POLL DANCING

HOPES AND FEARS FOR HUA HIN AND THAILAND AS THE COUNTRY VOTES

■ HUA HIN THAILAND

This Sunday, 3rd July, in case you hadn't noticed, Thailand will vote for their next government. It is expected to be a tight affair, with a large number of voters, estimated at about ten million, still in the 'floating' category.

It seems likely that whichever party has the most MPs, they will not have an overall majority, and will need to form some sort of coalition to be able to govern; in many ways this might be the best outcome for the country, as it would hopefully prevent provocative measures, such as the amnesty for convicted politicians proposed by the Puea Thai party; that is clearly aimed at allowing Thaksin Shinawatra, brother of Yingluck the Puea Thai leader, to return from exile, but many think this would be the trigger for another military coup.

The impact on life in Thailand and our town of Hua Hin, whichever government is formed, are likely to be slight, possibly even unnoticeable if the Democrats manage to hold onto power. A change of government will probably mean that there will be movement in senior army and police positions, as there always tends to be a kind of reward and punishment system for those who supported or opposed the eventual victors.

As far as expats go, those who run businesses or own property here will be hoping that whoever is in power will make life easier for them in regard to the regulations governing those areas, while everyone will be hoping that steps will be taken to weaken the baht, as this would benefit both foreigners and Thais by helping to encourage more tourists as well as help the property sector. Thailand faces a challenging next few years, and this election ,and the subsequent actions and reactions may well set the tone for the dance ahead. Will it be the solo slippery slide down a pole, or an arms linked celebratory jig?

Return Bar is one of only a few bars in Hua Hin that has a full size (9 feet) pool table, as well as a more standard size table for the pool hackers amongst us!
They have a team entered in the Hua Hin Pool Billiards League which plays every Friday (see page 24 for current standings, results and fixtures) and new players are always welcome.
Open every day from late afternoon, Return Bar is a great place to relax away from the hassles of the town centre, and somewhere you will find yourself coming again and again!

■ Do you wonder why we say certain things, or what they really mean? Each week we will examine a different word or phrase and tell you how it came about.

This week it is.. The devil to pay

Impending trouble or other bad consequences following from one's actions.

People seem to love ascribing nautical origins to phrases. Here's a good case in point. The 'devil' is a seam between the planking of a wooden ship. Admiral William Henry Smyth defined the term in The Sailor's Word-book: An Alphabetical Digest of Nautical Terms, 1865:

Devil - The seam which margins the waterways on a ship's hull.

'Paying' is the sailor's name for caulking or plugging the seam between planking with rope and tar etc. 'Paying the devil' must have been a commonplace activity for shipbuilders and sailors at sea. This meaning of 'paying' is recorded as early as 1610, in S. Jourdain's Discovery of Barmudas:

Some wax we found cast up by the Sea... served the turne to pay the seames of the pinnis Sir George Sommers built, for which hee had neither pitch nor tarre.

Many sources give the full expression used by seafarers as "there's the devil to pay and only half a bucket of pitch", or "there's the devil to pay and no pitch hot". Nautical origin; case closed? Well, no.

The phrase doesn't originate from the name of the ship's seam, as is sometimes supposed. It is the name 'devil' in this context which comes from the phrase 'the Devil to pay', rather than the other way about.

The other meaning of paying the Devil alludes to Faustian pacts in which hapless individuals pay for their wishes or misdeeds by forfeiting their soul. This allusion, and the everyday usage meaning 'I am in trouble now, I will have to pay for this later', date from the 18th century. For example, Thomas Brown's Letters From the Dead to the Living, 1707:

Don't you know damnation pays every man's scores... we knew we should have the Devil to pay one time or other, and now you see like honest men we have pawn'd our Souls for the whole Reckoning.

This quotation predates the earliest recorded usage of 'devil' to mean the seam of a ship (Smyth's Sailor's Word-Book, 1867) by more than a century. Given the known nautical meaning of 'paying' a seam and the well-established phrase 'the Devil to pay', sailors probably adopted the phrase in reference to the unpleasant task of seam caulking.

George Lemon put forward his understanding of how the phrase was coined in English Etymology, 1783. Lemon explains that, when sailors were ready to start caulking seams before the tar was melted, they used the phrase 'here's the Devil to pay and no pitch hot'. As Lemon put it:

"Here's the black gentleman come to pitch the vessel's sides and you have not so much as made the pitch kettle hot enough to employ him."

Whether we accept Lemon's version or prefer the 'pact with the Devil' derivation, it is clear that the devil in the phrase was originally a reference to Satan, not the seam of a ship.

Is there an English phrase or saying that you would like to know more about? Email it to us on submissions@awolonline.net and we will do our best to uncover it's origin.

■ THE MEDIA

A biker is riding by the zoo, when he sees a little girl leaning into the lion's cage.

Suddenly, the lion grabs her by the cuff of her jacket and tries to pull her inside to slaughter her, under the eyes of her screaming parents.

The biker jumps off his bike, runs to the cage and hits the lion square on the nose with a powerful punch.

Whimpering from the pain the lion jumps back letting go of the girl, and the biker brings her to her terrified parents, who thank him endlessly.

A Guardian reporter has watched the whole event.

The reporter addressing the biker says,'Sir, this was the most gallant and brave thing I saw a man do in my whole life.'

The biker replies,'Why, it was nothing, really, the lion was behind bars. I just saw this little kid in danger, and acted as I felt right.'

The reporter says,'Well, I'll make sure this won't go unnoticed. I'm a journalist from the Guardian, you know, and tomorrow's paper will have this story on the front page... So, what do you do for a living and what political affiliation do you have?"

The biker replies,'I'm in the SAS and a Conservative.'

The following morning the biker buys The Guardian to see if it indeed brings news of his actions, and reads, on front page:

■ BEER, FISHING, GOLF & SEX.

A man was walking down the street when he was accosted by a particularly dirty and shabby-looking homeless man who asked him for a couple Of dollars for dinner.

The man took out his wallet, extracted ten dollars and asked, "If I give you this money, will you buy some beer with it instead of dinner?"

"No, I had to stop drinking years ago," the homeless man replied. "Will you use it to go fishing instead of buying food?" the man asked. "No, I don't waste time fishing," the homeless man said. "I need to spend all my time trying to stay alive."

"Will you spend this on greens fees at a golf course instead of food?" the man asked.

"Are you NUTS!" replied the homeless man. "I haven't played golf in 20 years!"

"Will you spend the money on a woman in the red light district instead of food?" the man asked.

"What disease would I get for ten lousy bucks?" exclaimed the homeless man.

"Well," said the man, "I'm not going to give you the money. Instead, I'm going to take you home for a terrific dinner cooked by my wife."

The homeless man was astounded. "Won't your wife be furious with you for doing that? I know I'm dirty, and I probably smell pretty disgusting."

The man replied, "That's okay. It's important for her to see what a man looks like after he has given up beer, fishing, golf, and sex."

INDIAN RESTAURANT
Curries from only 75 baht
Eat in or Takeaway 081 455 5298

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

You've always considered yourself a belt-and-suspenders type, but all everyone else seems to focus on is your lack of pants.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

Buck up: You still have a lot of life ahead of you, even if the good part was over years ago.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

You will fall into a pattern of self-destructive behavior this week when you discover how much fun that sort of thing is.

ARIES MAR 21 – APR 20

Your theory that there are only two types of people in the world won't go over well with the only other survivor of this week's global thermonuclear holocaust.

TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

You'll become frustrated and depressed when, after approaching beautiful women with the corny line "I must paint you," you find it actually works like a charm.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

A horrifying incident with a knife-thrower, a chainsaw-juggler, and a fire-eater will result in grievous bodily harm, although it's kind of a surprise that it mostly involves being hit by a bus.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22

The stars are sorry, but someone has already thought of starting a band with two of each instrument in it. It wasn't all that great an idea then, either.

LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

You aren't the first person to try to change someone after falling in love, but you might be the first to try to unfold that someone into a robot.

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

The powers-that-be will reply to you on that pesky legal matter by telling you they're sorry, but you can't be officially recognized as the first blind person to drive across Asia if you put out your eyes just before crossing the finish.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

Some say the world will end in ice, some fire. However, the end of your personal world will be most notable for banal remarks on the humidity.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

While it's true there is no plumbing the depths of the human heart, you'll come up with some novel ideas about its heating and electrical wiring.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

After a long, sweaty, painful time trying to fix a knotty problem yourself, you'll finally admit defeat and call in a real thoracic surgeon.

UPCOMING

Phra Lor Recital at Vic Hua Hin, Saturday, 30th July 2011, 7.30 pm
Phra Lor is a famous Thai Epic, a love story of three lovers all written in poetry by one of the kings in Ayudhya period. About a charming and handsome prince with his two beautiful admirers. Many songs were written using the poetry from this book as lyrics and they have touched the hearts of the nation for centuries. This show will present some of them with new interpretation by the new generation of Thai musicians on Thai and western musical instruments.
Tickets for 900, 700 and 500 Baht (students 50 % discount) are available at Vic Hua Hin: 032-827-814 to 815.

Hua Hin Jazz Festival 2011 - the festival has now been confirmed to take place on Friday 26th and Saturday 27th August. The new organisers are Bangkok Fanatix, and the artist director in charge of the acts playing is Rene Marugg. One main stage on the beach behind the Sofitel is to be named in tribute to Miles Davis. Further information will be available as soon as it is confirmed.

ONGOING

WEBB'S WINING

FROM THE PEN OF LORD WEBB

The Lord Webb
Bar & Restaurant
089 049 2141 (Tui)
or 089 548 8003 (Robert)

Here we go again, another selection from "The Dictionary of Wine". Prepared especially for AWOL (The thinking man's guide to alcoholism).

Where did we leave off. Ah yes.

Birds: Dearly loved by Twitchers, but hated by wine-growers. In the Vineyard wars they have tried everything to get rid of them: guns, artillery, electric wires, automatic machines that bark in the dawn, scarecrows, sirens etc, etc. Ultimately the only answer is to grow more good Cabernet, Shiraz (Syrah if you are French), Riesling, Chardonnay, Merlot and Pinot Noir than they can handle.

Blend: One of the great arts of the wine-maker is take a flavour from this vineyard a nuisance from that, just a touch of tannin from the north a touch of perfect acidity from the south, and then blend it into the perfect wine. Actually it's a cunning con-trick to disguise the fact that your superb Bordeaux came from a 5000 hectare plot in Algeria.

A cork retriever is not a dog from Ireland!!

Blind tasting: That wonderful time when all the bottles are all masked. Before the assembled audience, after you've had a scoop or two or three even, you proceed to show off your remarkable skill, first divining the area, then the grape, then the year and even the label. You tell of its poor fruit, nondescript character, its flabbiness and its disastrous future. Now for the moment of truth! The bottle is unwrapped and to everyone's delight (except you of course) it's the wine you brought yourself.

Body: You can have a light body, a medium body, a full body, and that's one of the great things about wine, the full bodies usually come to one late in the evening.

Wine improves with age. The older I get, the better I like it…….. How true.

Until next time - Cheers!

■ WORCESTERSHIRE, ENGLAND Great grandfather, 74, converts mobility scooter into the Batmobile Great grandfather Brian Vannlooks like he would be more at home in Gotham City after turning his mobility scooter into the Batmobile. Brian Vann spent weeks transforming his electric scooter into the superhero's car.

He can be spotted riding the Batmobile, which has a top speed of 8mph, around the 'Batcave' – the sheltered housing complex where he lives in Evesham, Worcestershire.
'People drive past in their cars and stop when they see me, get out, and ask for a photo,' said the retired construction worker. 'I feel like a bit of a celebrity. I know how the Beckhams must feel when I go out in my Batmobile. If it brings a smile to people's faces, then it's done the job.' And 74-year-old Mr Vann will not stop there – he has already started work on another design which will transform his scooter into a Thunderbird spaceship.

■ ZELTWEG, AUSTRIA Staring at storks: Soldiers told to intimidate birds using fixed gaze
Troops ordered to scare away storks from an airport have been banned from using their guns and told to stare at the birds instead.
Twenty-four soldiers were brought in over fears 25 storks would disrupt the Airpower 2011 air show in Zeltweg, Austria, next week.
Organisers have tried to lure them away with bait, by creating better feeding grounds further away and even putting up plastic storks to make it seem more attractive elsewhere.
A stork could bring down a plane if it was sucked into an engine.
Environmentalist Siegfried Prinz said the staring plan was working.
He added: 'Being stared at intimidates the storks more than the sound of a gun or other explosive.'
A total of 24 soldiers are working on operation stork between five a.m. in the morning and 10 o'clock at night.

WIMBLEDON - AN ORGY OF GRUNTING AND SCREAMING

SERENA WILLIAMS SCARES OFF OPPONENT WITH RHINO DISTRESS CALL

■ LONDON, ENGLAND

Serena Williams has begun the defence of her territory by replicating the sounds that rhino mothers use to deter attacks upon their young.

The current Wimbledon champion won the patch of grass from the elder sibling in her herd two mating seasons ago, and is again facing challenges to take her place within the pack.

But while some nubile females will cope with her powerful serve and forceful groundstrokes, few will cope with her range of calls from the animal kingdom.

"She's got the lot," BBC pundit Boris Becker declared. "And it makes her an even more frightening prospect."

"She may have started slowly yesterday with the dingo howl but it still proves useful when your opponent is scared of dogs."

Call of the wild? Serena Williams celebrates becoming queen of the pack by leaving her scent everywhere

"And it wasn't long before the poor girl was looking for somewhere to hide, seeing Serena stampeding with the sounds of the big game beasts."

Now that the first challenger has been frightened off, many experts feel that Serena Williams is the favourite among the field.

"She's still the alpha female as far as I'm concerned," BBC pundit Tim Henman insisted. "And she'd probably be the alpha male too, if she were coming up against me."

"But at some point she'll come up against equally fearsome growlers like her sister and Maria Sharapova."

"And then I'm afraid that it might all be down to the tennis."
