THE SURVEY SAYS...

RESULTS OF THE AWOL SAFETY SURVEY

HUA HIN, THAILAND

Our latest survey has now finished, and while the response was quite small the results still make interesting reading. The vast majority of respondents were from people living here permanently (87.5%) in either their own home or a rented house, with 75% being male. All of those who responded were from either Australia or the UK originally.

Thailand was regarded as a bit safer than elsewhere by 37.5%, a little less safe by the same number and about the same by a quarter. Hua Hin was regarded as the same or much safer than the rest of Thailand by 62.5%, with the remainder believing it is less safe. Most respondents based their answers on personal experience. Not surprisingly the area of most concern was safety on the roads, with over 75% regarding both Thailand and Hua Hin as less safe than elsewhere, and 100% when on a motorcycle. However 50% felt that you are safer at home here. Possibly the most damning response was how the police are perceived, with 75% feeling less safe in dealing with them in Thailand as a whole, and 50% much less safe in Hua Hin.

Causes of crime in Hua Hin and Thailand were seen to be fairly evenly spread, with corruption regarded as the most common, and equal attribution to poverty, greed, racism, drugs, lack of education and unemployment.

Avoiding confrontations and certain areas at night were voted as being the best advice to visitors here, while having an alarm system on your home was regarded as the best deterrent. Other deterrents favoured were having a dog, living in a gated community with security and avoid travelling alone. All respondents thought that reducing corruption and better law enforcement was the best way to reduce crime and improve safety. Nearly 40% were considering leaving because of their concerns over crime and safety, while half believe that these issues will stop tourists coming to Hua Hin.

■ OREGON, USA & PERTHSHIRE, SCOTLAND Dull and Boring towns to be twinned

A village called Dull in Perthshire is to be unofficially twinned with a US town called Boring in Oregon.

The people of Dull, Perthshire, 'are already smiling at the prospect of a new road sign' once their link to the Oregon town in the US has been approved.

The potential twinning is the brainchild of Dull resident Elizabeth Leighton, who visited Boring while on holiday.

The Oregon town has a population of 1200 however, making it too big to be official paired with the tiny Scottish village – though the partnership offer will be discussed at the town's next meeting.

Dull community councillor Marjorie Keddie said: 'It might seem like a joke, but this could have real benefits for Dull.

'Everyone has been smiling at the prospect of the very eye-catching road sign this will inevitably require.'

There are few similarities between the two locations, though Jim Hart of Boring's newspaper The Sandy Post, said: 'One of the things our communities share is the weather, we get a lot of rain and snow every year.'

■ ROMANIA Nude pillion passenger allowed to ride on after she gets 'no helmet' ticket

A woman riding on the back of a motorbike stark naked was pulled over by police - because she wasn't wearing her helmet.

The pillion passenger's dangerous curves no doubt proved distracting for other drivers on the road, but cops clearly didn't want to see her cover up.

After pulling the motorbike over in Romania, officers let the modern day Lady Godiva off with just a warning and a ticket for not donning a helmet.

The cheeky rider then hopped back on the bike, nude but for a crash helmet, and sped off - giving fellow motorists plenty of photo opportunities.

One disbelieving witness said: 'The officer was a traffic cop and the only traffic offence she'd committed was in not wearing a helmet.

'So he gave her a warning and a ticket and told her and her companion to ride on.'

■ Do you wonder why we say certain things, or what they really mean? Each week we will examine a different word or phrase and tell you how it came about.

This week it is... Rise and shine

Get out of bed and prepare for work.

The earliest use of 'rise and shine' in print allude to a biblical reference, in Isaiah 60:1. King James Version, 1611, gives that as:

Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the LORD is risen upon thee.

The earliest examples of the actual phrase 'rise and shine' don't come from the bible itself but are clearly directly influenced by it; for example, The Testimony of William Erbery, 1658, a book of religious observations directed "To the Christian Reader":

They [the Christian saints] shall so rise and shine, that the glory shall rise upon them.

The link to Isaiah 60:1 is even clearer in the use of the phrase 'arise, and shine', which is found in several Christian texts of the mid 17th century - for instance Robert Gell's An Essay toward the Amendment of the last English-Translation of the Bible, 1659 and Thomas Douglas's Jerubbaal: or, A Vindication of the Sober Testimony against Sinful Complyance, 1664.

The first non-religious uses, albeit those probably still referring back to the biblical text, are references to the sun, as in this example from Maryland paper The Torch Light And Public Advertiser, February 1824:

Courage, child of Washington,
Though thy fate disastrous stems,
We have seen the setting sun
Rise and shine with brighter beams.

The use of 'rise and shine' as a wake up call for soldiers is what has given us the expression in everyday use. In that context 'rise' just means 'rouse yourself' and 'shine' derives from the shining of boots that soldiers were expected to do each morning. It is difficult to know if it was coined independently of the biblical source or whether it was also a jokey reference which compared the bleary-eyed rough soldiery to the radiant Christian venerables - probably the latter.

When used in the British Army 'rise and shine' was, and still is, preceded by 'wakey-wakey'.

■ FAT GIRLS 1

I was in the pub last night and there was this fat bird dancing on a table. I walked past and said "Nice legs"
She giggled coyly and said "Do you think so?"
I replied "Definitely, most tables would have collapsed by now."

■ BLUE IS THE COLOUR 1

Chelsea manager, Roberto Di Matteo's master plan worked a treat the other night. He got Terry to get himself sent off after 20 minutes leaving the Barcelona players to panic about their wives' safety up in the stands for 70 minutes.

■ BLUE IS THE COLOUR 2

John Terry has just tweeted how sad he is to be missing the Champions League Final due to suspension, but that he will most likely watch the game at Christine Bleakley's house.

■ FAT GIRLS 2

So she asked me, "Do these jeans make my bum look like the side of the house?"
"No" I said. "The side of the house isn't blue".

■ PROOF (thanks to Grahame)

Women always say that giving birth is way more painful than a guy getting kicked in the nuts.
Here is proof that they are wrong.
A year or so after giving birth a woman will often say "it'd be nice to have another baby".
You never hear a bloke say " I wouldn't mind another kick in the nuts".
Case closed.

You can put it off today, and you might even be able to brush it aside tomorrow, but pretty soon you're going to have to figure out why your arm is on fire.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

You'll turn to religion this week, dislocating your neck, both shoulders, and most of your tendons in the process.

ARIES MAR 21 – APR 20

Sex with you is an earth-shattering experience, especially the part where hundreds of Indonesians lose their lives.

TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

Your shortness of breath and wild fainting spells will be cured this week, thanks to a series of well-placed commas.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

Don't spend the rest of your life wondering "what if?" Dress the dog in full military regalia before it's too late.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22

The human body is a work of art, which explains why those security guards won't let you touch it.

LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

Being bright, handsome, and exceptionally talented isn't all that it's cracked up to be. So at least you've got that going for you.

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

You'll feast on the flesh of your mortal enemy, which is lucky for you, as your mortal enemy is the orange-braised duck.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

Turns out it was the butler, in the study, with the candlestick. But enough about your love life.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

Your work with disadvantaged and at-risk youth continues this Thursday when you're forced to hand them your wallet.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

Friends will soon discover the secret ingredient to your world-famous lemon bars, though they'll lack the necessary motor functions to tell others.

FEATURED GAME

SATURDAY, 5TH MAY 2012
FA CUP FINAL
Chelsea v Liverpool 23:15
Wembley Stadium, London, England
This season's final is devalued once more, with league games taking place on the same day and the kick off time shifted from the traditional 3pm slot. Shame on the FA, as this is the greatest and oldest cup competition in the world. Be that as it may, these two teams are both returning to form and should put on a good show; the stage appears to be set for one Fernando Torres to snatch the trophy from his former club.

FIRED UP FOR THE OLYMPICS

MOD TO STOP HIJACKED PLANES CRASHING DURING THE OLYMPICS BY FIRING MISSILES AT THEM

■ LONDON, ENGLAND

Surface-to-air missiles could be deployed at five sites across London to ensure that any devastation caused by airborne terrorist attacks don't affect the Olympic games, only the surrounding areas inhabited by people that don't have tickets.

Exercise Olympic Guardian is being held this week to see if it is possible to stop a plane falling out of the sky by blowing it back upwards.

Defence Secretary Philip Hammond insisted that the public will be perfectly safe "as long as the debris doesn't land on them."

"The best way to deal with any airborne terrorist strike is to stop any impact with the surface below," he said.

"We feel the best way to do this would be to fire missiles at any threat so that it blows it into small pieces that will hopefully float harmlessly to the ground."

Above: Nothing will be allowed to damage West Ham's future ground

"We must do everything we can to ensure that the Olympic Games are safe for everyone who isn't unfortunate enough to live on a nearby housing estate."

Asked whether debris would fall on urban areas if a missile was fired, standing joint commander General Sir Nick Parker avoided saying the word 'no' in such a way that he might as well have just said 'yes'.

"I accept that this is a very, very challenging situation," he said.

"What's crucial is that people will still be able to marvel at the sight of seeing how far someone can throw a pointy stick without the fear of a whole jumbo jet plummeting out of the sky and obscuring their view."

Chris Allison, the National Olympic Security Coordinator, was keen to offer reassurance to people who live close to the Olympic stadium.

"Residents should take an enormous sense of pride from the fact that they have been chosen as the official collateral damage of the Olympic Games."
