THREE WEEKENDS OUT OF THE NEXT MONTH SEE ALCOHOL SALES PROHIBITED

■ HUA HIN THAILAND

As the Thai election on July 3rd approaches, the eyes of the nation and the world are watching and hoping that it passes off peacefully and fairly. The eyes of the nation's bar owners and alcohol companies will, though, be drawn to the regulations that call for the closure of bars and the forbidding of the sale of alcohol before and during the election.

There is a great deal of confusion and interpretation of these rules, but from the information AWOL has been able to garner, the situation in Hua Hin seems to be this: on Sunday 26th June is a pre-election voting day for those who are unable to vote the following Sunday, and this is supposed to be observed in the same way as the actual election day, with the prohibition of alcohol sales; however this had not been confirmed to any of the bar owners we spoke to ahead of publication. The following weekend in Hua Hin, it has been announced that alcohol sales will be prohibited on both Saturday 2nd and Sunday 3rd July, so bars will have to close on both days. No information has yet been forthcoming on when they can reopen, but Thai law states that it is once the voting has ended.

To pile further misery onto the bar owners, Friday 15th and Saturday 16th July are Buddhist holidays (Asana Bucha Day and Wan Khao Pansa, or Buddhist Lent) when alcohol sales will also be prohibited. These should, of course, have been planned for as they occur every year, but coming so soon after the election closures it does not do the alcohol or tourism industries any favours.

As always, the determined tourist, expat or Thai voter will be able to find somewhere that will serve them, but this just highlights the odd nature of the election alcohol regulations and the virtually impossible task of enforcing them, designed to prevent vote buying at lavish parties, which instead just prevents foreigners who are ineligible to vote from spending their money here.

Return Bar is one of only a few bars in Hua Hin that has a full size (9 feet) pool table, as well as a more standard size table for the pool hackers amongst us!

They have a team entered in the Hua Hin Pool Billiards League which plays every Friday (see page 24 for current standings, results and fixtures) and new players are always welcome.

Open every day from late afternoon, Return Bar is a great place to relax away from the hassles of the town centre, and somewhere you will find yourself coming again and again!

■ Do you wonder why we say certain things, or what they really mean? Each week we will examine a different word or phrase and tell you how it came about.

This week it is.. The proof of the pudding
To fully test something you need to experience it yourself.

'The proof of the pudding' is just shorthand for 'the proof of the pudding is in the eating'. That longer version makes sense at least, whereas the shortened version really doesn't mean anything - nor does the often-quoted incorrect variation 'the proof is in the pudding'. The continued use of that meaningless version is no doubt bolstered by the fact that the correct version isn't at all easy to understand.

The meaning become clear when you know that 'proof' here is a verb meaning 'test'. The more common meaning of 'proof' in our day and age is the noun meaning 'the evidence that demonstrates a truth' - as in a mathematical or legal proof. The verb form meaning 'to test' is less often used these days, although it does survive in several commonly used phrases: 'the exception that proves the rule', 'proof-read', 'proving-ground', etc. When bakers 'prove' yeast they are letting it stand in warm water for a time, to determine that it is active. Clearly, the distinction between these two forms of the word was originally quite slight and the proof in a 'showing to be true' sense is merely the successful outcome of a test of whether a proposition is correct or not.

'The proof of the pudding is in the eating' is a very old proverb. The Oxford Dictionary of Quotations dates it back to the early 14th century, albeit without offering any supporting evidence for that assertion. The phrase is widely attributed to Cervantes in The History of Don Quixote. This appears to be by virtue of an early 18th century translation by Peter Motteux, which has been criticised by later scholars as 'a loose paraphrase' and 'Franco-Cockney'. Crucially the Spanish word for pudding - 'budín', doesn't appear in the original Spanish text. It is doubtful that 'the proof of the pudding' was a figurative phrase that was known to Cervantes.

The earliest printed example of the proverb that can be found is in William Camden's Remaines of a Greater Worke Concerning Britaine, 1605:

"All the proof of a pudding is in the eating."

It is worth remembering that, as the phrase is quite old, the pudding wouldn't have been a sticky toffee pudding from the sweet trolley, but a potentially fatal savoury dish. In Camden's listing of proverbs he also includes "If you eat a pudding at home, the dog may have the skin", which suggests that the pudding he had in mind was some form of sausage. THE OED describes the mediaeval pudding as 'the stomach or one of the entrails of a pig, sheep, or other animal, stuffed with a mixture of minced meat, suet, oatmeal, seasoning, etc., and boiled'.

Those of you who have ventured north of the border on Burns Night will recognize this as a fair description of a haggis (above) - "the great chieftain o' the pudding-race", as Burns called it in the poem Address to a Haggis, 1786. Mediaeval peasants, faced with a boiled up farmyard massacre, might have thought a taste test to have been a wise choice.

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

While it's true there's nothing you wouldn't do to make your friends happy, that impulse will soon come into conflict with your willingness to do anything for a decent piece of pie.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 - FEB 18

You never thought you'd get tired of the endless parade of deep-fried food that is your life, and sure enough, it hasn't happened yet.

PISCES FEB 19 - MAR 20

Sadly, popular entertainment has led you to believe that when you try to deliver a baby while trapped in a malfunctioning elevator, the mother and baby both survive.

ARIES MAR 21 - APR 20

You'll inspire thousands to go out and do something with their lives in order not to wind up being as pathetic and useless as you are.

TAURUS APR 21 - MAY 21

The rescue workers won't need to knock down an entire wall of your house to get you out, but they want to make you feel extra fat.

GEMINI MAY 22 - JUNE 21

You'll resolve not to fall for the same old tricks just as your shoelace goes untied, a menacing figure looms up right behind you, and you finally

CANCER JUN 22 - JUL 22

Someday you'll look back on all this and laugh, you sick, demented, inhuman monster.

LEO JUL 23 - AUG 22

Love means different things to different people, but you'll have a hard time finding someone to whom it means "a profound degree of affection."

VIRGO AUG 23 - SEP 22

It's kind of disappointing, really, but it turns out you and your archenemy actually aren't that much alike at all.

LIBRA SEP 23 - OCT 23

People have a hard enough time believing "timbersports" are a real thing without you trying to achieve notoriety by becoming its all-time most penalized participant.

SCORPIO OCT 24 - NOV 21

It turns out that sorting is one of God's least favorite things, as you'll learn this week when you decide to kill them all and let Him sort them out.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 - DEC 21

You've decided to pull one last big job and then retire, although it is unclear exactly how this will work for a trombone instructor.

■ REAL DEL MONTE, MEXICO Mexican town shuns burritos and nachos for Cornish pasties

A tiny town in Mexico – the country famous for burritos and nachos – has been found to be crazy for... Cornish pasties. The town is filled with ‘paste’ takeaways instead of traditional tortilla shops – and locals even celebrate an annual Cornish Pasty Festival.

The Mexican mining settlement of Real del Monte adopted the snack in 1824 when Cornishmen arrived to make their fortune digging for silver. Local wives copied the English by sending their loved-ones off to the mine with a pasty each day as they were easy to carry and quick to eat. The tradition has remained ever since.

The Mexicans have added their own twist by adding sausage and beans or pineapple and tuna.

Ciro Peralta Gonzalez, a pasty shop owner, visited Cornwall to find the secret to the perfect pasty. And Brigitte Glasworthy Estavillo, of the Cornish Mexican Cultural Society, has arranged for an English party to visit the country for this year’s Cornish Pasty Festival in October.

■ MARSIMEK LA, INDIA Highest ever pizza delivery set for 18,000ft mountain pass

If you think your fast food deliveries take an age to arrive, you should try living at the top of a mountain in the Himalayas. Margheritas and meat feasts may soon be on the menu at a peak in Kashmir, however – if Britain’s ‘daftest motoring club’ can break the world record for the highest ever pizza delivery.

Six members of the Extreme Trifle group will attempt to climb more than 5,400m (18,000ft) on their 40-year-old Royal Enfield motorcycles, then serve up a surprise meal to the Indian army at Marsimek La, in the world’s highest mountain pass.

The club’s Paul Osborne said: ‘The first trip was from London to Siberia, except we fell a bit short – about 10,000 miles short – after we got arrested and had our bikes confiscated for entering Transnistria illegally.’

Another mission across the Sahara was abandoned when one rider suffered heat exhaustion. The next trip begins in Manali, India, on July 10.
