HUA HIN PROPOSED (AGAIN) FOR HIGH SPEED RAIL LINK

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

It is both a fantastic possibility and a terrifying prospect as the Thai government once again is making noises about high speed rail links that will run to Hua Hin.

The Office of Transport and Traffic Policy and Planning (OTP) is set to launch a bid to procure three consultants to conduct feasibility studies on each of three routes of the planned high-speed-rail project, with a total budget for hiring the consultants of Bt300 million. The three routes they will study are Bangkok-Phitsanulok, Bangkok-Nakhon Ratchasima, and Bangkok-Hua Hin. The studies are expected to begin in June and take 14 months to complete. The rail project is to use a standard gauge of 1.435 metres and the trains to have a top speed of 250 kilometres per hour.

While there is a valid debate as to the cost effectiveness of such projects for passenger travel, freight carried by rail is a winning proposition. However the main concern for local residents if any such project gets the green light would be the issue of safety, given the number of fatal and serious accidents that currently occur with the existing railway, most notably at the numerous crossing points.

Anything that can both improve the existing rail links and relieve some of the pressure on the roads is welcome, as it would not only encourage more people to travel to the area and thus be good for business, but also help to reduce pollution and journey times. No time schedule has been publically set for anything other than the consultation process, so we suspect that many AWOL readers will have long departed the area by the time any proposed project gets completed, but we can only hope.

■ Do you wonder why we say certain things, or what they really mean? Each week we will examine a different word or phrase and tell you how it came about.

This week it is.. Loose cannon

An unpredictable person or thing, liable to cause damage if not kept in check by others.

From the 17th century to the 19th century, wooden warships carried cannon as their primary offensive weapons. In order to avoid damage from their enormous recoil when fired they were mounted on rollers and secured with rope. A loose cannon was one that had become free of its restraints and was rolling dangerously about the deck.

There is, however, no evidence that the phrase was used by sailors in the days that ships actually carried cannon. It comes from the imagination of Victor Hugo in the novel Ninety Three, 1874: "The carronade, hurled forward by the pitching, dashed into this knot of men, and crushed four at the first blow; then, flung back and shot out anew by the rolling, it cut in two a fifth poor fellow... The enormous cannon was left alone. She was given up to herself. She was her own mistress, and mistress of the vessel. She could do what she willed with both."

Henry Kingsley picked up this reference in his novel Number Seventeen, 1875, in which he made the first use of the term 'loose cannon' in English:

"At once, of course, the ship was in the trough of the sea, a more fearfully dangerous engine of destruction than Mr. Victor Hugo's celebrated loose cannon."

The earliest figurative use of 'loose cannon' in print is from The Galveston Daily News, December 1889:

The negro vote in the south is a unit now mainly because it is opposed by the combined white vote. It would in no event become, as Mr. Grady once said, "a loose cannon in a storm-tossed ship."

The phrase might have dwindled into obscurity in the 20th century but for the intervention of the US president Theodore Roosevelt. William White was a noted US journalist and politician around the turn of the 20th century and was a close friend of Roosevelt. White's Autobiography, published soon after his death in 1944 contained the following reminiscence:

He [Roosevelt] said: "I don't want to be the old cannon loose on the deck in the storm".

It's hard to believe that Thailand would be the place to find traditional Mexican cuisine. Margaritas is nuzzled in Hua Hin's night market and offers a mouth-watering menu of authentic Mexican food that always comes out fresh and delicious. Everything is home made, from our corn and flour tortillas to our delicious salsas and refried beans. Here is where you will find the best Margarita cocktails in town, made with quality Mexican Tequila. It is well located with comfortable atmosphere and great service. This restaurant is a truly authentic Mexican find in Thailand.

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

It is beneficial for a compassionate and intelligent person to stop now and again to consider the magnificence of human endeavour, so it is fortunate indeed that Andy Capp is still in print.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

You're a firm believer that travel broadens the mind, which is one reason why you haven't been outside of Missouri in more than 15 years.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

It's rare that people can live a happy, healthy life without friends, so the crushing depression you're feeling is perfectly normal.

ARIES MAR 21 – APR 20

Your belief that nothing can stop you will be tested this week by depression, procrastination, concrete barriers, dysentery, armed gunmen, and the unanimous passage of several laws targeted specifically at stopping you.

TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

After years of loneliness, you'll find the only other person on Earth who cares about cuttlefish as much as you do, inspiring a mutual hatred for the remainder of your short, violent lives.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

You firmly believe that prayer is a beneficial practice for ordering your thoughts and sorting out your feelings, but only if enough people see you doing it.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22

You will come closer to your own elemental nature this week when a sudden lance of white-hot plasma reduces you to your component atoms.

LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

You were never certain whether or not life is better with a little bit of mystery until you figured out exactly what that smell is.

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

You had always believed that there were two kinds of people in this world, but that was before you discovered the existence of the Germans.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

Your joy at discovering that there is indeed meaning and purpose to life is short-lived when it turns out to involve a bunch of difficult stuff that isn't a lot of fun.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

You'll revolutionize the dating industry when you combine advanced physics, chemistry and genetics to ensure that you are in fact the last man on Earth.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

In outer space there is in fact no such thing as "up" or "down," so it's not clear if you'll be falling forever or rising forever through the universe.

■ VALENTINE'S DAY

A chap is driving his car down a small country lane at night when his engine packs up and coasts to the side of the road next to a field.

He pops the bonnet up and is looking at the engine when across the field trots a ghostly white horse.

The horse stops at the fence and looks at the man straight in the eye.

"It's your fan belt mate" pronounces the spectral stallion.

The man, somewhat shocked by this looks aghast.

"Seriously pal, it's your fan belt, check it out!" says the horse.

The man, feeling fearful, follows the horse's instructions and looks at the fan belt. Sure enough it is missing and the man hurries to the back of the car to get a spare. He hurriedly fits the spare belt and looks at the horse.

"Told ya", declares the horse.

"Th-thank you", stutters the terrified man as he gets back in to his car.

"No probs chief", replies the horse.

The man, shaking uncontrollably drives quickly to the next village where he decides he needs a stiff drink to calm his nerves. He sees a pub on the way into the village and screeches into the car park.

Wobbly legged he walks to the bar, looking pale and pasty.

The rotund barman approaches him and says "My, my you look terrible, you just seen a ghost or something?"

"I have mate, I broke down a mile along the road and a ghost white horse told me what was wrong with my car!"

The barman leans forwards and in a deep whispering voice says, "T'was lucky you didn't meet the Black Horse..."

"Why's that?" says the man with a tremble in his voice.

"He doesn't know a thing about cars!"

■ RANGERS F.C.

A pound coin was thrown onto the pitch at Ibrox Park. Police are trying to determine whether it was a missile or a takeover bid.

The Sun newspaper today admitted hacking into Ally McCoists mobile phone.....and topped it up with a tenner.

■ CRAFTY

I met a fairy today. She said she would grant me one wish.

"I want to live forever," I said.

"Sorry," said the fairy, "I'm not allowed to grant wishes like that."

"Fine," I said, "then I want to die after the EU sorts all it's problems out!"

"You crafty little so and so," said the fairy.

■ CATS

I've never understood why women love cats.

Cats are independent, they don't listen, they don't come in when you call, they like to stay out all night, come home and expect to be fed and stroked, then want to be left alone and sleep. In other words, every quality that women hate in a man, they love in a cat.

■ NORTH AMERICA Ultimate Tazer Ball allows players to zap opponents with stun guns

Sport at its best is electrifying – but one new game takes the concept a little too literally by allowing players to tackle opponents by zapping them with stun guns.

Ultimate Tazer Ball allows players to zap opponents with 300,000-volt stun guns, to induce a muscle spasm which will make them drop the ball or trip over.

The game's US inventors say the stun guns are designed to deliver eight milliamps of current – well below the lethal dose of one amp but enough to test even the legendary ball skills of Barcelona's Lionel Messi.

In a video clip, one zapped player warns: 'If you're scared, don't play.' Another says: 'It hurts, man, it doesn't feel good.'

Only the player in possession may be zapped as teams of four compete to manoeuvre an over-sized foam ball into their opponents' net.

There are four fledgling teams – LA Nightlight, Philadelphia Killawatts, Canadian side Toronto Terror and San Diego Spartans.

Toronto Terror look set to encounter problems at home games, as stun guns are banned in Canada.

■ DURHAM, ENGLAND Bungling council spends £5,000 on bus shelter - which isn't on a bus route

The cash-strapped Durham Council, which is in the midst of making cutbacks, splashed out over £5,000 to knock down an old brick bus stop and replace it with an improved version. The only problem is that buses no longer actually serve the route - and haven't done for over two years. The council only realised when locals pointed out their mistake.

Residents slammed the building of the new bus stop, with one irate Twitter user commenting: 'Five grand of hard earned taxes on a bus stop that's not even on a bus route!'

Council workers will now have to move the unused shelter, which was installed with a blank timetable and no information - presumably because no one could find which route needed publicising there.

The council blamed the error on a misunderstanding between it and bus company Aviva - despite claims they were informed the stop was no longer in use before it was erected.

DON'T MISS THIS WEEK

Fringe Festival – Pichet Klunchun and Myself, Saturday, 25th February 2011, 7.30 pm
Created in 2004 at the Fringe Festival at Patravadi Theatre Bangkok by the Singapore artist Tang Fu Kuen, "Pichet Klunchun and Myself" was presented again at La Fête 2006. Since its creation, it has been shown in nearly 100 cities around the world. After a 7-year tour, both artists have decided to end "Pichet Klunchun and Myself" where it all started… in Thailand at the new theatre of Patravadi Mejudhon, at Vic Hua Hin! This is a co-production with La Fête, Bangkok, and Vic Hua Hin. Tickets for 900, 700 and 500 Baht (students 50% discount) are available at Vic Hua Hin: 032-827-814 to 815.

Java Jazz Cafe and Wine Bistro - Live Jazz on Wednesdays at 9pm by the Hua Hin Ensemble. Located opposite Market Village. For reservation or inquiries call 032 532799.

UPCOMING

Cha-Am International Kite Festival Friday, 9th - Sunday, 11th March, 2012 at King Rama VI Army Camp.
With each subsequent year, the Thailand International Kite Festival attracts an ever-growing number of devoted kite fans, participants and spectators, from all over Thailand as well as from countries around the region, and beyond.
As well as kite events there will also be a parachute show, a radio controlled airplane show and competition. As with any Thai festival there will be plenty of food and handicraft booths everywhere to keep you occupied as well. This annual event is really one not to be missed and definitely one of the more colourful events of the year.

FEATURED GAME

SUNDAY, 26 FEBRUARY 2012
PREMIER LEAGUE
Arsenal v Tottenham 20:30
Emirates Stadium, London, England
A big couple of weeks for Spurs chances of both silverware and a Champions League spot, starting with this, the North London derby. It must be one of the first times that Spurs have actually been above the Gunners coming into the game, which will remain unchanged regardless of the result as they are a hefty ten points clear of their bitter rivals. Arsenal could end up dropping to sixth place if they fail to win and others do. However while the wheels are apparently falling off for Arsenal, the same could be said for Spurs, and there could well be a hint of desperation about this game, which is all about pressure. We think the home side may begin to play better now pundits have written them off, while the away side could start to crumble under the unfamiliar expectations. Home win.

FIGHT, FIGHT, FIGHT!

PROFESSIONAL FIGHTERS REPRIMANDED FOR FIGHTING AFTER OTHER FIGHT

■ MUNICH, GERMANY

The boxing community has rounded on fighters David Haye and Dereck Chisora after they chose to fight in a place that is traditionally reserved for talking about fighting after a fight.

The two heavyweights decided that a little fight was what was needed after several minutes of non-violent conversation on the post-fight press conference.

British Boxing officials have criticised the pair, releasing a statement that read, "It was terrible behaviour from two men who spend most of their waking day training to punch someone's face clean off."

"We want our finely tuned fighting athletes to focus on not-fighting when it's time for talking, and then fighting when the talking time is finished."

Left: Dereck Chisora adopts the 'He started it!' playground appeal to onlookers and officials

"They know they've done wrong, and have promised that in future they will limit trying to inflict serious head injuries upon each other to the times when we specifically say they can."

Fight fans have also criticised the incident, claiming that the television viewing angles were all wrong and that the lack of a five-hour build up to the incident left them 'cold'.

Boxing fan Simon Williams said, "As big fights go, it was very disappointing. Even more so than Haye's fight against Klitschko last year."

"I've seen public fights between boxers and retired fighters get out of hand before. They went out onto the street, cheered on by fans of both sides and it was great entertainment for us viewing fans."

"They even had family around then cheering them on, and it was topped off when the loudmouth fight promotor got a smack in the mouth at the end."

"Or is that Rocky V?"
