PEACE AND GOODWILL

CHRISTMAS TIME AND A TIME FOR GIVING; WHY NOT HELP A LOCAL CHARITY?

HUA HIN, THAILAND

Thankfully no dramatic stories of crime or violence for the week leading up to Christmas as we go to print, so we are happy to run a story of peace and goodwill as should be the case at this time of year, regardless of religion or culture.

Thailand has embraced the commercial concept of Christmas increasingly over the last few years, but hopefully the spirit of the season will also carry through, although the New Year will always be the bigger celebration. As you go about your own Christmas, spare a thought, and maybe more, for those less fortunate than us lucky folk who call Hua Hin, and Thailand, home. Page 23 of this issue features an advert from the Bright Dawn Foundation for their prize quiz, and this would be a perfect way to help some local children while having some fun and a chance to win a nice prize; the foundation presently provides educational and health care support to 237 poor Thai children attending three deprived primary schools and living in rural villages in the Hua Hin area, and at least 90% of donations are used directly for the benefit of the children and their teachers. More details about the foundation's important work can be found on their website at www.brightdawnfoundation.org, or by visiting one of the participating venues listed on the advert. The quiz runs until New Year's Eve and only costs 100 baht per entry, so why not give it a go!

Wherever you are celebrating Christmas, whether at home or one of the array of restaurants and bars offering their take on a traditional Christmas dinner, all of us at AWOL wish you a very Merry Christmas. There will be one more AWOL in 2011 so our New Year wishes are on hold until then, Friday 30th December.

Cold Beer - Two Pool Tables - Friendly Welcome
Located on the Canal Road between the traffic lights and the 7-11

Return Bar is one of only a few bars in Hua Hin that has a full size (9 feet) pool table, as well as a more standard size table for the pool hackers amongst us!
They have a team entered in the Hua Hin Pool Billiards League which plays every Friday (see p 28 for current standings, results and fixtures) and new players are always welcome.

Open every day from late afternoon, Return Bar is a great place to relax away from the hassles of the town centre, and somewhere you will find yourself coming again and again!

■ Do you wonder why we say certain things, or what they really mean? Each week we will examine a different word or phrase and tell you how it came about.

This week it is.. Father Christmas

Father Christmas is the name used in many English-speaking countries for a figure associated with Christmas. A similar figure with the same name (in other languages) exists in several other countries, including France (Père Noël), Spain (Papá Noel, Pare Noel), almost all Hispanic South America (Papá Noel), Brazil (Papai Noel), Portugal (Pai Natal), Italy (Babbo Natale), Armenia (Kaghand Papik), India (Christmas Father), Andorra (Lord Quinto), Romania (Mos Craciun) and Turkey (Noel Baba) .

In past centuries, the English Father Christmas was also known as Old Father Christmas, Sir Christmas, and Lord Christmas. Father Christmas is said to wear (these days) a bright red suit, but in Victorian and Tudor times he wore a bright green suit.

Father Christmas typified the spirit of good cheer at Christmas, but was neither a gift bringer nor particularly associated with children. A traditional figure in English folklore, Father Christmas is identified with the old belief in the Old English god Woden.

In the English-speaking world, the character called "Father Christmas" influenced the development in the United States of Santa Claus, and in the United Kingdom and elsewhere, most people now consider them to be interchangeable. However, although "Father Christmas" and "Santa Claus" have for most practical purposes been merged, historically the characters have different origins and are not identical. Some authors such as C.S. Lewis and J.R.R. Tolkien, have insisted on the traditional form of Father Christmas in preference to Santa Claus.

The earliest English examples of the personification of Christmas are apparently those in carols of the 15th century. One dating from circa 1458 contains an anonymous Christmas carol which begins:

Goday, goday, my lord Sire Christëmas, goday!
Goday, Sire Christëmas, our king,
for ev'ry man, both old and ying,
is glad and blithe of your coming;
Goday!

The specific depiction of Christmas as a merry old man begins in the early 17th century, in the context of resistance to Puritan criticism of observation of the Christmas feast.The earliest such was that in Ben Jonson's creation in Christmas his Masque dating from December 1616, and then later by Thomas Nabbes, The Springs Glorie produced in 1638, "Christmas" appears as "an old reverend gentleman in furred gown and cap".]

The character continued to appear over the next 250 years, appearing as Sir Christmas, Lord Christmas, or Father Christmas, the last becoming the most common.

Father Christmas dates back at least as far as the 17th century in Britain,and pictures of him survive from that era, portraying him as a well-nourished bearded man dressed in a long green fur-lined robe. Since the Victorian era, Father Christmas has gradually merged with the pre-modern gift giver St Nicholas (Dutch Sinterklaas, hence Santa Claus) and associated folklore. Nowadays he is often called Santa Claus but also often referred to in Britain as Father Christmas: the two names are synonyms. Traditionally, Father Christmas comes down the chimney to put presents under the Christmas tree or in children's rooms, in their stockings. Some families leave a glass of sherry or mulled wine, mince pies, biscuits, or chocolate and a carrot for his reindeer near the stocking(s) as a present for him. In modern homes without chimneys he uses alternative 21st century electronic devices to enter the home. In some homes children write Christmas lists (of wished-for presents) and send them up the chimney or post them.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

The rise of Venus in your sign can only mean one thing: This will be a great week to read too much into stuff.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

Speak directly from the heart this week. Tell your loved one, "Re-circulate the blood! Re-circulate the blood! Re-circulate the blood!"

ARIES MAR 21 – APR 20

Crackling with the warmth of the season, a yuletide fire will quickly consume your helpless flesh.

TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

An attempt to concentrate on more intellectual pursuits will ultimately fail this week, thanks to that shiny thing over there.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

Though not a mood ring by design, your wedding band will soon communicate the misery and hopelessness you feel inside.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22

You'll be brought to your knees this Thursday by nothing more than a severe and irreversible case of gangrene.

LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

While you've reasoned your way out of tricky situations before, a crisis this week involving a fox, a chicken, and a bag of feed will leave you completely stumped.

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

You've never been the type to ask for help. Sadly, though, you've always been the type to beg for it.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

An engrossing read will soon transport you to a strange and faraway land, leaving you stranded in Harlem after 30 missed stops.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

Your lucky 19th century German-language philosophers for this week are: Heidegger, Nietzsche, Schopenhauer, and Wundt.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

The National Institute Of Raised Expectations Followed By Disappointing Results will come very close to honouring you this week.

■ STRANGE ILLNESS

It was the doctor's last patient consultation of Christmas Eve. A mother came in with her young daughter and asked if he would examine her because she had been showing some strange symptoms, including a significant increase in weight, sickness most mornings and a number of strange cravings.

He checked her out very carefully and eventually told the mother that her daughter was unquestionably pregnant. At which news she protested very strongly.

'Don't be ridiculous, my daughter has never been with a man'

The girl confirmed that this was true and added that she had never so much as kissed a man.

The doctor studied the girl very carefully, then quietly stood up, walked to the window and stared out of it.

Suspecting the worst the mother asked if there was something wrong.

"No, not really" replied the doctor. 'It might just be a coincidence, but the last time this happened a bright star appeared in the East.'

■ CRACKERS!

Q. What is hot, brown and steamy and comes backwards out of cows?

A. The Isle of Wight ferry.

Q. How do you kill a circus?

A. You have to go for the juggler.

Q. How many ears has Captain Kirk got?

A. Three: the left ear, the right ear, and the final front ear.

■ CHRISTMAS TRADITION

Marks And Spencers new advert states that it wouldn't be Christmas without M&S.

They're right too. It'd be Chrita.

■ THE FAA INSPECTION

With the number of airline disasters lately, the FAA now sends an inspector to the North Pole to check out Santa Claus's sleigh before allowing him to fly on Christmas Eve.

The inspector arrives and checks the reindeer and they look good, he checks the harness and it looks okay, he checks the sleigh and it is also okay. Then he says, "Santa, lets take it up for a check ride and if everything looks good I'll certify you to fly."

Santa hitches the reindeer up and taxis onto the runway and just as he's starting his takeoff roll he looks over and notices the inspector has a pump shotgun on his lap. "Hey! Whats the shotgun for!?" Santa yells.

The inspector says, "Well, Santa, I'm really not supposed to tell you this, but there is going to be an engine failure on takeoff."

■ NORWICH, ENGLAND Britain's shortest set of double yellow lines create big fuss

Norwich has become home to what is believed to be Britain's shortest set of double yellow lines.

The lines - measuring just 17in (43cm) - are between a new permit parking area in the waiting zone in Stafford Street.

Residents of the street have complained the lines are 'pointless' and a waste of money.

'You would have to park a toy car on there to get a ticket,' one local commented.

Norwich city councillor Bert Bremner admitted the lines may have been unnecessary, but said a developer paid for the road marking, so no cost was incurred by the council.

'They were put down to make things clearer for permit holders, but in hindsight perhaps they weren't needed.

'Local people said it was not obvious where the dividing line was so a decision was made to put in a small section of double yellow lines. I wish they weren't there

'As a councillor you are expected to do many things for residents but getting into the Guinness Book of Records for the shortest set of double yellow lines isn't one I anticipated.'

■ FOREST ACT, AUSTRALIA Christmas lights world record smashed by Australian couple

Couple David and Janean Richards have an incredible 331,038 fairy lights covering their property - smashing the previous world record.

David Richards, a barrister and father of three, has been working for the past four years to bring together all the decorations.

The illuminations have helped to raise money for the charity SIDS and Kids - an organisation Mr Richards said helped his family during tough times in 2002.

Although their entry into the Guinness World Records and the money raised for charity have obviously gone down well with the Richards, the household don't plan to do the same thing next year.

The couple will be passing the lights on, as a way of encouraging the new owners to raise money for charity.

FEATURED GAME

THURSDAY, 29 DECEMBER 2011
SCOTTISH PREMIER
Celtic v Rangers, 02:45
Celtic Park, Glasgow, Scotland
The Old Firm derby will be as feisty as ever, and the home team will be desperate to clinch the three points to close the gap at the top. Neither side have been conceding many goals so this is likely to be decided by a narrow margin, if at all. Rangers were given a slight scare last week but still came away with the win, but we think Celtic, roared on by their home fans, will edge this one to ensure the teams are neck and neck going into 2012.

AWOL'S TWELVE FOOTBALL PREDICTIONS OF CHRISTMAS

OUR ANNUAL GAZE INTO THE FUTURE FOR THE COMING YEAR IN FOOTBALL

THE WORLD OF FOOTBALL

ON THE FIRST DAY of Christmas...
A first Premier League title for City

On the second day of Christmas...
Two more scandals; to add to the super-injunction melee of 2011

On the third day of Christmas...
Three cheers for Scotland - as they allow terracing again

On the fourth day of Christmas...
Four years of Capello - comes to an end with another tournament failure

On the fifth day of Christmas...
Five years in clink. Unlikely but Harry Redknapp (right) will learn his fate in court over tax evasion.

On the sixth day of Christmas...
Six game ban for Rooney, as he self destructs at Euro 2012

On the seventh day of Christmas...
Seventh place for the Toon, which would be a remarkable achievement for Alan Pardew.

On the eighth day of Christmas...
Eight players leaving; Chelsea as the old guard are shipped out.

On the ninth day of Christmas...
Nine years of Moyes...at Everton comes to an end as he finally realises he'll never achieve anything there.

On the tenth day of Christmas...
Ten weeks disruption...across Europe as severe weather plays havoc with fixtures

On the eleventh day of Christmas...
Eleven British players - play in the Olympics as a Great Britain team for the first time since 1974

On the twelfth day of Christmas...
The twelfth day of the twelfth month of the year 2012 is supposed to see something special happen, so how about twelve goals to nil for a top Premier League team? You heard it here first!
