OUT OF TIME?

NO NEWS IS BAD NEWS FOR HUA HIN JAZZ FESTIVAL

HUA HIN, THAILAND

The annual shambolic preparation for the Hua Hin Jazz Festival is scaling new heights this year, following last year's thrice moved event, which still attracted thousands of visitors to the town.

At a time when the town could most do with the tourism boost the event brings, the dates for the 2012 festival have not been announced, even provisionally, and while it has already become an annual farce, this year is looking like topping the lot with regard to planning and promotion.

We contacted last year's organisers, Bangkok Fanatix, who we had been led to believe had been given a two year contract to organise the event, and were told by them that they would not be involved in this year's festival 'unless something changed significantly'. They did not directly expand on what they meant by this however, but it seems likely that last year's problems with financing and coordination with the local authorities would have played a part in this. The tourist authority, TAT, informed us that they couldn't give any comfirmed information, but that the festival 'might be in the second weekend in June'. When we asked who was organising the event, we were told 'Bangkok Fanatix'.

For such a major event, not just for the town, province or country, but internationally, to be so poorly organised and promoted year in, year out is an absolute scandal, resulting in lost revenue for local businesses and an embarrassing stain on the town's reputation, making it more difficult every year for anyone to organise and finance the festival.

Will it happen this year? Based on previous experience, it probably will, but they are almost out of time, and it could be so much better.

■ PENNSYLVANIA, USA Police officer accused of breaking into neighbour's house to do laundry

An American police officer is under investigation after allegedly breaking into his neighbour's house to do his laundry.

Pennsylvanian police officer Jason Rocco is accused of breaking into his neighbour's house through the back door before unloading his dirty washing.

The startled homeowner returned to his property, on Marie Avenue in Avalon, to find his dryer switched on and running. He found a bundle of clothes inside the machine, including what appeared to be Mr Rocco's Marine Corps T-shirts.

The homeowner fears the rogue officer, who has been charged with trespassing and criminal mischief, may have been breaking in regularly in his absence.

He called in the police after later receiving an usually high electricity bill despite not having lived in the property for months.

When questioned, Mr Rocco told officers that the door was already broken and that he 'just had to do some laundry'.

Rankin Police have refused to comment on the case and reports that officer Rocco had asked for his clothes to be returned.

■ GEORGIA, USA Mud pit jumping and toilet seat tossing feature in annual Redneck Olympics

Just weeks before the London 2012 Olympics kick off, Americans have been taking part in a rather different competition - the 16th annual Redneck Olympics.

The event, which took place in East Dubin, Georgia, kicked off with the traditional lighting of a torch made from a beer can - and carried on with some rather unusual events.

Those taking part had the chance to bob for pig's trotters, throw themselves into mud pits and take part in toilet seat tossing in a bid to win one of the tournament's beer can-shaped trophies.

The Games began in 1996 - the year that the summer Olympics were held in Atlanta - and were created by a local radio broadcaster in response to a remark that the Games 'were being held by a bunch of rednecks'.

More than 5,000 people turned up to the first-ever Games, with a further 95,000 having attended in the past ten years.

■ Do you wonder why we say certain things, or what they really mean? Each week we will examine a different word or phrase and tell you how it came about.

This week it is... Handbags at ten paces

A confrontation which is histrionic but which doesn't involve physical violence. Such confrontations are also called handbag situations.

This British phrase might sound odd to anyone who is not familiar with the earlier pistols at ten paces, which relates to dueling. That phrase, and its counterpart pistols at dawn, were the stating of the arrangements that preceded duels. Such duels were dangerous and duelists were often killed, although the 'pistols' phrases owe more to Hollywood than historical record.

The handbags at ten paces and handbags at dawn versions began to be used in the 1980s to describe confrontations between players in football matches. Professional footballers know they will be sent off if they hit another player, so emotion has to be expressed via posturing, facial grimacing and verbal abuse. The implication carried by the phrases was that, although a great deal of preamble to violence was shown, the actual confrontations were in the nature of 'I'll scratch your eyes out' cat-fights. These were typified by the many high-profile matches between Manchester United and Arsenal in the years around the turn of the millennium. These matches were usually highly charged as they often had a decisive effect on the outcome of the Premiership championship. This, coupled with the fact that many of the players had reputations for violent play but didn't want to risk getting sent off, lead to several handbags at ten paces incidents.

The football manager and later commentator, Ron Atkinson, was fond of using this phrase, often shortened just to handbags. He invented several somewhat surreal footballing terms, so he may well have coined this too, although there is no record confirming that.

The earliest record I can find of the term in print is from a piece headed Who said what in the world of sport in 1986, in The Times 1 January 1987:

"It was a case of handbags at three paces."

Clearly, the precise number of paces isn't significant but, for the tidy minded, the first record found of the ten paces variant is from a report of a football game in The Sunday Times, September 1993, headed Leeds win out in battle of the brawlers:

"Kamara was booked for arguing before the referee took four names in as many minutes: Ward and Wallace for handbags at 10 paces, Deane for a hideous foul on Cowan..."

Why handbags? Well, as well as the obvious effeminate imagery, the phrase was coined when Margaret Thatcher was Prime Minister. She was said to give ministers who she saw as slackers a 'good handbagging', i.e. a verbal dressing down.

It may also have been influenced by the Monty Python sketch - The Batley Townswomens' Guild presents the Battle of Pearl Harbor, in which the Python team, dressed as women, recreate the battle by flailing at each other with handbags.

The more recent (mid-1990s) term handbag house also calls on handbag imagery. House is a form of electronic dance music that is often relentless and uncompromising. Handbag house is a variant that has catchy tunes and wider popular appeal and as such is derided by clubbing aficionados. The allusion is to women dancing in groups around their handbags.

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

While it's true you often sit AROUND the house, this has little to do with your weight.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

You're not the kind of person who is afraid of a little hard work, which in today's corporate world means you're pretty much screwed.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

When you said in a fit of despair that "everyone hates" you, you forgot about Tammy. If anything, she likes you a little too much for comfort.

.ARIES MAR 21 – APR 20

You've tried everything you can think of to stop yourself from gaining weight. Unfortunately, you have your best ideas while eating entire coconut-cream pies.

TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

Despite your efforts to be a modern-day hero, you will slowly develop into a postmodern-era Internet meme.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

You've delivered babies, made passionate love, and built up your own business, but you'll finally encounter a problem you can't solve with your fists.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22

You will learn through bitter experience why there's no Book Of Doug in the Bible.

LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

Leos are known for their forgiving and compassionate nature, which is probably why you keep getting screwed with your pants on.

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

Your insatiable need to be the centre of attention leads to your becoming loathed and shunned, except by the millions of fans of your TV show.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

You will soon encounter a strapping, sexy authority figure, but be wary: In the early stages of the relationship, it's better to just let him give you the speeding ticket.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

Although you've tried to be a decent person, that will eventually wind up making everything that much funnier to observers.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

Jupiter entering your sign is usually great, but he'll stay for at least a week longer than is comfortable, use all your clean towels and toilet paper, and never offer to pay for a damn thing.

IT'S A STICK UP!

EURO CRISIS ESCALATES AS PLAYGROUND VALUE OF ENGLAND SQUAD PANINI STICKERS PLUMMETS

■ LONDON, ENGLAND

With expectations of an England triumph at Euro 2012 at an all-time low, the swapsy value of Panini stickers featuring the 23-man squad has reached rock-bottom.

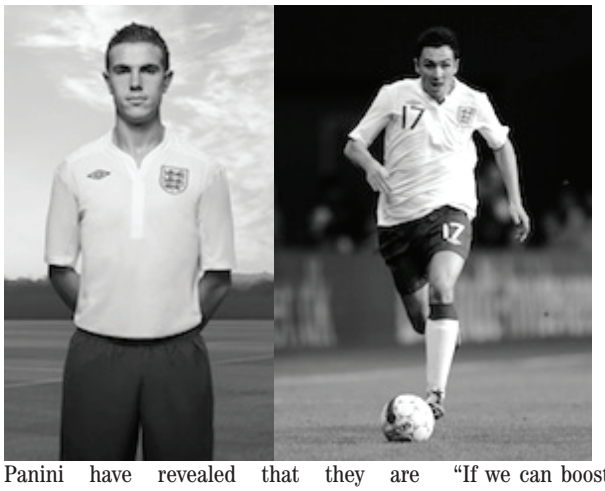
Collectors have revealed their reluctance to buy stickers in the fear that they could end up with a Glen Johnson or an Andy Carroll, leading to fears that lack of demand could lead to a playground crisis.

"With investment comes risk," explained 8 year-old Ollie Hubbard.

"When you buy stickers you're hoping for a Van Persie or a Ronaldo, but there's always the risk of ending up with a Stewart Downing."

"If that happens then you're in a situation where you've got a holding you simply can't shift."

"You always end up with multiple stickers of a particular player, and if that player is someone like John Terry then you've got a playground currency that you can't even give away."



Left:The dreaded Henderson/ Downing combo sticker that boys all over the world are dreading

Panini have revealed that they are considering a round of quantitative easing that will involve injecting large amounts of stickers from stronger squads such as Spain and Holland into newsagents.

A Panini spokesperson revealed that the move would hopefully reduce the risk and therefore increase demand.

"If we can boost consumer confidence then we're hopeful we can avert a catastrophe."

The spokesperson went on to warn that injuries to the England squad prior to the tournament could cause irreparable damage.

"Things look pretty bleak at the moment, but if we have to introduce a Jordan Henderson sticker into the market, it'll be game over."
