Murder in Hua Hin

Englishman beaten and stabbed; two arrested

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

Hua Hin police arrested two people on Monday (26th July) in connection with the murder of an expatriate Englishman, Raymond John Hyde. The arrests took place around 5pm on Monday and represents very quick work by the police, as Mr Hyde's body was only discovered at around 10am that day.

Initial reports in the Thai press said that Mr Hyde's wife, Bunak, had left him asleep in their house to go to the local market, only to discover him slain on her return. Mr Hyde, 68, was found with multiple stab wounds and had been struck on his head with a heavy implement.

Later reports stated that after questioning Bunak, 38 (or 32 depending on the report), Raymond's wife of ten years, at Hua Hin police station (above) Thai police arrested both her and another man, Thanagorn Budsasa (Lek), 33, who is said to be her boyfriend of four months. The story apparently told by Mrs Hyde was that her husband regularly beat and abused her, and that she told Lek about this, who then told her brother, Komkit Imnoei (Don), 26.

According to the reports, Lek told police that he and Don made a plan to go and frighten Mr Hyde, while his sister was out of the house, and that he gave Don a piece of wood and a knife and waited outside on a motorbike while the brother entered the house in Khao Noi Village, near the Klong Road north west of the town. Lek then apparently took Don to a main road where they headed off in different directions. Lek claims that he did not know that Don had killed Mr Hyde. Mrs Hyde claims that she did not know about this plan. The police are still looking for the brother.

AWOL would like to extend our sympathies to Mr Hyde's family and friends at this time.

Avalon Gone Bust?

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

AWOL has not been able to get any official confirmation, but there are strong indications that Avoran Concepts, the company behind the Avalon projects in the Hua Hin vicinity, have ceased trading. All the websites connected with the company have a message stating that they are currently 'down for maintenance' and attempts to call or email the company are unsuccessful. Some reports are suggesting that Graham Kane and Dinkie Hendrikse, two of the main men behind the company, have gone and taken all service funds relating to properties on Avalon 1 and Summerland estates, however AWOL has not been able to confirm this.

We would advise that anyone with any money committed to any of their projects who will be affected by this to make immediate enquiries as to the status of the company, and for anyone who knows owners or buyers currently overseas to try and get in contact with them, to allow them to make any necessary arrangements. Many of the Avalon projects were aimed at people buying holiday homes so it is likely that this news will be missed by many of the people who have already bought, or are in the process of buying Avalon related properties. Given that some of these properties are still being marketed it is important that people can make an informed decision.

Do you wonder why we say certain things, or what they really mean? Each week we will examine a different word or phrase and tell you how it came about.

This week it is.. Handbags (at ten paces)

A confrontation which is histrionic but which doesn't involve physical violence. Such confrontations are also called handbag situations.

This British phrase might sound odd to anyone who is not familiar with the earlier pistols at ten paces, which relates to dueling. That phrase, and its counterpart pistols at dawn, were the stating of the arrangements that preceded duels. Such duels were dangerous and duelists were often killed, although the 'pistols' phrases owe more to Hollywood than historical record.

The handbags at ten paces and handbags at dawn versions began to be used in the 1980s to describe confrontations between players in football matches. Professional footballers know they will be sent off if they hit another player, so emotion has to be expressed via posturing, facial grimacing and verbal abuse. The implication carried by the phrases was that, although a great deal of preamble to violence was shown, the actual confrontations were in the nature of 'I'll scratch your eyes out' cat-fights. These were typified by the many high-profile matches between Manchester United and Arsenal in the years around the turn of the millennium. These matches were usually highly charged as they often had a decisive effect on the outcome of the Premiership championship. This, coupled with the fact that many of the players had reputations for violent play but didn't want to risk getting sent off, lead to several handbags at ten paces incidents.

The football manager and later commentator, Ron Atkinson, was fond of using this phrase, often shortened just to handbags. He invented several somewhat surreal footballing terms, so he may well have coined this too, although I can't find any record confirming that.

The earliest record found of the term in print is from a piece headed Who said what in the world of sport in 1986, in The Times 1 January 1987:

"It was a case of handbags at three paces."

Clearly, the precise number of paces isn't significant but, for the tidy minded, the first record of the ten paces variant is from a report of a football game in The Sunday Times, September 1993, headed Leeds win out in battle of the brawlers:

"Kamara was booked for arguing before the referee took four names in as many minutes: Ward and Wallace for handbags at 10 paces, Deane for a hideous foul on Cowan..."

Why handbags? Well, as well as the obvious effeminate imagery, the phrase was coined when Margaret Thatcher was Prime Minister. She was said to give ministers who she saw as slackers a 'good handbagging', i.e. a verbal dressing down.

It may also have been influenced by the Monty Python sketch - The Batley Townswomens' Guild presents the Battle of Pearl Harbor, in which the Python team, dressed as women, recreate the battle by flailing at each other with handbags.

The more recent (mid-1990s) term handbag house also calls on handbag imagery. House is a form of electronic dance music that is often relentless and uncompromising. Handbag house is a variant that has catchy tunes and wider popular appeal and as such is derided by clubbing aficionados. The allusion is to women dancing in groups around their handbags.

Pub fan breaks three world records for flipping beer mats

Fast-fingered Dean Gould is celebrating after smashing three world records for flipping beer mats.

The 45-year-old from Felixstowe, Suffolk, flipped 800 in just 41 seconds and also broke two other records at the Wiremill in Lingfield, Surrey, to mark Proud of Pubs week.

Dean adds three records to his previous tally of 13 Guinness World Record entries, which include licking and sticking 235 stamps to envelopes in five minutes.

He also holds the record for catching 341 one penny coins from his elbow and eating 113 sweetcorn kernels with a cocktail stick in three minutes.

He said of the pub feat: 'It was a wonderful atmosphere in the pub and people really enjoyed the day.'

■ JENOLAN CAVES, AUSTRALIA

Cave tours now offered in Klingon

Tourists in Australia can now have cave tours in Klingon, after the managers decided to build on the fact that a Star Trek spacecraft was named after them.

Currently a self-guided audio tour at the caves in the Blue Mountains is offered in eight languages, but staff came up with the idea of adding the fictional Klingon language, as the caves once featured in the popular TV series.

'In the Star Trek universe, Jenolan Caves was first immortalized in the Next Generation episode 'Relics,' through the naming of a 'Sydney Class' Starship - the USS Jenolan,' the Jenolan Caves Reserve Trust said in a statement. 'Now, this relationship will be developed further, when Jenolan Caves adds the language of Star Trek's great warrior race to a tour of their most popular cave.'

The Jenolan cave system, located just over 100 miles west of Sydney, is enormous with over 25 miles of passages and incorporating caves, underground rivers and natural archways. The Klingon tour has been set up for the Nettle Cave, which attracts up to 200,000 visitors a year, and will start on August 22.

Jenolan Caves guide Gordon Mills said Klingon language experts Michael Roney Jr and Tracy Canfield earlier this month flew in from the United States to record the audio tour.

'We wanted to do something a bit obscure and we will now be the first tourist attraction on this planet at least to have a Klingon tour,' Mills, a self-described Star Trek enthusiast, told Reuters.

'There is a fantasy side to caves and a timeless nature, rather like Star Trek, so we thought this was fitting.'

A SENSITIVE MAN

The room was full of pregnant women and their partners. The class was in full swing. The instructor was teaching the women how to breathe properly and was telling the men how to give the necessary assurance to their partners at this stage of the pregnancy. She said, "Ladies, remember that exercise is good for you. Walking is especially beneficial. It strengthens the pelvic muscles and will make delivery that much easier!" Just take several stops and stay on a soft surface like grass or a path.

She looked at the men in the room, "And gentlemen, Remember -- you're in this together --- it wouldn't hurt you to go walking with her."

The room suddenly got very quiet as the men absorbed this information. Then a man at the back of the room slowly raised his hand. "Yes?" answered the teacher.

"I was just wondering. Is it alright if she carries a golf bag while we walk?"

HITCHHIKER

A salesman is driving toward home in Northern Arizona when he sees a Navajo man hitchhiking. Because the trip had been long and quiet, he stops the car and the Navajo man climbs in.

During their small talk, the Navajo man glances surreptitiously at a brown bag on the front seat between them.

"If you're wondering what's in the bag," offers the salesman, "it's a bottle of wine. I got it for my wife."

The Navajo man is silent for awhile, nods several times and says, "Good trade."

LATE FOR WORK

Jones came into the office an hour late for the third time in one week and found the boss waiting for him. "What's the story this time, Jones?" he asked sarcastically. "Let's hear a good excuse for a change."

Jones sighed, "Everything went wrong this morning, Boss. The wife decided to drive me to the station. She got ready in ten minutes, but then the drawbridge got stuck. Rather than let you down, I swam across the river -- look, my suit's still damp -- ran out to the airport, got a ride on Mr. Thompson's helicopter, landed on top of the Hilton, and was carried here piggyback by the General Manager."

"You'll have to do better than that, Jones," said the boss, obviously disappointed.

"No woman can get ready in ten minutes."

NEW DRIVER

Martin had just received his brand new drivers license. The family troops out to the driveway, and climbs in the car, where he is going to take them for a ride for the first time. Dad immediately heads for the back seat, directly behind the newly minted driver.

"I'll bet you're back there to get a change of scenery after all those months of sitting in the front passenger seat teaching me how to drive," says the beaming boy to his father.

"Nope," comes dad's reply, "I'm gonna sit here and kick the back of your seat as you drive, just like you've been doing to me all these years."

You'll learn too late that love and deception often go hand in hand when the eloquent stranger sending you love letters turns out not to be the real Sarah Vowell.

Virgo Aug 23 – Sep 22
The flame of true love finally gutters and dies in your soul, but take heart: The flame of too many adaptors plugged into one outlet still burns brightly in your home.

Libra Sep 23 – Oct 23
Nothing will seem sadder to you than the sight of the hooks that once held her picture, but there's absolutely nothing else in the room to stare at for hours on end.

Scorpio Oct 24 – Nov 21
When you were a child, you spoke as a child, you understood as a child, and you thought as a child; so no real changes, then.

Sagittarius Nov 22 – Dec 21
Your lifelong search for a soul mate will come to an end at last when you discover it was Robert Kearns, inventor of the intermittent windshield wiper, who died in 2005.

Your Problems SOLVED

■ DEAR MARY,
The other day, my young boyfriend asked me if I would talk dirty to him during our lovemaking sessions as apparently he would find this a huge turn on. Being rather shy, I am extremely embarrassed at the prospect and would much prefer to remain silent, but he's pretty insistent. So I was thinking of maybe starting off with something along the lines of 'I'm going to rub dog dirt all over your fat stomach' and then maybe lead into 'your farts smell worse than a decomposing corpse, you filthy slave of Satan'. Does that sound about right?
Rev John MacDonald
Bangkok

Dear Reverend John,
While I am no Bible basher, I really think you need to turn to something akin to the good book for inspiration. There are many passages that can be lifted and used in these sorts of situation that men of the cloth find themselves in. An alternative tome to refer to would be 'Roger's Profanisaurus' and here are a few suggested phrases to get your boy going:
"I'm going to be your chutney farmer and chuck my muck all over your chutney locker";
"Your barking spider is going to get a right good seeing to from my blue-veined custard chucker";
" I hope your ready for me, as I will be bowling from the Pavilion End".
For full translations of these phrases I suggest you visit www.milkinfirst.com which has an extended version of the Profanisaurus, a vital aid to talking dirty in the modern age.

Reds Joy At Cole Capture

Fans draw lots to see who will rob new stars' house

■ LIVERPOOL, ENGLAND

Liverpool fans have celebrated the signing of England's Joe Cole by drawing lots to see who will be the first lucky person to rob his house during an away game.

Cole, who signed a four-year contract after eating several Wurther's Originals given to him by new manager Roy Hodgson, is said to be excited by the opportunity to test the most up to date security systems money can buy.

He told reporters, "I've come here for the challenge. I could have stayed in London and picked up my wages knowing that my house would barely even get a passing look. But I've come here to test my security systems against the best burglars in the business - and what better place to do that than Liverpool?"

"I'm confident in my ability to secure my property, and I expect to prove the manager right by repeatedly showing that ability over the next four years."

There has been delight around Anfield at the capture of Cole, a player who has ignited the imagination among all fans, both young and old.

As one fan put it, "This is a great signing for Liverpool, a real marquee signing. He'll be bringing with him lots of fancy London gadgets which will be worth an absolute fortune on the black market. He's bound to have a Bentley with them snazzy hubcaps too."

"After the dark days of Rafa Benitez who seemed to only buy players whose houses were filled with straw donkeys, this is a new dawn. A new dawn filled with lots of stuff with significant resale value."

"Now, when is Liverpool's next away game again?"

Alonso: My greatest fixed F1 victory so far

■ MARANELLO, ITALY

Ferrari driver Fernando Alonso last night hailed his Formula One victory at Hockenheim as the greatest fixed result of his career, far outshining his manufactured victory for Renault in the 2008 season.

Alonso told reporters after the race, "This is a great day for me in my career. The fixed victory for Renault at Singapore in 2008 has hung over me for more than two years as the prime example of me benefiting from a team that cheats. But now we have another tainted victory, in the red of Ferrari, which will finally put the Renault incident to bed once and for all. I am delighted that in the future when when people talk about cheating your way to a race victory they will picture Fernando Alonso in the red of the Scuderia Ferrari rather than Alonso in the overalls of Renault. It is where this team needs to be."

Alonso won after Ferrari's other driver Felipe Massa slowed to let him past following a coded instruction on his radio that was so discreet it was deciphered by every single member of the viewing public, even those who did not speak English. Unfortunately, the rules of Formula One strictly prohibit team orders, in the sense of the word 'strictly' that means someone shakes a fist at you and takes your pocket money as punishment, and so Ferrari were fined $100,000 with the race result standing.

A Ferrari spokesperson said, "$100,000 seems fair. So we've already set aside the $800,000 needed to allows us to fix the remainder of the races so that Alonso can have the best chance of winning the title."
