AWOL

ABSENT WITHOUT LEAVE FOR THE EXPAT IN ALL OF US
What's happening, and might be happening, in and around Hua Hin

FOOL ME ONCE...

AS HUA HIN GROWS WILL THE SCAMMERS TRY TO MUSCLE IN?

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

Most tourist hotspots around the world suffer from small groups of criminals intent on relieving honest people of their hard earned cash and valuables in some way or other, and this week's 'urging' by diplomats from ten, mainly European, nations to the Thai government to tackle extortion and scams against foreign tourists in the kingdom is a reminder that we should all be on our guard against this possibility.

Hua Hin does not have the same problems as the busier Phuket or Pattaya resorts do, but nevertheless scammers will still lurk here, both Thai and foreign, and there have been some notable, and unfortunate stories about these over the years here. Our headline evokes an old saying - 'Fool me once, shame on you, fool me twice, shame on me' - and we are hoping that this front page will help prevent anyone being fooled the first time.

The Thai government have responded to the diplomatic message by promising to 'devise measures to tackle the issue in a swift manner' but to a large extent it is a very difficult problem for a country like Thailand to overcome without a sea change in both cultural attitudes and financial capabilities. We believe that while we have to hope that a change will eventually come, it is the duty of us all to inform and help ourselves and others in avoiding these situations. Information is king in this respect, and whether that is passed on by word of mouth or through internet forums, or via the pages of ours and other publications, it will always help.

If you have been the victim of any criminal activity why not help stamp it out by warning others on the AWOL Forum of how it was carried out (although please stop short of naming individuals).

■ Do you wonder why we say certain things, or what they really mean? Each week we will examine a different word or phrase and tell you how it came about.

This week it is... On the warpath

Intent on a confrontation or fight.

'War path' was originally written as two words and, following the usual hyphenation phase, i.e. as 'war-path', it is now more commonly seen as the single word 'warpath'.

The 'war path' was the literal 'path to war' taken by native Americans (who were variously referred to in early citations of this phrase as Indians, red-skins or savages) when travelling to an enemy's territory to engage in battle. In America in So Many Words, 1997, Metcalf and Barnhart state that the name was used in 1755 on 'a map' - "Canoes may come up to the Crossing of the War Path". Unfortunately, they don't cite their source, although the book is well-researched and there is no reason to doubt their assertion. The phrase was unquestionably in use in the USA twenty years later, when James Adair included it in The history of the American Indians, 1775 and qualifies as one of the very earliest American phrases:

"I often have rode that war path alone."

The 'war path' was also sometimes called the 'warrior's path', as in A Sketch of the History of Wyoming, by Isaac Chapman, 1830: "He commenced his march by way of Fort Allen on the Lehigh near the Water-gap, and thence by the warrior's path to Wyoming."

It took a little while for the phrase to take on its present-day figurative meaning. The process of change from the literal began with this simile in the Cyclopaedia of Wit and Humor, by William Burton, 1859: "Tell not such a tale to the seaman,... nor to the author,... publishing at his own cost, the critics, like savages, come out on the war path, track him by the print he makes, and then scalp him."

The process was complete by 1880, when Mark Twain (S. L. Clemens) used the phrase with no Indians in sight, in the travelogue A tramp abroad:

"She was on the war path all the evening."

The phrase is still used when tribes go to war, as in the 'Microsoft on the warpath' headlines that were used to report the so-called 'Portal war' between Microsoft and Google.

■ TRIBERG, GERMANY German mayor designates 'more challenging' parking spaces to men

A German mayor's controversial new parking policy has raised a few eyebrows after he designated the town's 'more challenging' parking space to male drivers.

Mayor Gallus Strobel hit the headlines this week after unveiling the new car parking plan for motorists in the small German town of Triberg.

Under the new system, each space in the town's main car park been painted with a male or female symbol, depending on its difficulty rating.

While female drivers have been assigned wider and well-lit spaces located closer to the exit, male drivers will need to pull in at more difficult angles and avoid cement pillars.

The 58-year-old mayor wants to 'challenge political correctness' with his new policy, claiming the tight spaces will be an 'attraction' for ambitious drivers.

'Men are, as a rule, a little better at such challenges,' the 58-year-old told German newspaper Süddeutsche Zeitung.

Strobel has denied the new policy is sexist towards women, claiming he has received mostly positive feedback for his 'equal minded' new parking programme.

He added: 'Of course, there are also great women drivers! They are, of course, most welcome!'

The mayor also argues that the move has been good advertising for the town, while he has also been contacted by motorists interested in travelling to Triberg to take on the parking challenge.

■ NORTH CAROLINA, USA Man demands pizza and to marry Paris Hilton in police stand-off

A SWAT team negotiator had a little trouble meeting the demands of one man in a hotel stand-off with police after he requested Paris Hilton's hand in marriage.

While his first request for a tasty pizza was quite reasonable, Fredrick Denney's second ultimatum to marry the famous socialite was a little trickier to negotiate.

After barricading himself inside a North Carolina hotel, the 61-year-old reportedly threatened to open fire on police unless his demands were met.

According to WCNC, officers were called to the address on Cecilia Alexander Drive, Belmont, at the weekend, responding to reports Denney had allegedly caused an unspecified disturbance at the hotel.

Police cordoned off the area and were forced to shut down the second floor of the hotel in a bid to reason with Denny during a tense stand-off.

Above: Paris Hilton in demand

During the negotiations, which lasted for several hours, the suspect shunned the traditional demands for a getaway car and a bag of cash for the chance of a happy-ever-after ending with Ms Hilton.

Police revealed it's not the first run-in the Oregon man has had with police, having previously found himself on the wrong side of the law in several states across the US.

The 61-year-old faces several charges including being intoxicated and disorderly.

■ ROBOT

A father buys a lie detector robot that slaps you when you lie. He decides to test it out on his son at supper.
"Where were you last night?"
Son says, "I was at the library."
The robot slaps son.
"OK I was at a friend's house."
"Doing what?" asked the father.
"Watching a movie; Toy Story."
Robot slaps son. "OK, it was porn!" cried the son.
Father yells, "What? When I was your age I didn't know what porn was."
The robot slaps the father.
The mother laughs and says "He certainly IS your son."
The robot slaps the mother.

■ COULD HAVE BEEN WORSE

"Hey, George, did you hear the awful news about John?"
The two golfers were talking over a drink in the club bar.
"No, what happened to him?""
"Well he had a great round on Wednesday - under seventy I heard - anyway he finished early and drove home, and found his wife in bed with another man! No questions asked... he just shot 'em both! Isn't it terrible?"
"Could have been worse," George commented.
"How?"
"If he'd finished early on Tuesday, he would have shot me!"

■ THE ANSWER

A chicken and an egg are lying in bed. The chicken is smoking a cigarette with a satisfied smile on its face and the egg is frowning and looking put out.
The egg mutters to no one in particular, "I guess we answered that question."

■ LOGIC?

The probability of being involved in a traffic accident is directly proportional to time spent on the road. Driving fast decreases one's exposure.
One third of traffic accidents are caused by drunk drivers; two thirdsare caused by non-drunk drivers.
Therefore, the safest way to drive is drunk and VERY fast.

■ GROANER

One day, Mr. Phillard rushed his pregnant wife over to the hospital. As the doctors were prepping his wife, Mr. Phillard's idiot brother Bill arrived to watch the birth. But when Mr. Phillard saw the blood and everything else, he fainted. When Mr. Phillard woke up he was in a bed with the doctor standing above him.
"Mr. Phillard," the doctor said, "you are in the recovery room. Don't worry, your wife is fine and she had twins, a boy and a girl. Because you were unconscious and your wife was still under anaesthesia, she requested that your brother Bill name the kids."
"What! My brother, the idiot! I can't believe you let him! What did he name them?"
"He named your daughter Denise."
"Hey, not bad! I underestimated my brother. What did he name my son?"
"He named your son Denephew."

'Art On The Way' Art Exhibition by Green Gallery and V64 Art Studio at The Living Room Bistro on Saturday 14th July from 6pm (opposite Coco 51); free bar until 8pm, plus live music.

UPCOMING

Hua Hin Jazz Festival - still no concrete information on this and now the Tourist Authority of Thailand in Prachuap Kiri Khan have changed from 'it might be the second weekend in June' to 'maybe in August'. One official even told us that it has been cancelled, while another said that 'it might be in the next couple of months' and not a single soul can say who is meant to be organising it. Whatever the reason for this situation, it is terrible for the image of the town and will lead people to think that the people in charge are incompetent.

YOURSTARS

THERE'S A CURRY IN YOUR FUTURE AT S&S

Soi 94 S & S INDIAN RESTAURANT
Curries from only 75 baht
Eat in or Takeaway 081 455 5298

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

Remember, just because you read something in an authoritative-looking book doesn't mean it's true. There is actually no such thing as "Houston, Texas."

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

Your good friends will help remind you of what's really important in life, especially those to whom you owe all that money.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

Once again nothing much is going to happen, but really, we appreciate that you took the time to check.

ARIES MAR 21 – APR 20

Some things only become funny when you look back on them years later. Conversely, the events of next week will seem funny at the time, but as the years go by, society will gain sensitivity and learn to outgrow that sort of thing.

TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

Try not to take next week's failings too personally. The stars are sure that nine times out of 10 you totally would have beaten leukemia.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

Your generosity will pay off this week when your gift of $100 in cash inspires the recipient to have sex with you.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22

There's almost certainly more to life than lying around watching old episodes of Friends all day, but hey, it's enough.

LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

There's just something about you that says "sexual deviant." It's your own voice, and frankly, it is seriously overestimating how interesting you are.

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

Your attempt to lighten the mood by relating a few amusing anecdotes will only result in people getting angrier as the life raft slowly fills with water.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

It's true that the girl next door is really attracted to you, but perhaps "female" is more accurate after her needle-sharp ovipositor pierces your eye and thousands of eggs slowly slide in.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

Your radical theory about a secret society who come at night to clean your office is strikingly close to the truth, but don't worry: You're in no danger.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

Don't worry so much about what your family thinks of you. If there really is life after death, you can assume they're furious about the fire you started at the reunion.

HUA HIN SOCIAL POOL LEAGUE

NEW SEASON
This now definitely going to start on Wednesday 18th July. However the fixtures had not been created at press time, so please contact the organiser for more information.
The league is going to consist of just one division this time, with nineteen teams competing, playing each other home and away, so a total of 36 matches for each team. Unfortunately due to their being an odd number of teams, this also means that every week one team will not have a match, and this will also result in the season being (at least) 38 weeks long. This will lead to the last match day of the season as 3rd April 2013, not allowing for any breaks, scheduled or otherwise.

TEARS ARE NOT ENOUGH

WEEPING SCOTSMAN INCIDENT NOT ALCOHOL RELATED, CONFIRM EXPERTS

■ LONDON, ENGLAND

A highly-publicised incident which saw a Scotsman crying uncontrollably in public, was not alcohol-related, experts have confirmed.

However fans of tired stereotypes will be pleased to know that so far those same experts have been unable to eliminate 'losing money' as a potential cause of the tears.

Males weeping in public has long been seen as a sign of excessive alcohol consumption, but a spokesperson for the teary-eyed Scot insisted the incident was to do with 'feelings'.

Londoner Simon Williams told us, "Are you trying to tell me that Andy Murray has human emotions? I'm afraid you'll have to come up with something better than that."

"Are we sure he hadn't just lost a fiver or something?"

Sporting commentators have claimed that a few tears are all that is needed for the British public to truly take a failed sportsman to their hearts, citing Paul Gascoigne as the perfect example.

Left: "That's it Andy, let it all out - you'll be getting Pizza Hut commercials before you know what's hit you!"

Sportologist Mike Matthews told us, "A crying sportsman resonates with the British public because it brings forward all of the inherent unhappiness about our own miserable existences. Suddenly these sports people seem as desperately unhappy as the rest of us – and we like that."

"But when that sympathy is at its peak I would ask each of you to remember that last night he went home with his beautiful girlfriend to count his millions of pounds."

"If that doesn't dry your own tears, nothing will."
