HUA HIN - A SAFE HAVEN

PEOPLE FLOOD TO THE TOWN TO ESCAPE RISING WATERS

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

A noticeable surge in traffic and people arriving in the town has been occurring this week as flood waters were lapping at the outskirts of the capital Bangkok. While areas of Hua Hin have been affected by floods in the past, so far this year it has been a refuge for those from affected areas. While there has been heavy rains in the area, they have not been of the duration experienced in northern parts of Thailand, and it must be hoped that this will remain the case, and that the existing infrastructure can cope.

Meanwhile the Thai government is facing criticism for the way it has handled the situation so far, with over three hundred dead and millions displaced, while efforts to prevent the waters inundating Bangkok have caused further misery for the areas just outside the capital. However this year's floods are reportedly the worst for fifty years, so whoever was in power would have struugled to deal with the situation. It must be hoped though that lessons will be learned and improvements made to avoid this next time, as there surely will be a next time.

At press time more than two hundred interprovincial and rural roads remained closed across the country, including sixty-seven highways in 14 provinces, including Phichit, Kamphaeng Phet, Nakhon Sawan, Ayutthaya, Pathum Thani, Lop Buri, Chai Nat, Saraburi, and Suphan Buri. Anyone planning a trip to affected areas should check the highway information hotline (call 1586 but Thai only) before departing.

Several appeals are being made for both physical and financial assistance for those affected, or to help build up protection for as yet unaffected areas. AWOL has been informed of one effort that you might consider

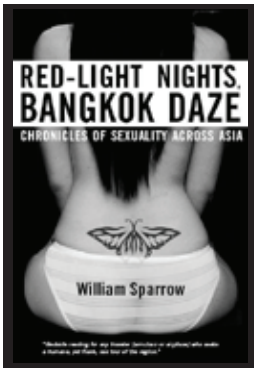
Return Bar is one of only a few bars in Hua Hin that has a full size (9 feet) pool table, as well as a more standard size table for the pool hackers amongst us!

They have a team entered in the Hua Hin Pool Billiards League which plays every Friday (see page 28 for current standings, results and fixtures) and new players are always welcome.

Open every day from late afternoon, Return Bar is a great place to relax away from the hassles of the town centre, and somewhere you will find yourself coming again and again!



Sometimes contradictory, bewildering, revolutionary and hypocritical, Red-Light Nights, Bangkok Daze is a collection of articles on the complex and fascinating world of sex in Asia.

In giving to charity, it is always a concern that the organization be on the up and up and well run.AWOL has been assured by one of our contributors who has worked closely with the BiA and its individual staff over the past year, that you can have complete faith in their integrity and competence. Please do consider supporting their efforts to rebuild this country.

The government has released a revised estimate of the reconstruction costs of $3.3 billion but many commentators are estimating a much higher figure of $7 billion; this is a huge ecomomic and social disaster for Thailand, particularly as it will also cause some tourists to cancel their trips, even to areas not affected by the floods.

■ Do you wonder why we say certain things, or what they really mean? Each week we will examine a different word or phrase and tell you how it came about.

This week it is.. My cup of tea
Something or someone that one finds pleasing.
A column about the English language can't of course be complete without some consideration of tea. Tea has been around for a long time, and so has the British slang term for it - 'char'. In fact, it was known in the west by that version of the Mandarin ch'a before it was called 'tea'. The Dutch adventurer Jan Huygen van Linschoten was one of the first to recount its use as a drink, in Discours of voyages into ye Easte & West Indies, 1598:
The aforesaid warme water is made with the powder of a certaine hearbe called Chaa.
'My cup of tea' is just one of the many tea-related phrases that are still in common use in the UK, such as 'Not for all the tea in China', 'I could murder a cup of tea', 'More tea vicar?', 'Tea and sympathy', 'Rosie Lee', 'Storm in a teacup' and so on.
In the early 20th century, a 'cup of tea' was such a synonym for acceptability that it became the name given to a favoured friend, especially one with a boisterous, life-enhancing nature. William de Morgan, the Edwardian artist and novelist, used the phrase in the novel Somehow Good, 1908, and went on to explain its meaning:
"He may be a bit hot-tempered and impulsive... otherwise, it's simply impossible to help liking him." To which Sally replied, borrowing an expression from Ann the housemaid, that Fenwick was a cup of tea. It was metaphorical and descriptive of invigoration.
People or things with which one felt an affinity began to be called 'my cup of tea' in the 1930s. Nancy Mitford appears to be the first to record that term in print, in the comic novel Christmas Pudding, 1932:
I'm not at all sure I wouldn't rather marry Aunt Loudie. She's even more my cup of tea in many ways.
In keeping with the high regard for tea, most of the early references to 'a cup of tea' as a description of an acquaintance are positive ones, i.e. 'nice', 'good', 'strong' etc. The expression is more often used in the 'not my cup of tea' form these days. This negative usage began in WWII. An early example of it is found in Hal Boyle's Leaves From a War Correspondent's Notebook column, which described English life and manners for an American audience. The column provided the American counterpart to Alister Cooke's Letter from America and was syndicated in various US papers. In 1944, he wrote:
[In England] You don't say someone gives you a pain in the neck. You just remark "He's not my cup of tea."
The change from the earlier positive 'my cup of tea' phrase, to the dismissive 'not my cup of tea' doesn't reflect the national taste for the drink itself. Tea remains our cup of tea in the UK. According to the United Kingdom Tea Council (of course, there had to be one) 60 million of us down 160 million cups of the stuff each day.

You've tried everything you can think of to get that special person to like you, which of course explains why you're fleeing a nationwide manhunt.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

It turns out there are actually plenty of problems you can't solve with a smile, a sincere heartfelt talk, or a large, heavy piece of lumber.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

In hard economic times like these, people tend to spend more money on booze and entertainment, but they don't have to as long as you're there to go into hilarious convulsions after drinking wood alcohol.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

They say you can never step into the same river twice, but thanks to crocodiles and your refusal to learn how to swim, once is all you'll need.

■ SURGERY

A surgeon went to check on his very attractive blonde patient after an operation.
She was awake, so he examined her.
"You'll be fine," he said.
She asked, "How long will it be before I am able to have a normal sex life again doctor?"
The surgeon seemed to pause, which alarmed the girl.
"What's the matter Doctor? I will be all right, won't I?"
He replied, "Yes, you'll be fine. It's just that no one has ever asked me that the same day after having their tonsils out."

■ SPEEDOS

Paddy, who was on holiday from Ireland on Bondi beach couldn't seem to make it with any of the girls.So he asked the local lifeguard for some advice. 'Mate, it's obvious,' says the lifeguard, 'you're wearing them old baggy swimming trunks that make ya look like an old geezer. They're years outta style. You're best bet is to grab yourself a pair of Speedos - about two sizes too small and drop a fist-sized potato down inside 'em. I'm tellin' ya mate...you'll have all the babes ya want!'
The following weekend, Paddy hits the beach with his spanking new tight Speedos, and his fist-sized potato. Everybody on the beach was disgusted as he walked by, covering their faces, turning away, and laughing, looking sick! So Paddy went back to the lifeguard again and asked him, 'What's wrong now?' JAHEESUS!' said the lifeguard, 'Maaaaate. .....The potato goes in the front!"

■ VERY QUICK

The Barman said, "Sorry we don't serve Neutrinos."

A Neutrino walked into a bar.

■ ON TAP

Old man Murphy had worked down at the brewery for years but one day he just wasn't paying attention and he tripped on the walkway and fell over into the beer vat and drowned.
The foreman thought it should be his job to inform the widow Murphy of her old man's death. He showed up at the front door and rang the bell. When she came to the door, he said, "I'm sorry to tell you, but poor old Murphy passed away at work today when he fell into the vat and drowned."
She wept and covered her face with her apron and after a time, between sobs, she asked, "Tell me, did he suffer?"
"I don't think so," said the foreman. "He got out three times to go to the toilet."

left: The Japanese 'poo bike' - and you were worried about exhaust fumes!

■ JAPAN Motorcycle kicks up a stink with bike powered by rider's poo

A motorbike has been kicking up a stink across Japan as it is powered entirely by the rider's poo.

The Toilet Bike Neo is made by toilet firm Toto, which hopes it will help reduce CO2 emissions by 50 per cent in six years. The three-wheeled vehicle, which uses a modified lavatory and a mobile laboratory for processing, can reach a maximum speed of 50mph.

If that wasn't high-tech enough, the travelling toilet can also talk and write messages in the air using residual light imagery.

It is currently being driven on a 600-mile tour of Japan and is set to arrive in Tokyo on November 2.

The tour includes a pit stop at a bum-shaped boulder in Nakatsu.

Earlier this year, a man travelled 12,500 miles around Australia on a motorbike powered by chip fat.

Adventurer Paul Carter used 630 litres of 'fish and chip oil' to spend 12 hours a day on the bike at speeds of up to 60mph.

■ TEL AVIV, ISRAEL Back to the Future hoverboard moves closer to reality after breakthrough

Tel Aviv University has moved one step closer to creating a real-life version of Back To The Future 2's hoverboard using superconductivity and the Meissner effect.

The Superconductivity Group from the School of Physics and Astronomy at Tel Aviv University in Israel have demonstrated quantum superconductors locked in a magnetic field in a recent video - which basically means hoverboards could well be on the way at some stage in the not-so-distant future.

Back To the Future fans can barely hold their excitement. One wrote: 'Back to the Future Hover Boards take a step closer.... Quantum Levitation.' Another added: 'Thanks to Quantum Levitation all we have to do now is cover all the sidewalks with metal and we can finally live our hoverboard dreams!'

However, the demonstrator in the video describes a process called 'quantum trapping' and insists that the object is not floating but 'locked above the surface' using a 'supercooled' magnet.

■ BERLIN, GERMANY Mystery English-speaking boy emerges from forest

An English-speaking teenager who walked out of the forest near Berlin told police he had been living in the woods for five years with his father, but had no idea who he was or where he came from.

Authorities have launched a Europe-wide appeal for information about the boy, who is somewhere between 16 and 18 years old, and says his name is Ray.

"We have sent appeals for help to all European countries via Interpol. The boy speaks English and a little German but we really have no idea where he comes from," Michael Maaß, spokesman for the Berlin police told The Local on Friday.

The boy emerged from the woods on September 5, and said he had been living wild with his father for about five years. The pair had left civilisation when his mother, who the boy said was called Doreen, died. The boy said he and his father, who he said was called Ryan, had not set up a home but had kept moving. They had slept in a tent and huts they found in the woods, he told them.

Maaß said the boy had told youth workers he could remember nothing about where he came from, nor anything much more than his own first name. Two weeks ago he found his father had died, and buried him in a shallow grave which he covered with stones, he told them.

"His father had told him to look at his compass and go north, if anything should happen. And this is apparently what he did, walking for two weeks before reaching Berlin," said Maaß.

"There he found a youth emergency centre and walked in. We have never seen anything like it. We have no evidence to contradict what he has told our colleagues at the youth services, although we are still investigating, and very much want to find out who he is."

He said the boy had been medically examined and was physically healthy, while there was nothing to suggest he was the victim of any kind of abuse or violence.

Sunday, 9th October 2011, till Thursday, 3rd November 2011, daily from 9 am till 6 pm
This show is a black and white photography exhibition in the various styles of a Thai graphic designer who relocated to the US years ago. Miranti Borvornsin's "East meets West" perspective has been enjoyed by Americans in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago and New York over the years.
All pictures are limited edition prints and almost all of them are for sale. Half of the profits will be donated to the Dhamma Foundation, the other half to World Vision.

UPCOMING

Fringe Festival – Three Sisters at the Vic Hua Hin. Saturday, 12th November 2011, 7.30 pm
The Japanese contemporary dance-theatre company, Pappa Tarahumara, re-interprets Antoon Chekov's literary classic set in the rural Japan during the 1960s. It's seemingly sweet portrayal of three bored sisters grappling with womanhood spirals in to a sensual and charged meditation on female identity, coming-of-age and the Japanese obsession with youth culture. This eccentric comic tragedy, narrated through dynamic choreography, is a powerfully condensed alternative to the company's larger scale multi-disciplinary works.
Tickets for 900, 700 and 500 Baht (students 50 % discount) available at Vic Hua Hin: 032-827-814 to 815.
More information on the Fringe Festival on page 12.

AMT works under the direct supervision of a fully qualified, American Doctor (MD), who is available for a free and full consultation prior to any procedure. We understand that every patient is different and this ensures that every treatment proposed is the correct one for each individual. Using ground breaking technology we harvest stem cells from your own body fat, thus eliminating the risk of rejection and overcoming any moral or ethical concerns.
During the harvesting procedure (mini-liposuction) the only drug used is a local anaesthetic which minimises any possibility of side-effects. Once harvested, the stem cells are separated from your own body fat, isolated, activated and then infused as required. We guarantee that no embryo or bone marrow stem cells are used in any AMT procedures.

"You have earned it, now enjoy life..."

How do stem cells work? They are the bodies building blocks which rebuild damaged tissue, blood vessels etc, by being attracted to inflammation and allowing your body to regenerate naturally.

FEATURED GAME

RUGBY WORLD CUP
SUNDAY, 23 OCTOBER 2011
France v New Zealand, 15:00
Eden Park, Auckland
There was a temptation to make the Manchester derby in the Premier League this week's featured game instead of this, because the outcome of the former is much more in the balance than we think this one is. Simply put, we think that France played their best games of the tournament in winning their Quarter and Semi Finals, and we don't think it is in them to string three winning performances of that quality together - as is often said, the French are predictably unpredictable.
The All Blacks are on home soil, produced a massively impressive performance against arch rivals Australia, and we think they will completely dominate France in all areas, and this could be quite a historically comfortable victory. The only thing that prevented their semi final win being by a bigger margin was the relatively poor kicking at goal, and we don't think France will be let off so easily.

COLOURING THE ABUSE

PFA TO ISSUE LIST OF ACCEPTABLE SLURS TO USE AGAINST PATRICE EVRA

■ MANCHESTER, ENGLAND

After reiterating that racism has no place in football, the PFA has moved to issue a list of slurs deemed acceptable when referring to Manchester United left-back Patrice Evra.

The French international is again at the centre of a controversy over alleged racial abuse by Liverpool's Louis Suarez, with the PFA now moving to ensure that he is abused only for those character traits over which he has some control.

"The colour of his skin is completely irrelevant," said a PFA spokesperson. "The verbal abuse he receives on the pitch should focus only on things like his history of dissent, the way he repeatedly winds up opposition fans, or that thing he does when he pretends to be injured after committing a foul which borders on physical assault."

"For example, if an opposition player were to use the phrase Odious Prick then that would be perfectly fine, as it's both accurate, and makes no reference whatsoever to his ethnicity – it could equally be used to describe Joey Barton or Robbie Savage."

"We're not averse to Gallic Arsehole either."

Simon Davies from the Kick Annoying Twats Out Of Football campaign, said he welcomed the stance of the PFA.

He told us, "I have a dream, a dream that one day all of the abuse received by footballers will be based solely their detestable personality traits, and not on the colour of their skin."

"Hopefully that day is just on the horizon."
