What's happening, and might be happening, in and around Hua Hin

SLOW SEASON

A ROUNDUP OF RECENT NEWS AS ANNUAL SLUMP COMES EARLY

HUA HIN, THAILAND

It doesn't happen often, but this week there are no major stories in the area that we can report on, so instead we have a roundup of some small local news items that you might have missed.

- Transport links for Hua Hin got another boost recently as the Big Yellow Bus company started a new route on their luxury buses to Phuket. Only one bus in each direction a day for the nine hour journey, with the departures from Hua Hin at 8 a.m, and from Phuket at 7 a.m. The service started on 19th May and the long-distance coaches used each have 30 first-class massage seats – seats with massage-vibration units built in – and individual entertainment systems. Tickets cost 617 baht one way, or 1,050 return (return fare includes a 15% discount until the end of July). More information on www.iloveyellowbus.com.
- Local golf star, Prom Meesawat, won the Singha Pattaya Open at the Burapa Golf Club in May, successfully defending his title there.
- More golf news as it was announced that the third annual Hyatt Open 2012 amateur golf tournament organised by Hyatt Regency Hua Hin and Grand Hyatt Erawan Bangkok, would be held over the weekend of 21 - 22 July 2012 at the Banyan Golf Club in Hua Hin.
- And finally, of interest to some of our Danish residents is the news that the Danish reality show, Tempted (Fristet) is shooting the second season of the show in Hua Hin. The production team consists of up to 100 people, who arrived at the end of May and are staying for two months. The show will air in Denmark this autumn.

■ LEICESTER, ENGLAND Homeowner sick of cold calls changes name to Tim P-P-P-P-P-P-P-P-P-Price Pestered homeowner Tim Price, who is sick of cold-callers, has put them off by changing his name.

The 49-year-old, from Leicester, hopes his name will make people think twice about contacting him.

'It's pronounced Tim Per-per-per-per-per-per-per-per-per-per-rice,' he said. 'I like it. I did it to put them off, all these people who keep calling me trying to sell me things I don't want.

Tim said he has no regrets over the name changes and will now refer to himself as Tim '10p' Price. 'Most people I've told have had a real laugh about it,' he said. 'When I rang the woman at HSBC, my bank, she was wetting herself.

'I think it's funny. One of my neighbours told in me great detail how much he hates it. He said I was a bloody idiot, but I told him where to get off.'

■ CROSBY, ENGLAND Antony Gormley sculptures and London taxi covered in pink knitwear

Antony Gormley's iron men sculptures have long stood naked on Crosby beach, but thanks to a Guerrilla knitter they've finally been given some dignity.

Two of the artist's sculptures have received the unexpected protection of woolly all-in-ones to shield them from the coastal winds.

Polish-born Agata Oleksiak gave one a pink, purple and green crocheted jumpsuit, while the other was brought to life in a white, grey and black number.

She explained that the new outfits were 'transforming old into new', adding that 'the pieces have been there for a while and people stop paying attention to them'.

Gormley's lifelike beach sculptures have stood in the sands since 2005 and the artist revealed to the BBC that he was loving their new looks.

'I feel that barnacles provide the best cover-up, but this is a very impressive substitute!' he joked.

Guerrilla knitting, otherwise known as yarn bombing, is a rapidly growing trend and has become a popular alternative to graffiti as a way to brighten up usually bland urban spaces and sculptures.

Anyone who fancies themselves as a guerrilla knitter can take part in International Yarn Bombing Day on June 9.

■ Do you wonder why we say certain things, or what they really mean? Each week we will examine a different word or phrase and tell you how it came about.

This week it is... Elephants

Several phrases use elephants as a way of expressing some meaning; we have covered 'the elephant in the room' in a previous English Corner, and here we investigate two other jumbo related phrases.

Firstly, we have 'A white elephant'

The meaning of this is a burdensome possession; creating more trouble than it is worth. It is commonly attributed to large state building projects that are perceived as a waste of taxpayers money, such as the Millenium Dome in London, and it is feared that the Olympic Stadium in London might become a white elephant.

White (albino) elephants were regarded as holy in ancient times in Thailand and other Asian countries. Keeping a white elephant was a very expensive undertaking, since the owner had to provide the elephant with special food and provide access for people who wanted to worship it. If a Thai King became dissatisfied with a subordinate, he would give him a white elephant. The gift would, in most cases, ruin the recipient.

References to Indian and Thai veneration of white elephants dates back to at least the early 17th century. The first reference in English to the idiomatic meaning of the term 'white elephant' comes in 1851 G. E. Jewbury's Letters, 1892:

"His services are like so many white elephants, of which nobody can make use, and yet that drain one's gratitude, if indeed one does not feel bankrupt."

The second elephant phrase we look at is 'An elephant never forgets', more correctly called a proverb.

First attested in the United States in 'Blue Ridge' by W. Martyn. The proverb is probably of Greek origin. The Greeks sometimes say, 'The camel never forgets an injury,' according to Burton Stevenson. 'To have a memory like an elephant' is used as a figure of speech." From "Random House Dictionary of Popular Proverbs and Sayings" by Gregory Y. Titelman (Random House, New York, 1996).

A second reference adds to this and has an earlier citation date: "Said of someone with a prodigious memory, usually for slights and wrongs. It was not the memory of the elephant but that of the camel that was renowned amongst the Greeks long ago. A Greek proverb ran 'Camels never forget an injury.'

Proverbial reference to the elephant's memory is relatively recent. In 'Reginald: Reginald on Besetting Sins' , the camel is usurped by the elephant: 'Women and elephants never forget an injury.' The author, Saki, was no stranger to elephants having been born in Burma and lived there, and would have appreciated the intelligence of the animal. The working elephant memorises a large number of commands given by the mahout and recognizes many other animals and people, thus remembering both kindnesses and injuries. Since its life-span is 50 or 60 years these memories are long-lived. Usage: Usually said of a person who does not forget injuries, but an 'elephantine memory' could just be a good one." From the "Dictionary of Proverbs and their Origins" by Linda and Roger Flavell (First published in the UK by Kyle Cathie Ltd, Barnes and Noble Inc, 1997, New York).

■ POST TURTLE

While suturing a laceration on the hand of a 90 year old man a doctor and the old man were discussing Prime Minister Cameron's reform ideas. The old man said "Well, ya know, old Cameron is a post turtle".

So, not knowing what he meant the doctor asked him what a "post turtle" was. And he said "When your driving down a country road, and you come across a fence post with a turtle balanced on top, that's a post turtle.

You know he didn't get there by himself, he doesn't belong there, he can't get anything done while he's up there, and you just want to help the poor thing down."

■ LIFE

Two men are discussing their lives. One says, "I'm getting married. I'm tired of a messy apartment, dirty dishes, and no clothes to wear."

The other one says, "I'm getting divorced for the same reasons."

■ LIVERPOOL

A Scouser is walking down the high street in Croydon when he sees a video entitled "Liverpool The Glory Years" in the window display of a chairty shop.

He goes in and says to the assistant: "Eh ar kid, ow much for the 'Pool video like?"

After wiping the phlegm from his face, the assistant replies: "£100."

"That's a bit steep innit la?, the lovable cheeky scamp asks, "ow come its dat dear soft lad?"

"Well," the assistant says, "it's £1 for the tape and £99 for the Betamax player."

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

You will be given a second chance in life this week due to your employer's failure to comply with federal regulations regarding the mishandling of radioactive medical waste.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

The sun is in Virgo, the moon is in Capricorn, and Cancer is in Taurus this week. You however, are still single.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

Few will be able to resist your charms this week, especially if you keep using those sawed-off 12-gauge charms..

ARIES MAR 21 – APR 20

Patience will see you through life's most harrowing times. Plus you can fake patience by just sleeping constantly.

TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

For the last time: You do not have miraculous stigmata that cause you to bleed like the wounded Christ. You've been shot.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

Remember, the slow cycle of sun, wind, and rain can sunder even the hardest stone, so whatever you do, don't go outside.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22

Although Mercury is rising in Venus this week, do not worry; this is just a mystic-sounding horoscope term. No actual planetary collision is taking place.

LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

The stars will give you fifty bucks if you go over to that guy in the next cubicle who's always talking loudly into his hands-free device and pour scalding hot coffee into his lap.

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

Your sign is usually subject to the rule of water, but in truth, Funkadelic's "Red Hot Mama" is what really rules.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

Don't sink to the level of those who would drag you down with their judicious criticism. Instead, listen to those who praise you indiscriminately no matter what.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

It doesn't matter if the other students approve of your "Blood on the Mats" yoga regimen. All that matters are the results.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

Everything negative that happens to you this week will be a direct result of you consulting the I Ching, that fallacious oracular slut.

Most, if not all of the games are being shown in Thailand on the Thai channels 3,5 and 7; however due to a dispute between the company that bought the rights, GMM Grammy, and True Visions, at press time it was being reported that the True Visions signal for those channels would be blacked out while the games were on. This may be resolved by the time the tournament starts however.

FANTASY FOOTBALL - EURO 2012

NEVER IN A MILLION YEARS

GOAL-LINE TECHNOLOGY 'UNDER CONSIDERATION' SAYS TIME AMBASSADOR FROM EARTH COUNCIL OF ELDERS 4715 A.D.

■ PARIS, FRANCE

An ambassador from the far future, sent as a goodwill mission from Earth many centuries to come, has reported 'encouraging progress' in introducing goal-line technology to professional football.

In a wide-ranging presentation, Ambassador Zarg spoke of interstellar travel opening up new trade routes beyond the planet Jupiter, the advent of teleportation and total cybernetics and the replacement of the school and university system by Giant Brain Technology.

"We are also due to have another meeting next year to discuss the issue of goal-line technology," he added. "But we feel that we cannot rush these things."

"Although the technology is there – it's broadly the same as used to calculate sun harvesting, and accurate to within 0.0000003% – many of remaining humankind fear that it might slow the game down a bit," he said.

When pressed on the term 'remaining humankind,' the Ambassador looked sheepish for a moment, before announcing: "by the order of the Earth Council of Elders, I cannot reveal information to you that may change your history, even if it might save two billion lives."

He then gave a furtive look at his teleportation band, before adding in a low voice: "don't trust the geese."

The Ambassador remained for a while to chat about football with journalists, and was asked whether the England team still existed as an entity in the far future.

"Oh yes," he replied. "England is still very much a place, and we all know the song. "Two thousand, seven hundred and forty-nine years of hurt, and all that!"

Left: Ambassador Zarg revealed that some health technology from the future capable of prolonging life has already been used in the present, and explained that in his time Sir Alex Ferguson was still managing Manchester United and had steered them to their 500th Universe League title recently
