SHOWING SUPPORT

EXPATS CONDEMN UNACCEPTABLE VIOLENT ATTACK ON LOCAL BAR OWNER

HUA HIN THAILAND Last Saturday, 29th January, a gathering of local expats, bar owners and friends congregated at the Railway Tavern in Soi 88 to show their support for the owner Karl, his girlfriend Eye, and a Canadian tourist Rick, who had been subjected to a brutal assault the previous Monday (24th January). A legal process is underway to deal with the guilty party, with the arrest and charging of another expat and former bar owner, who cannot be named at this time.

Karl suffered a broken arm which will require extensive surgery to both implant and later remove a metal plate, while Eye is going to need specialist orthodental work to repair damage to her teeth as well as suffering bruises and abrasions. Rick, who had come to Thailand for a diving holiday which he is now unable to take part in due to his injuries, has a severely lacerated arm and two broken toes, suffered as he attempted to help Karl and Eye.

At least sixty people arrived during Saturday afternoon to both show their support for the injured parties (pictured), as well as to condemn the behaviour that led to them. (more photos on page 2)

RAILWAY CROSSING TRAGEDY

PEDESTRIAN TOURIST KILLED ON SOI 94

■ HUA HIN THAILAND Last Saturday night yet another life was lost at a Hua Hin railway crossing, this time a Canadian tourist crossing the railway on foot at Soi 94 just after his girlfriend had done so. According to reports they had just been dining at the Khun Oy restaurant near the crossing with two others, who had left before them. None of those involved have yet been named, but apparently the couple then walked towards the crossing, and the victim's girlfriend went ahead and crossed the tracks. It is not known whether they were aware of an approaching train, and as that crossing is one of several unguarded and unmanned crossings, it is possible that they were not. Apparently the man then went on to the tracks but then froze as he realised the train was almost upon him, and was killed instantly.

This incident follows the death of an expat late last year on another unguarded crossing in his car. These two recent incidents, along with countless others must surely bring into question the policy of these unguarded crossings, as well as the speed at which trains travel through the area. Obviously anyone crossing should be extremely cautious but other steps should be taken by the railway or local authority to try and prevent any more such incidents.

■ LONDON, ENGLAND Lie back and think of England with Royal Wedding condoms

You've got the commemorative plates and tea towels - now get your hands on the Crown Jewels with Prince-William-and-Kate-Middleton-themed prophylactics.

'Like a Royal Wedding, intercourse with a loved one is an unforgettable occasion', so reads the back of this deluxe box of regal condoms.

Crown Jewels believe that the amorous air brought about by the joyous union of Wills and Kate this spring has left a gap in the market for royal-themed birth control.

Describing themselves as 'the world's leading supplier of heritage prophylactics' the company have already shifted more than 1,000 units on their website since launching yesterday.

Lavishly anointed with lube and ribbed for enhanced lovemaking, the royal sheaths allow the wearer to live like a king for a day (a few minutes).

Don't get too excited though, the condoms don't actually work.

The Crown Jewels condoms carry a disclaimer advising would-be lovers they are designed as a souvenir and are not suitable for... well... doing what they're supposed to.

'Sadly, the disclaimer was required for legal reasons,' company spokesperson Hugh Pomfret said.

'But since our prophylactics are designed as an heirloom product, we would encourage people to keep hold of them as a memento of a special national occasion.

'They are of course welcome to enjoy the supple latex and gliding lubrication of our products, but we are required to advise that they are not suitable to prevent STDs or pregnancy.'

■ WARSAW, POLAND Man saved from freezing to death 'because he was so drunk'

Aleksander Andrzej was saved from freezing in temperatures of -5C (23F) as he lay on a park bench in his underwear...because of the amount of alcohol in his blood.

Aleksander, 32, was spotted in the Warsaw park and taken to hospital by police. A breath test showed he had 1,024 micrograms per 100ml, which doctors believe helped him live. The legal limit is 35mg – and they added that even 300mg is potentially deadly.

He is expected to make a full recovery.

■ Do you wonder why we say certain things, or what they really mean? Each week we will examine a different word or phrase and tell you how it came about.

This week it is.. Ring a ring o'roses, a pocketful of posies, atishoo, atishoo, all fall down

Verse from a nursery rhyme.

There are many versions of this rhyme, some of which use entirely different words to the roses/rosy variants. It is often suggested that the rhyme relates to the symptoms of plague, specifically the Black Death - the bubonic plague that spread through Europe in the 1340s, or to the Great Plague of London, 1665/6. The plausible-sounding theory has it that the 'ring' was the ring of sores around the mouths of plague victims, who subsequently sneezed and fell down dead.

Etymologists will normally say that the plague theory is a well-known falsehood, for these reasons:

1. The first appearance of the rhyme in print is in Kate Greenaway's Mother Goose, not published until 1881, suggesting that the rhyme originated far too late for the Great Plague to have been the origin.

2. The 'atishoo, atishoo, all fall down' lyric isn't present in many of the the numerous versions and neither soreness about the mouth nor sneezing tally with the actual symptoms of people suffering from bubonic plague.

3. Noted folklorists of childhood Iona and Peter Opie have reported that the plague theory didn't appear until the 1950s. If the theory were true then we would expect to see it in circulation much sooner than that.

Despite this, some of the refutations of the plague theory are rather too emphatic in their rejection of this idea. Let's look at those items of evidence in turn:

Firstly, the 1881 date that is part of the refutations is a little misleading; it is the first known printing of the complete rhyme, but the game and the 'ring a ring of rosies' line were known well before that. The game and the rhyme were known in the USA, and quite probably elsewhere, by 1855, when it was included in The Old Homestead, a novel by Ann S. Stephens. This depicts children playing 'Ring, ring a rosy' in New York.

William Wells Newell, the author of Games and Songs of American Children, 1884, wrote that Ring a Ring a Rosie, with the familiar tune, was in use by children in Bedford, Massachusetts, circa 1790 although he didn't supply documentary evidence for his assertion.

The argument that the lyric couldn't have lasted in common playground parlance without being recorded in print from the days of the Black Death in the 1340s until 1881 has some weight. However it could have lain unrecorded between the Great Plague of 1665 and 1790 - many phrases have lain dormant for longer than that. Children's rhymes would have been of little interest to authors in the 17th century and printing was then still an expensive process. There's no evidence to suggest that these lines originated as anything other than a children's rhyme and would inevitably have been known to children for some time before appearing in print. How long is open to conjecture, but 125 years - well, why not?

Secondly, coughing, sneezing and bright red sputum are symptoms of pneumonic plague, which has just as good a claim to be the rhyme's origin as does bubonic plague.

Thirdly, the Opies only claim that they haven't found evidence of the plague theory from before the 1950s; they don't know when it actually originated.

So, there is some doubt. However, showing that something is possible doesn't make it true. An alternative and more probable explanation, and one which is almost always the case with nursery rhymes, is that the words are playful nonsense.

The plague derivation is indeed unlikely but, in their haste to denounce an apparent fallacy, several websites have begged the question by swallowing the assertion that 'the first time the phrase appears in print is 1881' as fact.

TAT eyes long-stay tourists

The Tourism Authority of Thailand's (TAT) Phetchaburi office is emphasising Cha-am and Hua Hin as destinations for international long-stay tourists, especially those from Europe.

Nongnit Tengmaneevwan, the office's director, said long-stay tourists have gradually increased in both destinations, leading it to promotions for retirees.

In the past, most tourist arrivals to Cha-am and Hua Hin were locals, with 770,000 visiting the two beach resort cities in 2010, 70% of the total. International tourists to these two cities in 2010 totalled 300,000, with half the long-stay visitors coming from Europe where the length of stay was between two weeks and six months.

A campaign to attract international long-stay tourists with local cultural events was launched last October and will run to March this year.

Thiva Kesavan, the general manager of Alila Cha-am Thailand, said the two towns still have room for growth in the tourism industry as competition in the province remains thin and the towns are not too far from Bangkok.

The hotel suffered in its first year of operation in 2008, with an occupancy rate of only 30%. Emphasising the domestic market it raised the average occupancy rate in 2010 to 55%.

The ratio of international to domestic guests changed from 70:30 in 2008 to 40:60 in 2010. In 2011, the industry aims to achieve an occupancy rate of 60%.

Mr Thiva said Cha-am and Hun Hin grew after the tsunami devastated the island province of Phuket and other provinces in 2004.

Alila expects its market share in the two towns to rise from 5% last year to 15% this year.

■ ROYAL WEDDING Prince William's Stag party is going to be a pretty weird night, I mean imagine stuffing pictures of your granny into a lapdancer's knickers!

■ VASELINE A man doing market research for the Vaseline Company knocked at the door of a married quarter and was greeted by a young woman with three small children running around at her feet. "I'm doing some research for Vaseline. Have you ever used the product?"
She said, "Yes. My husband and I use it all the time."
"If you don't mind my asking," he said, "what do you use it for?"
"We use it for sex," she said.
The researcher was a little taken aback. "Usually people lie to me and say they use it on a child's bicycle chain or to help with a gate hinge. But, in fact, I know that most people do use it for sex. I admire you for your honesty. Since you've been so frank so far, can you tell me exactly HOW you use it for sex?"
The woman said, "I don't mind telling you at all.
My husband and I put it on the doorknob and it keeps the kids out."

■ SCHOOL My son is starting school soon and thinks the other children will pick on him because of his name. I said, "Don't be silly, Someoneyourownsize, why would anyone pick on you?"

■ SOMETHING FOR THE LADIES New social networking site for Saudi women has started up...
Cover-Your-Facebook

■ SHOPPING When I was a kid, my mother would send me down to the local shop with two shillings (10p) and I'd come back with five pounds of potatoes, two loaves of bread, three pints of milk, a pound of cheese, a packet of tea, and half a dozen eggs.
You can't do that now.
Too many bloody security cameras.

■ OLD AGE As we get older we sometimes begin to doubt our ability to "make a difference" in the world. It is at these times that our hopes are boosted by the remarkable achievements of other "seniors" who have found the courage to take on challenges that would make many of us wither. Harold Schlumberg is such a person:
Quote from Harold: "I've often been asked,'What do you old folks do now that you're retired?' Well...I'm fortunate to have a chemical engineering background and one of the things I enjoy most is converting beer, wine and whisky into urine. I do it every day and I really enjoy it."
Harold should be an inspiration to us all.

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

To your vast surprise and that of marine biologists worldwide, you'll discover you play a vital role in the 30-year mating cycle of the limpet shark.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

There is no medical proof that chemical castration helps to prevent serial double-parking, but where you're concerned, the traffic court isn't taking any chances.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

There will be little change in your uneventful life this week, which is too bad considering you've been hanging from those manacles for decades now.

ARIES MAR 21 – APR 20

When choosing a pet this week, make sure it's one your friends approve of, as it'll outlive you by at least a dozen years.

TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

You'll agonize at length over being forced to choose between two beautiful women, giving them time to formulate and execute an escape plan.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

You'll enter the record books in style, better than tripling Roy Sullivan's old mark of being struck by lightning an amazing seven times.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22

Although circumstances will force you to take a menial job requiring a nametag, it will not lead to anyone knowing your name.

LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

Although you've always worried about dying alone and unloved, rest easy: A tragic mix-up at the pheromone lab will lead to your being loved to death by nine separate species.

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

Maybe in your next life, you'll believe the Zodiac when it tells you to cut the red wire.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

You lack initiative, which means that you usually wait until someone yells "Get funky!" before you get funky.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

You will soon come to symbolize the world's cold and callous nature when your death is used to demonstrate the impact-resistant grill of the new Toyota hybrid.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

You never wondered what would happen if all those big glass skyscraper windows fell to the sidewalk at once, but you'll soon be able to satisfy the curiosity of those who have.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

SEND YOUR LETTERS TO SUBMISSIONS@AWOLONLINE.NET

DEAR AWOL,
I have recently moved to Hua Hin on a permanent basis, having spent several years making regular short trips.
I enjoy a variety of pursuits which are well catered for here, and one of those is playing pool (or billiards or snooker). I have dabbled in the local pool leagues, and while they are an enjoyable evening, I would actually like to play decent players on an individual basis a bit more than time allows in the team league matches.
Is there any sort of individual competitions running in the area?
The Potter.

AWOL SAYS: On any given night in town you will be able to find people to play against but it can be a hit and miss affair as to the quality of opposition. Dolphin Bar (ad on page 25) organises competitions, and Lucky Shot (ad page 28) is a good place to head for to find decent players as well.
AWOL is trying to start up an individuals pool ladder, where positions are determined by challenging those above you - win and you swap positions - and it is free to join. Just go to www.freeonlineleague.com/myleague/awolpoolladder to sign up, and once enough players have joined the fun can start.
Matches can be played on any day, at any time by agreement between the players, as long as a suitable venue (from a designated list) is available. Matches consist of five 8-ball and seven 9-ball racks, and a set of rules will be issued prior to the start of the competition. New players will be able to join after the start of the competition but will start on the bottom rung of the ladder. Challenges will only be allowed against players up to two places above, and if a challenge is not accepted and played within a week, the challenger automatically swaps positions with the challengee.
If you (or anyone else) is interested in joining either go to the website, or send AWOL an email for more information.
Once the ladder starts the standings will be printed every week in AWOL, and we anticipate each 'season' lasting about four months

FIXTURES AND PREDICTIONS

(all times Thailand)
SATURDAY, 5 FEBRUARY 2011
Stoke v Sunderland, 19:45
Very tough to seperate these two teams generally but we think home advantage will play its part, and a narrow home win.
Aston Villa v Fulham, 22:00
Fulham shocked Spurs in the Cup but they will find it more difficult against a Villa side who can now score goals. Home win.
Everton v Blackpool, 22:00
Everton are still in the relegation fight and their squad is looking a bit thin, while Blackpool are also at risk, they have brought in reinforcements and crucially held on to Charlie Adam. Shock away win.
Man City v West Brom, 22:00
Really can't see West Brom getting anything other than a tonking here as their open style of play will favour City.
Newcastle v Arsenal, 22:00
Life without Carroll continues for the Geordies and they will make it difficult for the Gunners. However there is just too much ability and goals in this Arsenal side which will get them an away win.
Tottenham v Bolton, 22:00
Neither of these clubs brought anyone significant in during the transfer window but they did try which we feel shows that they might fade as the season goes on. Spurs are without question the better side on paper but Bolton will defend doggedly. Draw.
Wigan v Blackburn, 22:00
Two teams in patchy form but the home team desperately needs the win. We think they will have to settle for another draw however.

SUNDAY, 6 FEBRUARY 2011
Wolverhampton v Man Utd, 00:30
Wolves will be up for this but United are in great form; it will still be pretty tight but an away win nonetheless.
West Ham v Birmingham, 20:30
The Hammers will be keen to avenge their Carling Cup semi final defeat and get some vital league points, but these are two closely matched teams. New signings by both have added to their striking options, but we think the home side can emerge victorious in what should be a cracking game.

Chelsea v Liverpool, 23:00
All eyes will be on this for the Torres factor as he plays against his former club immediately after signing for one of their fierce rivals. It is almost a given that he will score and be forever reviled by his former adoring fans, and Chelsea will go on to win this.

OH, FERNANDO!

CHELSEA SIGN TORRES AFTER WIFE PASSES EXHAUSTIVE JOHN TERRY MEDICAL

■ LONDON, ENGLAND

Chelsea completed the signing of Liverpool striker Fernando Torres in a £50 million deal after the Spanish hitman's wife Olalla passed a rigorous physical examination conducted by his new club captain John Terry.

The transfer was sealed after Terry had approved the new addition, having been given the kind of unlimited access to the World Cup winners betrothed that he has been recently offering to any Premier League marksman able to run faster than he can walk.

Chelsea chairman Bruce Buck confirmed that Torres was more than willing to break the one unbroken promise left available to him by forsaking not just his marriage vows but his wife's sanctity, in order to conclude the deal before the transfer window shut.

He told reporters, "Throughout this process Fernando has displayed

a real willingness to sacrifice the feelings of those closest to him, those to whom he had sworn his most sincere commitment and allegiance on an ongoing basis."

"No, not to the Liverpool fans, I mean to his wife, who had recently signed him to a life-long deal, only for him to submit her to an evening playing in the one position left to Terry that he can perform consistently well in."

The medical at the club's training ground boudoir is said to have gone smoothly, with club insiders insisting it was only ever a formality as Olalla is incredibly fit, and Terry has always had a thing about foreigners.

Buck said he felt it was this kind of selfless gesture from Torres that made him an ideal signing for the London club.

"His virtue-free behaviour immediately singled him out as a player who would quickly settle into a Chelsea team that believes moral fibre is a sort of breakfast cereal."

Buck went on to confirm that Chelsea might once again spend big in the summer, saying Terry has his eye on one or two new signings.

"He really likes the look of that brunette from The Saturdays, so don't be surprised to see us make another move for Wayne Bridge."
