RACE DAY?

HUA HIN IN THE RUNNING TO BE ASIAN RACE HUB

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

Hua Hin is already many things to many people, and soon to be added to the list, if one expert is to be believed, is as a centre of excellence for motorsports. An ambitious plan has been hatched to convert the existing facilities into an unrivalled base for both training future track stars and hosting racing events.

Taket Hemichi is a Thai-Japanese motorsports expert who claims that Hua Hin is an ideal location to hold top class motorsports events, possibly even Formula One. As he explains, most of the necessary ingredients are already present for the race track itself; "First you have the virtually unused Hua Hin Airport - this will easily be adapted so that the runway becomes the start/finish straight and the pit lane alongside; at the northern end of the runway it is elevated above both the main Petchkasem Road and the railway line, and all that will be needed is the construction of the 'Palm Hills Bend', a right hander that will curve back over the railway and then join the Phetchkasem Road going south. The cars would then travel under the start/finish straight through the existing tunnel and onto another fast straight before diverting onto the existing Go Kart Hua Hin track (to be named the Go Kart Hairpin); a newly constructed bridge (the Hilton Flyover) would then take them back onto the start/ finish straight - it would be like a classic figure of eight track from the old days." Mr Hemichi went on to tell us that this also explains the construction work on the Canal Road, as this would be designed to take the traffic that normally uses that stretch of Phetchkasem Road.

We asked the proprietor of the Hua Hin Go Kart track, Mr Neil Heron, what he had heard of these plans, and he responded by saying, "Eh, eh, calm down - give us a beer and I'll tell you everything I know." As it stands there is no evidence to suggest that there will be a top class motor race anywhere in the area, anytime within the next four years.

■ Do you wonder why we say certain things, or what they really mean? Each week we will examine a different word or phrase and tell you how it came about.

This week it is.. Handle with kid gloves

Handle a situation, or a person or an object, delicately and gingerly.

Kid gloves are, of course, gloves made from the skin of a young goat. However when they were first fashioned in the 18th century they were more often made from lambskin, as that was easier to come by. They were clearly not intended for use when you were pruning the hedge and wearing kid gloves was the sartorial equivalent of pale white skin, that is, it indicated that the wearer was rich enough to indulge in a life of genteel indoor idleness. The earliest mentions of kid gloves are from England in the 1730s and the following is a typical report of a wealthy gentleman, laid out in his 'Sunday best', from Bagnall's News, in The Ipswich Journal, December 1734: The Corpse of Mr. Thorp, A Distiller in Soho, who died a few Days since, said to be worth £10000 was put into his Coffin, quilted within with white Sattin; and after several yards of fine Holland [best-quality linen] were wrapt about his Body... on his Head was a Cap of the same Holland tied with a white Ribbond; he has about his Neck two Yards of Cambrick; a Cambrick Handkerchief between his Hands, on which he had a pair of white Kid Gloves: and in this manner he lay in state some Days and was afterwards buried in Buckinghamshire.

At that time, kid gloves were viewed as rather ostentatious and only suitable for the nouveau riche - much as heavy gold chains might be viewed today. In fact, the description 'kid-gloved' came to be used as an insult, implying a lack of manhood, as was recorded in The Leicester Chronicle in January 1842:

This contraband system of political allusions appears to suit the taste and nerves of the cautious, gentlemanly, kid-gloved Conservatism, which cannot endure the shock of attending a public meeting.

It was only when the expression (and presumably also, the gloves) crossed the Atlantic that the negative connotations were lost and 'handling (or treating) with kid gloves' began to be used as we use it today, that is with the meaning 'delicately; carefully'.

It's hard to believe that Thailand would be the place to find traditional Mexican cuisine. Margaritas is nuzzled in Hua Hin's night market and offers a mouth-watering menu of authentic Mexican food that always comes out fresh and delicious. Everything is home made, from our corn and flour tortillas to our delicious salsas and refried beans. Here is where you will find the best Margarita cocktails in town, made with quality Mexican Tequila. It is well located with comfortable atmosphere and great service. This restaurant is a truly authentic Mexican find in Thailand.

Look us up on the internet for more information; we have dozens of customer reviews in Tripadvisor.com.

Reservations are recommended especially for parties over 8 people.

■ YORKSHIRE LAW FIRM

The Salvation Army in Yorkshire realised that it had never received a donation from one of Leeds' most successful lawyers.

So a Salvation Army volunteer made an appointment to see the lawyer in his lavish office.

The volunteer opened the meeting by saying, "Our research shows that even though your annual business turnover is about three million pounds, you don't give a penny to charity. Wouldn't you like to give something back to your community through the Salvation Army?"

The lawyer thought for a moment and said, "First, did your research also show you that my mother is dying after a long, painful illness and has huge care bills that are far beyond her ability to pay?"

Embarrassed, the Salvation Army volunteer mumbled, "Uh... No, I didn't know that."

"Secondly," says the lawyer, "did it show that my brother, a disabled Afghanistan Veteran, is blind, confined to a wheelchair and is unable to support his wife and six children?"

The stricken volunteer began to stammer an apology, but was cut off again.

"Thirdly," the lawyer said, "did your research also show you that my sister's husband died in a car accident, leaving her penniless with a mortgage and the burden of supporting three children, one of whom is disabled and another who has learning disabilities requiring an array of private tutors and specialist nurses?"

Completely beaten, the humiliated Salvation Army volunteer said, "I'm so sorry. I had no idea."

And then the lawyer said, "So if I don't give any money to them, what makes you think I'd give any to you?"

■ VET VS DOCTOR

A veterinarian was feeling ill and went to see her doctor. The doctor asked her all the usual questions, about symptoms, how long had they been occurring, etc., when she interrupted him: "Hey look, I'm a vet — I don't need to ask my patients these kind of questions: I can tell what's wrong just by looking. Why can't you?"

The doctor nodded, looked her up and down, wrote out a prescription, and handed it to her and said, "There you are. Of course, if that doesn't work, we'll have to have you put down."

■ DONATIONS

A driver is stuck in a traffic jam going into London and nothing is moving in either direction.

Suddenly a man knocks on the window.

The driver rolls down his window and asks, "What happened? What's the hold-up?"

"Terrorists have kidnapped David Cameron, and Nick Clegg", the man says in a panicked voice.

"They're asking for a ten million pound ransom, and if they don't get it in an hour they are going to douse them with petrol and set them on fire!

We're racing the clock and going from car to car, taking up a collection."

The driver asks, "On average, how much is everyone giving?"

"About four litres!".

■ HAMPSHIRE, ENGLAND School slammed over slippers policy

A primary school headteacher sent letters to parents telling them their children should wear slippers at school

A headteacher has asked her pupils to wear slippers at school to prevent the "beautiful" new carpets from being ruined by muddy feet.

A letter sent to parents of children at Barncroft primary school in Havant, Hampshire, requested that children take off their outdoor shoes on arrival in the morning.

The letter states: "We were hoping to keep our beautiful carpets looking clean and bright for as long as we can.

■ MILFORD HAVEN, WALES Man invents device to feed dog using Twitter messages

IT consultant Nat Morris, 30, uses an electronic system to give his border terrier Toby a 'tweet treat' by sending him a Twitter message to @FeedToby.

Mr Morris spends a lot of time working away from home and isn't always able to feed four-year-old Toby by hand but, by using his new invention, he can send his dog a treat from anywhere in the world.

He said: 'Toby absolutely loves it. At first, he didn't know what was going on. Now he sits underneath, wagging his tail and waiting for the treats to drop.'

And Mr Morris has even rigged up an online camera so he can see Toby eating at his home in Milford Haven, west Wales.

He is considering patenting his system but one problem is that friends and family have been sending tweets to Toby.

'People have been sending him food at all hours of the day – so I had to limit it to between nine in the morning and nine in the evening,' he added.

When a tweet is sent, it is received by a mini-computer, and a buzzer sounds alerting Toby. A motor from a small HP printer comes to life and pulls open a trap door which releases a serving of food down a tube and into Toby's food bowl below.

FEATURED GAME

WEDNESDAY, 14 MARCH 2012
PREMIER LEAGUE
Liverpool v Everton 03:00

Disappointing that one of the classic derby games had to be rescheduled (due to the Carling Cup Final) to this slot, but sometimes night time conjours up a classic, and we think this might be one. Both have plenty to play for, with Liverpool hoping to close the gap to fourth place and Everton to get within two points of their city rivals. Not really much between them so we think this will be another derby draw.

DI MATTEO BECOMES CHELSEA MANAGER ON 45 MINUTE ROLLING CONTRACT

■ LONDON, ENGLAND

Following the sacking of Andre Villas-Boas, former Chelsea midfielder Roberto Di Matteo has been given a 45 minute rolling contract by the club's owner, Roman Abramovich, with the option to extend to a full 90 minutes if they are winning at half time.

Abramovich handed Di Matteo the task of winning the first half against Birmingham City in their FA Cup replay this week.

Former Chelsea boss Jose Mourinho was the bookies favourite to take charge for the second half if he failed, with Barcelona manager Pep Guardiola lined up had the match gone to extra time.

It is believed that the Russian billionaire had considered turning to former England manager Fabio Capello if the game had gone to the lottery of a penalty shootout.

A statement on the club's website read, "We would like to offer Anders our gratitude for his efforts, but his inability to win trophies everytime Mr Abramovich clicks his fingers means that he had to go."

Pressure had been mounting on Villas-Boas and he appeared to have a difficult relationship with several of Chelsea's senior players.

After Saturday's defeat against West Brom he said, "It is my job to prepare the players and instil within them the belief and desire to win."

"Once they cross the white line it is then up to them to do whatever John Terry or Frank Lampard say."

Di Matteo revealed he was confident that he would be at Chelsea for the long haul. "I expect to be here until at least half past eight tomorrow night," he said. "Hopefully I'll be given time to lay the foundations that will allow me to successfully complete the post-match interview."
