section's sponsor. The term also has other slang meanings which we will delve into further down.

In conversation with a local restauranteur this week, the question was posed as to why sausages are referred to as Bangers? The mash part is obvious, being a shortening of mashed, so lets deal with one of Britain's most famous culinary exports, the humble sausage.

As far as we are able to ascertain, the first time we called sausages 'bangers' was just after World War I when quality food was less available. Sausages were made with cheap ingredients and high levels of water, which meant that they had a tendency to explode during cooking as the water turned to steam. 'Bangers' today are far less likely to explode.

However most cooks will still either prick the sausage before cooking, or boil them before grilling or frying; a number of dictionaries say this about bangers:

Bangers get their name from the sausage's predilection toward bursting or "banging" open during high frying temperatures. In fact, to avoid losing some of the sausage, bangers may be boiled first, and sliced lengthwise prior to frying or grilling.

There are a couple of slang meanings of bangers and mash as well, one printable, the other not, as it is a very odd sexual act. The printable one is: The contents of a well-used but badly flushed lavatory, the bangers being the turds and the mash being the toilet tissue. From Thomas the Tank Engine is an example -

"Cinders and ashes, Thomas, your coaches are a disgrace", cried the Fat Controller. "There's soot all over the windows, used tickets all over the floor and Clarabel's khazi is full of bangers and mash!"

As an aside, there was a bizarre 80's cartoon about a couple of schoolboy chimps, that had the dubious honour of having Chas and Dave pen the opening music and lyrics, as follows: "bangers and mash, bangers and mash them chimps are imps there aint no doubt, bangers and mash, bangers and mash there aint no missing it they keep on monkeying about, bangers and mash bangers and mash all they want to do is have some fun!"

Scarecrows 'to get police protection'

Scarecrows may be given police protection in a bid to stop them being stolen and vandalised.

Attacks on scarecrows in Crosby-on-Eden, Cumbria, have increased and three (Mary Poppins, a clown and a woodcutter in case you were even vaguely interested) were stolen from a charity festival.

'Next year, I will ask police to patrol the village,' said organiser Dianne Hampson.

Man convicted of shooting himself in the groin

A man in Colorado has been convicted of shooting himself in the groin - despite insisting that he was actually trying to shoot a mugger.

David Leroy Blurton was convicted of illegal discharge of a firearm and an offence called 'prohibited use of a weapon — drunk with a gun' after investigators said that there was no evidence to back up his claims that he'd been attacked.

50-year-old Blurton claimed that someone had hit him on the back of the head, and that he was trying to defend himself, after he shot himself in the groin in a grocery store car park in Dillon, Colorado last year.

Prosecutors said that Blurton had been drinking at the time.

■ BEIJING, CHINA

Man stuck in mud 'too embarrassed to call for help'

A man who got stuck in river mud was so embarrassed that he didn't call for help for four hours - even though he had a mobile phone.

Xiao Chen got into difficulties when he decided to go for a swim in the Chang Jiang River late at night. The 25-year-old approached what he believed was the edge of the river, only to find that he was sinking up to his waist in silt.

Even though he had a mobile phone on him, Xiao was so embarrassed by his predicament that didn't call for help for four hours, before finally giving up on his attempts to free himself and asking two passing fishermen for help.

It then took emergency services a further seven hours to actually get him free.

Their task was made more difficult due to further embarrassment on Xiao's part - despite the fact that a crew of firemen all stripped down to their underwear to help in the rescue, he refused to undo his own trousers so that he could be more easily pulled free from the mud.

AN EYE FOR AN EYE...

A U.S. army platoon was marching north of Fallujah when they came upon an Iraqi insurgent, badly injured and unconscious on the left-hand side of the road.

On the right-hand side was a British soldier in a similar, but less serious state. The Brit was conscious and alert. As first aid was given to both men, the American platoon leader asked the injured soldier what had happened.

The soldier reported: "I was recce-ing the highway here when suddenly, coming towards me from the south was a heavily-armed insurgent. We saw each other and both took cover in the ditches along the road.

"I yelled to him that Saddam Hussein had been a miserable, lowlife scumbag who'd got what he deserved. The insurgent yelled back that Gordon Brown is a fat, useless, lying, one-eyed porridge wog. And furthermore, Lord Mandelson is a pillow-biting gay queen!

"So I said that Osama Bin Laden dresses and ponces about like a frigid, hatchet-faced lesbian.

He retaliated by saying that so does Harriet Harman.

"And, there we were – in the middle of the road – shaking hands, when the bloody bus hit us."

EARLY RETIREMENT

The Army found they had too many personnel and decided to offer an early retirement bonus. They promised any one who volunteered for retirement a bonus of £1,000 for every inch measured in a straight line between any two points in his body. The officer got to choose what those two points would be.

The first officer who accepted asked that he be measured from the top of his head to the tip of his toes. He was measured at six feet and walked out with a bonus of £72,000.

The second officer who accepted was a little smarter and asked to be measured from the tip of his outstretched hands to his toes. He walked out with £96,000.

The third one was a non-commissioned officer, a grizzled old Sergeant Major who, when asked where he would like to be measured replied, 'From the tip of my todger to my testicles.' It was suggested by the pension man that he might want to reconsider; explaining about the nice big cheques the previous two officers had received. But the old Sergeant Major insisted and they decided to go along with him providing the measurement was taken by a medical officer.

The medical officer arrived and instructed the Sergeant Major to 'drop 'em,' which he did. The medical officer placed the tape measure on the tip of the Sergeant Major's todger and began to work back. Dear Lord!' he suddenly exclaimed, 'Where are your testicles?'

The old Sergeant Major replied,..... ' Basra .'

Your STARS with The Sage Monkey

brought to you by my.opera.com/bentrein

The UK election last week was a perfect opportunity for Spanky to test his predictive powers, and it should come as no surprise that he was right on the money; well, at least we think he was, because when we asked him about the likely make up of Parliament and which politicians would be there, his response was that they should all be hung. Many predicted that the Education Minister would not get re-elected as well but his reply was equally pinpoint, when he said "Balls". He has also been busy studying the stars for clues as to who will win the FA Cup this year, and has come up with the stunning revelation that a team who normally play in Blue will win it! Quite remarkable predictions really, so read on to get equally specific futures...

Your Problems SOLVED

Relationship woes?
Bar girl blues?
Sexual deviant?
Send your problem to Mary Ann Cotton on submissions@awolonline.net

Mary Ann's teenage daughter has once again been thrown in to replace her booze sodden mother to answer this week's problem...

■ DEAR MARY,
I work in the rice fields of Isaan, as do my whole family. As a single parent I like to take my son on rallies to listen to that lovely Mr Thaksin and my favourite colour is red. The thing is, there's a man I met the last time I was in Bangkok who I find very attractive. The only problem is, he has told me that he thinks the army should be sent in to deal with the protests in Bangkok and that the peasants should go back to their hovels. Do you think I should attempt pursue any form of relationship with this person? After all he does have a very nice bottom.
Apple, Nong Khai.

Dear Apple,
Last week, my teacher bought in some eggs and put them in a special box with a lamp called an 'incubator'. Every day we watched the eggs and they sat there doing nothing. Then one day, during silent reading, Sharon Eccles noticed that one of the eggs was moving. We watched and watched and eventually a little beak appeared. Then a slimy little yellow face started to poke its way out of the shell, until eventually a fluffy baby chick appeared and said 'cheep'. We were all really excited and we named the chick 'Mr Chirpy'. Our teacher said that we could all go outside and dig for worms to feed to Mr Chirpy. While we were finding Mr Chirpy's dinner, Philip Walker decided to see if Mr Chirpy wanted to make friends with our class goldfish. Unfortunately, it turned out that Mr Chirpy wasn't able to breathe under water and he died before any formal introductions could be made. Our teacher explained that chicks and goldfish simply aren't meant to be friends, and Philip Walker had to go home early. If I were you, I'd just accept the fact that, in the same way as goldfish and baby chickens, some people are not meant to be friends. The best thing would be to forget all about this man before one of you winds up dead in a waste-paper basket.
Hope that helps!

SUSADKORN - Fusing the Folk and Contemporary Theatre

At Vic Hua Hin, when the rhythmic drumbeats of Eclipse recede on 8 May, the new Thai musical Sudsakorn will take the stage on every Saturday evening from 15 May to 12 June.

Patravadi Theatre's Sudsakorn, under Jitti Chompee's choreography and direction, is a Thai musical theatre that refreshes folk theatre likay into a contemporary visual, music and dance spectacle on the famous Thai story.

Sudsakorn is based on an epic poem Phra Aphai Mani, written Thailand's most well known poet Sunthorn Phu. The title character, the son of the mermaid, is sent on a magical quest to find his father. With his magic dragon horse he goes on an adventure that changes his life forever.

A likay musical presented in the form of contemporary dance and theatre, Sudsakorn is a co-creation among various artists and performers, a journey to explore new ways to present and perform.

To Jitti, many likay performances nowadays adhere too strictly to traditional tunes and the players rarely play and improvise enough with their voice. And this fear to play with, and to break the rules, is also commonplace with many Thai performers and artists. On receiving the invitation from Patravadi Mejudhon to direct Sudsakorn, Jitti Chompee decided to make some bold moves on various aspects of the production.

For the music of Sudsakorn, instead of using traditional Thai music that accompanies likay theatre, Jitti invites Music Director Suriya Phuengthongthai, who doubles as pianist during the performances, to compose original tunes in various western music styles. The performers, however, are to interpret Sunthorn Phu's original words in the spirit of likay, hence a contrast that give the traditional form a facelift.

The choreography, instead of a set of movements dictated by the choreographer, is one that tailor-made by Jitti Chompee to highlight the diverse talents of performers with backgrounds in likay, acrobatics, latin dance and physical theatre.

On the visuals of the production, Jitti invites painter Tweeksak Wangrangsisatit to work on live painting and projection as an interactive backdrop for the fantasy adventure.

The FA Cup Final
Chelsea v Portsmouth, 21:00

Chelsea Have never won the double of League and Cup, and surely there has been no better opportunity than this time. Portsmouth have had a dramatic, traumatic season and for many of their players this may well be both their last game for the club and their last chance at a Cup Winners medal, and while on paper they should lose, there are a whole load of pointers suggesting an upset. To start with Avram Grant will have a point to prove and will have a very good idea of the strengths and weaknesses of thier opponents, while many of the Chelsea squad may have their minds on the upcoming World Cup, and possibly be less committed in the challenge. Both teams have been in recent good form and while it seems foolish to suggest that the free scoring London outfit will lose, we think that is exactly what will happen.

Redknapp Award Investigated By Police

■ LONDON, ENGLAND

Harry "Dodgy Geezer" Redknapp's manager of the year award is to be investigated by the fraud squad following allegations that for the second year running the rightful recipient had missed out. Roy Hodgson, manager of Fulham, has again missed out, prompting cries of foul play.

Hodgson, manager of the only English club side to reach a European final this year, has yet again been treated badly. Redknapp, managing a club with a bigger budget, has been dogged by allegations of financial irregularities, which he has strenuously denied.

Fulham spokesman Tony Bunsen said "What does Roy have to do? He should have got the award last year, now he does even better this year and still nothing. It all seems a bit strange to me."

Detective Inspector Wally Hammond, leading the investigation, expects to interview all those involved in selecting Redknapp, unless he gets an envelope full of cash very soon. Tottenham spokesman Larry Lasagna said "We have done nothing wrong. Harry assures me that the award is legitimate. He has also sold me a really nice Cortina, with very little on the clock."

Fulham are expected to just suffer in silence yet again. Redknapp is expected to make as much money as possible from the award.

Liverpool Offer To Form Coalition Premiership Winning Team With Manchester United

■ LIVERPOOL, ENGLAND

Rafa Benitez is said to be in discussion with Sir Alex Ferguson about forming a coalition Premiership team in a bid to squeeze out Chelsea. The two red teams plan to share their points and the title. Rumours are that the Liverpool manager will be offered a seat on the bench and that Fernando Torres and Steven Gerrard will be given prominent positions in the team.

The FA have admitted that there is no rule preventing such a coalition from being formed. Spokesman Justin Timberlake said "We never thought any of the teams would try it, so we didn't bother writing a rule about it. Well, we can't cover everything can we?"

Chelsea are said to be furious about the proposed coalition. John Terry said "The football season cannot end in such confusion. In football there must be a winner and a loser. You cannot just join together and pretend that you have won. Sir Alex Ferguson is just desperate to cling on to power. He will stop at nothing."
