BLAME IT ON 'THE GIRL'

COLD SPELLS, HOT FLUSHES AND UNEXPECTED WATERWORKS - THAT'S LA NIÑA!

■ HUA HIN THAILAND If you had been wondering what on earth was going on with the weather we have been having recently, don't blame it on the Japanese earthquake, climate change, carbon emissions or even the wrath of some deity; it is the phenomenon known as 'La Niña' according to meteorologists.

'La Niña' is Spanish for 'The Girl' and is the little sister of 'El Niño'; the latter is better known, and is a weather pattern characterized by unusually warm ocean temperatures in the Equatorial Pacific, while the sister is a weather pattern characterized by unusually cold ocean temperatures in the Equatorial Pacific. The temperature of water on the sea surface affects the global atmospheric temperature. It alters precipitation patterns in sub-tropical and tropical regions because of global weather patterns such as trade winds. Stronger trade winds bring increased warm, moist air into the affected regions, leading to more rain. It also affects temperatures, and while we have been having some very hot, humid days here in Hua Hin, there have also been some unexpected cold snaps.

This affect has been ongoing since the heavy rains last year, and is expected to last until April. For the Hua Hin area and Thailand it has actually relieved the anticipated drought to some extent, but it will play havoc with some of the agricultural activities here and in the rest of Thailand. The orchid industry is expected to suffer, while on the flip side of the coin the Thai sugar industry is expected to achieve record output levels; however rubber production has been hit hard and prices have been hitting all time highs. Of more local interest is the effect on the pineapple crop, and it seems as if 'La Niña' will be of great help there; Prachuap Khiri Khan is the main pineapple growing area in Thailand, and there were fears that a drought would seriously reduce the crops.

CALLING ALL AUSSIES!

■ KHAO TAKIAB, THAILAND

G'day to all Australian residents of the Hua Hin area, and tourists and visitors from the land down under. The only Australian owned bar, restaurant and guesthouse in the area is extending its warmest welcome to you for a Meet and Greet for the Australian community here.

The Beer O'Clock Club and Rumours restaurant on the main road through Khao Takiab is holding the event from 5pm on Friday 1st April, and you would be foolish to miss the free buffet and the offer of 10% off your drinks on production of your Australian passport!

The owner of the business is Torry Saunderson, who said, "There are plenty of places in the area which act as focal points for the various other foreign communities here, like the English, Irish, French and Scandinavian expats and visitors, and I want to establish the Beer O'Clock Club and Rumours as the place Aussies can come to for friendship, advice and banter with fellow countrymen, as well as a few coldies!"

The Beer O'Clock Club has a ten room guesthouse as well as bar with pool table and TVs showing live sports, and the adjacent Rumours restaurant was opened last year. There are regular events there with a 'Sausage Sizzle' every Tuesday from 5 - 9pm (free sizzle with every alcoholic drink purchased) and the Aussie Barbeque every Sunday afternoon from 2pm, great value at only 150 baht a serving.

See their adverts on this page and page 14 for contact details, plus there is a map on the latter page to help you locate them.

■ NEW YORK, USA Fashion worker sues for $1.2m over 'anguish' of depressing commute

Many people find travelling to and from work a chore, but one worker has taken things a step further and is suing over his depressing commute.

Thomas Horodecki, a manager at design house Elie Tahari's Saks Fifth Avenue store in New York, is demanding $2 million ($1.2 million) for the 'anguish' and 'depression' caused by his weekly commute through an unstylish area of New Jersey.

He claims his supervisor, Sagit Halperin, who is married to Tahari head designer Kobi Halperin, forced him to visit New Jersey every week as part of his role co-ordinating six retailers in the district.

'It was depressing driving to Jersey,'

Mr Horodecki said. 'New York City has everything when it comes to fashion, especially Saks. And when it comes to styling, let's just say Jersey is difficult. Fashion it is not!' He also complained about the smog, bad driving and traffic he had to endure on his commute.

Mr Horodecki alleges that he was 'banished' to the stores in New Jersey, while a number of Israeli women were promoted instead of him in Manhattan.

His lawyers, Michael Borrelli and Alexander Coleman, said it is 'outrageous to treat employees disparately based on their national origin and/or religion'.

According to UK organisation Safe Workers, a long and stressful commute to work can raise people's risk of developing depression, high blood pressure and flu, as well as increasing their anger levels.

■ LOS ANGELES, USA 30st sumo star Kelly Gneiting plans to swim Channel after running marathon
Sumo wrestler Kelly Gneiting has big plans for his big frame - saying he now wants to swim the English Channel after making it into the Guinness Book of Records for being the heaviest man to complete a marathon at 28st 13lbs.

Gneiting, who believes his latest challenge will be easy because he 'floats like a cork', ran the Los Angeles marathon in just under 10 hours at the weekend - dropping from 405lbs to 396lbs in weight during that time.

And afterwards the 40-year-old revealed he now wants to hike from the Dead Sea to Mount Everest - and swim the 21-mile Channel.

■ Do you wonder why we say certain things, or what they really mean? Each week we will examine a different word or phrase and tell you how it came about.

This week it is.. Without so much as a by your leave Without even asking for permission.

'Without so much as a by your leave' is an old phrase but is still often used when someone, who might have been expected to have asked permission first, is disapproved of for acting on their own authority. The expression began life in the early 19th century. The first mention found of a version in print is from The New-England Magazine Volume 3, September 1832:

The evil creature [a mosquito] ... lit upon my forehead. Already he had inserted his atrocious tube, and was drawing blood, without so much as the civility of By your leave.

An example of the precise current version came a few years later, in Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine, Volume 51, 1842:

"You [an itinerant peasant] have taken a place by our fire, without so much as a 'by your leave'".

This expression is an unusual example of a phrase made from two separate phrases. The form 'without so much as...' has been used since the 16th century to indicate that someone had failed to do something that they had been expected to do. For example, this piece from The Countesse of Pembrokes Arcadia, by Sir Philip Sidney, 1590:

Lifting his feete aboue his head, making a great deale of salt water to come out of his mouth, they layd him vpon some of their garments... At length, opening his eyes, he gaue a great groane... Hee (without so much as thanking them for their paines) gate vp. [got up]

Before we can decipher what 'without so much as a by your leave' means, we also need to understand 'by your leave'. Many people have made the common mistake of thinking it was 'without a by or leave', not really knowing what a 'by' or a 'leave' might be.

This is perhaps because the phrase 'by your leave' was commonly heard in 1950s swashbuckling 'tights and knights' B-feature movies, just as 'shiver me timbers' was drawled by yo-ho-ho screen pirates. Nevertheless, unlike that nautical expression, which was probably the invention of a landlubber author, 'by your leave' is an authentic mediaeval colloquial phrase. It derives simply from the mediaeval meaning of 'leave', i.e. 'permission'. To 'ask leave' of someone wasn't to request to depart their presence but to ask permission of them to do something and, as it would only be asked of someone who had the power to grant or bar such permission, it was often expressed as 'by your leave, sire'. That may be the association that has caused another misstated version of it, as 'by your liege'.

'Leave' has been used with the meaning of permission since at least the 9th century. It was still commonplace in Shakespeare's day and he used it numerous times in his plays, for example, in The Merchant of Venice, 1596: Shylock: I pray you give me leave to go from hence.

Very soon after that comes the first example of 'by your leave' that can be found in print, in Henry Buttes' Dyets drie dinner, 1599:

(by thy leaue) Ile be a Guest of thine.

■ THE REVEREND Francis Norton woke up Sunday morning and realizing it was an exceptionally beautiful and sunny early spring day, decided he just had to play golf. So... he told the Associate Pastor that he was feeling sick and convinced him to say Mass for him that day. As soon as the Associate Pastor left the room, Father Norton headed out of town to a golf course about forty miles away. This way he knew he wouldn't accidentally meet anyone he knew from his parish.

Setting up on the first tee, he was alone. After all, it was Sunday morning and everyone else was in church! At about this time, Saint Peter leaned over to the Lord while looking down from the heavens and exclaimed, "You're not going to let him get away with this, are you?" The Lord sighed, and said, "No, I guess not." Just then Father Norton hit the ball and it shot straight towards the pin, dropping just short of it, rolled up and fell into the hole. It WAS A 420 YARD HOLE IN ONE! St. Peter was astonished. He looked at the Lord and asked, "Why did you let him do that?" The Lord smiled and replied, "Who's he going to tell?"

■ THANK YOU Thank you to all my friends who sent me such important emails this year!

It's so wonderful that you included me in your quest to inform!

Because of all of you I stopped drinking Coca-Cola after I found out from you that it's good for removing toilet stains and rusting the arse out of 40-gallon drum.

I stopped going to the movies for fear of sitting on a needle infected with a disease.

I smell like a homeless bum, but thank goodness I stopped using deodorant because you said it causes cancer.

I don't leave my car in any parking lot even though I sometimes have to walk about seventeen blocks, because you said that someone might drug me with a perfume sample and then try to rob me.

I also stopped answering the phone because you said that they will ask me to dial a stupid number and then I get a high phone bill with calls to Uganda, Singapore, Tokyo and maybe the Mars Rover.

I stopped eating chicken and hamburgers because you told me they are nothing more than horrible mutant freaks with no eyes or feathers that are bred in a lab so that places like McDonalds and KFC can sell their wares. I also stopped drinking anything out of a can - you said that I would get sick from the rat faeces and urine.

When I go to parties, I now don't mix with anybody or talk to anybody - you said that someone would take my kidneys and leave me taking a nap in a bathtub full of ice. However, the police are also after me at present because you said not to pull over, as they could be fake policemen trying to kidnap me.

I went bankrupt from bounced checks that I wrote, in anticipation of the $15,000 that Microsoft and AOL were supposed to send me when I participated in their special e-mail program.

It's weird, though, that my new free cell phone never arrived, and neither did the passes for my paid vacation to Disneyland. But I am positive that all this is because of the chain I broke or forgot to follow and I got a curse.

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

 While the ideal gas law is certainly important, your attempt to apply it to every situation in your life can only lead to disaster.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 - FEB 18

 Former England defender Ray Wilson will appear to you in a dream and explain to you at embarrassing length why you're not quite good enough for Bobby Moore to appear in your dreams.

PISCES FEB 19 - MAR 20

 All your hard work will finally pay off this week, but not, of course, for you.

ARIES MAR 21 - APR 20

 You'll become embroiled in a steamy office romance next week, which would be better if you weren't the trustee in charge of bringing the warden his meals.

TAURUS APR 21 - MAY 21

 It's going to be hectic and stressful for the next few days, but it'll all be worth it when the Pope excommunicates you for the coolest reason ever.

GEMINI MAY 22 - JUNE 21

 You're a bit sad that you never get invited to cool parties, but you'll be downright angry when you hear about the awesome ones they hold at your place the second you leave every day.

CANCER JUN 22 - JUL 22

 Remember, a bend in the road isn't the end of the road. While we're on the subject, the circular device on the dashboard can be used to turn your car.

LEO JUL 23 - AUG 22

 Next week's horrifying accident inspires an outcry for more stringent safety standards in coal-fueled power plants until everyone realizes it was actually just all your fault.

VIRGO AUG 23 - SEP 22

 Your whole life is thrown into a terrible new perspective when you learn that Enter The Dragon is not intended to be a romantic comedy.

LIBRA SEP 23 - OCT 23

SCORPIO OCT 24 - NOV 21

 You'll get a free beverage refill when ordering a large-sized French fries, but really that's going to be about it for you this week.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 - DEC 21

 You should avoid making any financial decisions next week, as the pain you'll be in from all the third-degree flash burns will probably affect your judgment.

THE AWOL POOL LADDER

The AWOL Ladder is a new individuals only pool competition which is free to join at www.freeonlineleague.com/myleague/awolpooladder - you will be contacted when the ladder is ready to start, planned to be when enough players sign up.

The idea of the ladder is to provide all levels of pool players the opportunity to play over a longer period of games than the team leagues allow, thus giving a better chance to both improve and enjoy a longer stint at the table. You will be able to play at a time and place of you and your opponents choosing.
You challenge players above you in the ladder and if you beat them you swap positions (maximum positions above that can be challenged is two). Once the ladder is established a knockout competition will also be introduced.

If you are having any problems accessing or signing on to the website or for more information please email info@awolonline.net.
More details next week.

JOURNALISTS PLAY DOWN FEARS OF A DROUGHT OF 'TORRES GOAL DROUGHT' ANALOGIES

■ LONDON, ENGLAND

As Fernando Torres yet again failed to open his account for Chelsea, journalists have been keen to play down fears of a drought of analogies to describe the situation.

Observers had noted that while early articles about the Spaniard were full of references to banjos, barn doors and cow's arses match reports have recently become more 'analogy-light'.

A headline in one tabloid newspaper this week that simply said 'Torres doesn't score again' was cited as an example of how bad the problem has become.

However, a spokesperson for the sports writers union said that although the issue was 'a concern' he felt confident that this was 'just a blip' and that they 'would come through their barren spell'.

He went on to say, "Suggestions that we rely on a handful of stock phrases and clichés' is, at the end of the day, insulting."

A few journalists have tried to buck the trend with varying degrees of success.

The News of the World won plaudits for the topicality of 'Torres fails to hit a trainee from 10 yards with an air-rifle', whilst El Pais's 'Torres couldn't inflict an act of cruelty on a farmyard animal in a bell tower' was acknowledged as ground-breaking,

"I'll tell you now - Abramovich'll send you on loan to Dinamo Kiev if you don't score soon, but don't let it worry you"

despite losing something in translation.

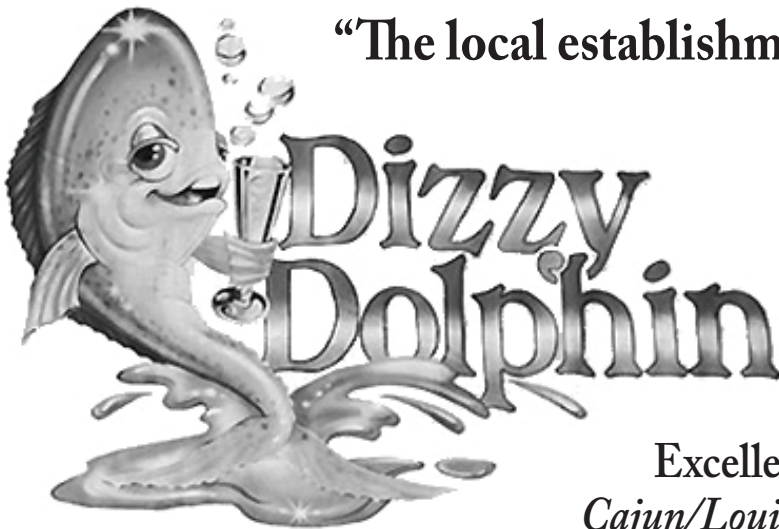

Some have suggested this is symptomatic of a wider trend in sports journalism of a shift from analogies to clichés.

A senior media commentator told us, "Pick up any Sunday newspaper and you'll see Alan Shearer's 'Torres must keep believing in himself' or Gary Lineker's 'He just needs one to go in off his backside'."

"But try finding a well-crafted metaphor these days - you've got no chance."

A BBC Insider said his heart went out to sports writers everywhere adding, "especially as this has come so soon after Heskey's performance in the World Cup last year."
