FIGHT FOR JUSTICE

MURDERED BRITON'S DAUGHTER TAKES CIVIL ACTION AGAINST ACCUSED

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

Regular readers of AWOL will have to cast their minds back over eighteen months when we reported on the brutal murder of Raymond Hind in July 2010 in Hua Hin. The slow-moving wheels of the Thai justice system have finally turned and reached court dates for two of the three originally accused with the crime - Mr Hind's wife Bunak (Fon) and Thanagorn Budsasa (Lek) will appear separately in court in hearings between 21st and 24th February, but while this is with the support of the Thai police, it is apparently as a result of a civil case being brought by Mr Hind's daughter Zoe. AWOL believes the hearings will take place at the provincial court in Prachuap Kiri Khan. According to a report by Andrew Drummond, the private prosecution is taking place because Thai police failed to establish a legal case.

A third suspect, Komkit Imnoei (Don), who is believed to have actually carried out the deed, has never been caught. Mr Hind (who at the time we incorrectly named Hyde, which we apologise for) was suffering from terminal throat cancer when he was found with multiple stab wounds and clubbed to death at his home in Khao Noi Village, north west of Hua Hin centre.

The two in the dock next week were actually released on bail despite objections from over thirty police in a signed deposition, which prompted friends of Mr Hind to set up a fighting fund to ensure his killers were pursued. Peter Rees and David Williams managed to freeze Mr Hind's offshore and Thai bank accounts and initiate legal proceedings with his daughter, but could not prevent Fon from clearing out the UK account via Thai ATMs. We sincerely hope that justice is served.

BENEFIT BASH

OVERWHELMING SUPPORT FOR BOB AT DARA BAR PARTY

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

Expats turned out in droves to attend the party held last Saturday to aid the President of the BEKK Solutions Fun Pool League, Bob Nicholls.

Over fifty people attended the event which comprised a pool competition and various party activities, and the total raised to help with Bob's medical bills to date is 44,000 baht.

Bob was able to attend the party for a short while, but his condition dictates that he is currently unable to do very much - a swelling in his brain caused him to suffer a stroke, and while he has fortunately come through that relatively unscathed he has had to go twice a day to the hospital for medication to deal with the swelling. He is due a consultation at the end of this month when the doctors will determine whether he will require an operation or continued drug treatment,

Bob has contacted AWOL to express his heartfelt thanks to everyone who both attended the bash and those who have helped both financially and physically. He would like to thank everyone in person but obviously at present is unable to. All we can say is - GET WELL SOON, BOB.

■ Do you wonder why we say certain things, or what they really mean? Each week we will examine a different word or phrase and tell you how it came about.

This week it is.. Up a gum tree

'Up a gum tree' has several meanings. The most commonly used is 'in great difficulties'. Other meanings are 'in a state of contentment' or 'with great speed'.

The phrase originated as 'like a possum up a gum tree' and interpretations of this account for the variety of meaning. The allusion is to possums escaping up trees after being chased by hounds. Depending on one's point of view the possum could be said to be either in difficulty as it couldn't escape, relaxing contentedly because the hounds couldn't catch it - either way it would probably have shown a good turn of speed up the tree in the first place.

Gum tree is the common name for the Eucalyptus in Australia and the Black Gum or Tupelo in North America. The saying 'up a gum tree' is generally thought to be Australian. Noted etymologists like Eric Partridge list it as such. That may be so, it certainly sounds Australian, but the earliest citation of it in print I can find is from the USA, in a 1829 edition of American Speech:

"Dere's possum up de gum tree."

For it to have been recorded there it must have been in general circulation, so we can expect the date of first coinage to be earlier, and possibly not from America. It isn't unambiguously clear what was meant by 'up de gum tree'. References that have some context to indicate the 'in difficulties' meaning don't appear until the 20th century.

There is another expression - 'up a tree', meaning trapped or in difficulties. This is cited slightly earlier than 'up a gum tree' and is clearly related. The use of 'gum' as an intensifier would add to the allusion of being in trouble ('a sticky situation'). 'Up a tree' is American, as these citations show: John Neal, in Brother Jonathan; or the New Englanders, 1825 - "If I didn't I'm up a tree - that's a fact." William Makepeace Thackeray, in Some passages in the life of Major Gahagan (in New Monthly magazine, US), 1839 - "I had her in my power - up a tree, as the Americans say." That would tend to support the US origin of 'up a gum tree'.

It's hard to believe that Thailand would be the place to find traditional Mexican cuisine. Margaritas is nuzzled in Hua Hin's night market and offers a mouth-watering menu of authentic Mexican food that always comes out fresh and delicious. Everything is home made, from our corn and flour tortillas to our delicious salsas and refried beans. Here is where you will find the best Margarita cocktails in town, made with quality Mexican Tequila. It is well located with comfortable atmosphere and great service. This restaurant is a truly authentic Mexican find in Thailand.

■ VALENTINE'S DAY

I bought my wife a bag and belt combo for valentines .... her hoover works a treat now.

My girlfriend just called me.
She said, "Three of the girls in the office have just received some flowers for Valentines Day, they are absolutely gorgeous."
I said, "That's probably why they've received flowers then."

■ BREAKING NEWS:

Ladbrokes have confirmed a dog named Rosie has just put £189,000 on Harry Redknapp to be the next England manager.

Harry Redknapp said this morning that he thinks he can handle the Euros.
As long as they are unmarked and untraceable.

Once Redknapp gets the England job, we are playing away friendlies in Belize, the Cayman islands and Jersey.

Harry Redknapp's dog, Rosie,now has a higher credit rating than Greece and italy.

■ CAVEMEN

Two cavemen walking along, one says to the other "Shall we teach the women to speak?"
The other says, "Yeah, why not? What harm can it do?"

■ A NIGHT ON THE FARM

A lawyer and two friends, a Rabbi and a Hindu holy man, had car trouble in the countryside and asked to spend the night with a farmer.
The farmer said, "There might be a problem. You see, I only have room for two to sleep, one of you must sleep in the barn."
"No problem," spoke the Rabbi. "My people wandered in the desert for forty years. I am humble enough to sleep in the barn for an evening." With that he departed to the barn and the others bedded down for the night.
Moments later a knock was heard at the door. The farmer opened the door, and there stood the Rabbi from the barn. "What's wrong?" asked the farmer.
He replied, "I am grateful to you, but I can't sleep in the barn. There is a pig in the barn and my faith believes that is an unclean animal."
His Hindu friend agreed to swap places with him. But a few minutes later the same scene occurs. There is a knock on the door. "What's wrong, now?" the farmer asked.
The Hindu holy man replies, "I too am grateful for your helping us out, but there is a cow in the barn and in my country cows are considered sacred. I can't sleep on holy ground!"
Well, that leaves only the lawyer to make the change. He grumbled and complained, but went out to the barn. Moments later there was another knock on the farmer's door. Frustrated and tired, the farmer opened the door, and there stood the pig and the cow.

■ ZURICH, SWITZERLAND Swiss man replaces car's broken heater with a wood burning stove

As Europe is brought to its knees by the big freeze, motorists have been advised to take extra precautions when making long journeys.

Drivers and passengers are now making sure they have torches, blankets, food rations, wellies, a thermos of sweet hot tea and a map, just in case their journey is interrupted by an unexpected blizzard.

But if Pascal Prokop falls prey to the current precipitation predicament, he won't be too bothered.

He drives a 1990 Volvo 240 - a model that is usually seen with a couple of black labradors and muddy football boots in the back - but in Pascal's car you'll find a fully functioning wood-burning stove.

Pascal, who lives near Zurich, removed the passenger seat and in its place put a metal mounting bracket to which he then bolted the stove.

So he doesn't choke, he also installed a chimney that funnels out the carbon monoxide and smoke.

He decided to install the contraption after the car's heater broke.

Swiss officials are fine with the modification, and have even granted him a permit from the country's technical inspection authority.

■ LONDON, ENGLAND Full-scale tank built from more than 5,000 egg cartons and 26 litres of glue

For those who like their eggs with soldiers, this full-scale tank is an eggshell-lent idea – as it's built from more than 5,000 egg cartons.

The Challenger II tank was created from 5,016 egg boxes, 26 litres (5.7 gallons) of glue, more than 10,000 nails and 5,000 staples.

A team of four, headed by former film special effects maker Stuart Murdoch, took 512 hours to finish the 10m (34ft)-long sculpture.

It was created to celebrate March Fourth, an annual egg-and-spoon race run by Eggs For Soldiers in aid of Help For Heroes.

Mr Murdoch, 57, said: 'The biggest challenge was getting it through the double doors of the Imperial War Museum in one piece for the photo shoot. When I made special effects for film, we built unusual props, but never anything like this.'

The tank will be at Clapham Common, London, on March 4.

IT WASN'T ME!

CAPELLO CONVICTED OF TAX EVASION

■ LONDON, ENGLAND

TOTTENHAM Hotspur manager Fabio Capello has been convicted of tax evasion relating to payments made when he was manager of Portsmouth FC.

The Italian, who was jailed for four years at Southwark Crown Court last week, seemed bewildered by the verdict and even confused about where he was.

Capello, who won domestic titles with Milan, Roma, Juventus and Real Madrid before moving to the lower leagues of English football, shouted: "This isn't me! I don't know how he's done this, but this isn't me!" before being led away.

It is believed the verdict may have left the Italian temporarily deranged. Earlier he pleaded with the judge and insisted he was manager of the England national side and had never even been to Portsmouth.

England's manager Harry Redknapp, who yesterday won a battle of his own after the FA reinstated John Terry as captain, said: "I'm sad to see Fabio go down but you just can't trust foreigners. He had form with match-fixing at Juventus so I wasn't surprised to hear he'd been a naughty boy with his tax returns. You wouldn't want a slimy character like that in charge of your national side. No, you want a trustworthy, reliable red-blooded Englishman like 'Arry 'ere."

Redknapp, who yesterday appeared at a charity event with pop star wife Louise, has led England from strength to strength since succeeding Steve McClaren as manager and the team are now odds-on to win this summer's European Championship after their triumph at the World Cup in South Africa. This followed his remarkable success at Southampton where they won three consecutive Premier League titles.

Nicknamed 'Nostradamus' for his uncanny ability to predict how opponents will play, and even sometimes exactly when goals will be scored, England fans have credited him with supernatural powers - a claim he dismisses as 'bonkers'.

Meanwhile, he has amassed a personal fortune of more than £800m thanks to a series of shrewd investments which he declares rigorously to the Inland Revenue.

He added: "There's no big secret to what I do. It's just thinking ahead and a little bit of luck. To do the things everyone says I can I'd have to have invented a time machine, or conned everybody by paying off the press."
