What's happening, and might be happening, in and around Hua Hin

FORGOTTEN FESTIVAL?

WILL 'JAZZ ON THE BEACH' EVER BE SEEN AGAIN?

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

Last year saw the tenth year of the Hua Hin Jazz Festival, an event that had helped bring this town to the world's notice, as well as contribute to the change from town to city and bring prosperity to many. This was, of course, secondary to the fact that every year we were getting top class international and Thai musicians playing at what was very loosely a jazz event and would more correctly be called a music festival.

Last year was also the first time that the event was moved from it's normal slot on the first or second weekend in June, to the last weekend in August, a move that was more likely forced than planned, due to the general election and rumours of funding problems. Planning has always appeared to be the Achilles Heel of the event, certainly as far as informing the potential festival goers of the dates and line up is concerned, and this year has proved to be no exception.

AWOL has been contacting the people who should know, and those who might, about what is happening for several months; last year's organisers, Bangkok Fanatix told us that they were not involved; the Tourist Authority of Thailand in Prachuap Kiri Khan changed from 'it might be the second weekend in June' to 'maybe in August'. When asked who was organising it they said 'Bangkok Fanatix'.

The main TAT office in Bangkok have never had any concrete information at all other than to refer to the Prachuap office. One official even told us that it had been cancelled, while another said that 'it might be in the next couple of months' and no one knows who is meant to be organising it. As it is now the middle of August, the assumption must be that the Jazz Festival is not going to happen this year, and given this shambles, may never happen again. We sincerely hope this is not the case.

DRIVING YOU MAD

TIPS FOR ROAD USERS IN THAILAND

Welcome to an occasional column offering advice and tips for anyone using the roads in Thailand. Some of them will be serious, others somewhat tongue in cheek, but all of them are borne out of experience. This week we look at some do's and don'ts when you have an accident or have to speak to the police.

Unlike many countries, when an accident occurs on the road in Thailand, none of the vehicles involved can be moved until the police say so, regardless of what obstruction they are causing, other than to allow an injured person to be attended to. This does seem, at first sight, to be ridiculous; when you discover that this is to enable police to be able to mark out the position of the vehicles in white on the road, presumably to help determine what caused the accident, it still seems vaguely bizarre, especially as the traffic jam builds.

A common piece of advice given to foreigners by other foreigners is not to stop at the scene of an accident, whether involved or not. The reasoning given for this is that, invariably, the foreigner will get blamed and end up paying, even if it was not their fault. We would restrict this advice to being wary of stopping as a witness to an accident, unless there is no one else there to help, and particularly if you cannot speak Thai. If you are actually involved in an accident you should remain at the scene, although there is a fair amount of anecdotal evidence to suggest that you may well get asked to pay something even if it wasn't your fault. In the long run it is sometimes better and cheaper to do so, as witnesses on your behalf are often a little ephemeral. However this is a judgement call that each individual must make based on a number of things. It is always a good idea to have the phone number of a Thai friend handy to help you through such situations.

Despite many of the stories you will hear, the majority of the policemen you encounter in Thailand are honest, hard working folk; however there are the same issues of low pay and corruption that dog almost every police force in the world, and these affect both the level and consistency of enforcement provided. Again, in common with other forces, if there is an easy way to 'clear things up' this is most likely the course that will be taken, to avoid 'unnecessary' paperwork, and in general it is a good idea to go along with this.

■ Do you wonder why we say certain things, or what they really mean? Each week we will examine a different word or phrase and tell you how it came about.

This week it is... .Phrases from the Bible (part 1)

The King James Version of the Bible has been enormously influential in the development of the English language. It ranks with the complete works of Shakespeare and the Oxford English Dictionary as one of the cornerstones of the recorded language. After Shakespeare, the King James, or Authorized, Version of the Bible is the most common source of phrases in English. The King James in question was James I of England and James VI of Scotland. He didn't write the text of course, he merely authorized it, hence the name that the book is best known in the UK (King James Version, or KJV, being more commonly used in the USA).

The King James Version was translated by 47 biblical scholars, working in six committees. It was first printed in 1611 and was by no means the earliest English translation of the Bible. It was pre-dated by several other partial or complete translations, notably John Wyclif's translation in 1382 and William Tyndale's in 1528 - the latter forming the basis of a large proportion of the KJV.

What raises that version above other versions of the Bible in terms of its linguistic impact is the fact that the language used has persisted into the present-day. Many of the phrases includeded are still commonplace. Below is the first part of the many phrases that originated in the Bible (most, but not all from the King James Version):

A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush
A broken heart
A cross to bear
A drop in the bucket
A fly in the ointment
A graven image
A house divided against itself cannot stand
A labour of love
A law unto themselves
A leopard cannot change its spots
A man after his own heart
A multitude of sins
A nest of vipers
A peace offering
A sign of the times
A thorn in the flesh
A two-edged sword
A voice crying in the wilderness
A wolf in sheep's clothing
All things must pass
All things to all men
Am I my brother's keeper?

■ NEW ZEALAND Huge floating rock mass off NZ
A mass of small volcanic rocks nearly the size of Belgium has been discovered floating off the coast of New Zealand.
The stretch of golf ball-sized pumice rocks was spotted by a New Zealand air force plane about 620 miles north west of Auckland. The rocks stretch for about 10,000 square miles.
A navy ship took scientists to the raft of rocks last Thursday night. Naval Lieutenant Tim Oscar said the rocks appear a brilliant white under a spotlight, like a giant ice shelf.

■ ROME, ITALY Drunk tourist who fell asleep on airport baggage belt is X-rayed
Airport security guards checking for suspicious packages had a shock when a human body showed up on their X-ray machine.
They went to the baggage conveyor belt – and found a tourist curled up in a drunken sleep.
The 36-year-old man had travelled for 15 minutes after getting on the belt next to an unmanned check-in desk.
Police are said to have had difficulty waking the unnamed Norwegian, who was still sleeping in the foetal position, when they responded to the security breach at Fiumicino airport in Rome.
He was taken to hospital to be checked over because of concerns he may have been injured by exposure to the powerful X-rays. He is now being investigated for causing alarm.
An airport official said: 'It's impossible to avoid a situation like this if there's no employee at the check-in desk.' The man reportedly arrived at Terminal 3 with a rucksack and a can of beer in his hand to check in for a flight to Oslo.
He appeared to have been drinking heavily.
Denying the unscheduled trip had exposed lax security, another official said: 'The Norwegian could have carried on going round the main belt, but he could never have ended up in sensitive areas of the airport.'

■ EAST SUSSEX, ENGLAND Barry White helps flamingos breed
Seductive love songs by the "Walrus of Love" Barry White have helped encourage breeding among a group of Chilean flamingos.
Classic tunes by the late Grammy Award-winning soul singer have been piped through their enclosure at Drusillas Park in Alfriston, East Sussex, in an effort to make love blossom.
Staff at the park also played songs by Marvin Gaye alongside pre-recorded mating vocalisations to conjure up a courtship between the flamingos.

■ UK The most unfortunate place names in Britain
IT may be an idyllic hamlet nestling in the beautiful English countryside but it's also a magnet for anyone fond of lavatory humour.
Shitterton, a cluster of thatched cottages in rural Dorset, has officially been voted Britain's most unfortunate place name.
It joins Scratchy Bottom, Crapstone and Brokenwynd in a list of places with names that do little to sell their virtues. But that does not daunt the proud residents of Shitterton, which also suffers from being in the valley of the River Piddle.
Parish council chairman Ian Ventham said: "Those of us who live here are not the least bit embarrassed by it."
Their main problem came with jokers pinching the road signs, so residents have now bought a £680 one-and-a-half-tonne stone version set in concrete.
Dorset also boasts Scratchy Bottom and Happy Bottom in the poll of 1,773 adults carried out by family history website findmypast.co.uk.
"Dorset is definitely the top county for unfortunate place names, with three in the top 10," said website spokeswoman Debra Chatfi eld. "You can judge the strength of the short-list from the names that failed to make it."
Among those are Sandy Balls in Hampshire and Pratts Bottom in Kent – proof that you don't have to live in Shitterton to be the butt of humour.

THE TOP 10
1. Shitterton (Dorset)
2. Scratchy Bottom (Dorset)
3. Brokenwynd (Aberdeenshire)
4. Crapstone (Devon)
5. Golden Balls (Oxfordshire)
6. Ugley (Essex)
7. Crackpot (North Yorkshire)
8. Backside (Aberdeenshire)
9. Great Snoring (Norfolk)
10. Happy Bottom (Dorset)

■ AIRPORT SECURITY

TEL AVIV, Israel — The Israelis are developing an airport security device that eliminates the privacy concerns that come with full-body scanners.

It's an armoured booth you step into that will not X-ray you, but will detonate any explosive device you may have on your person.

Israel sees this as a win-win situation for everyone, with none of this rubbish about racial profiling.

It will also eliminate the costs of long and expensive trials.

You're in the airport terminal and you hear a 'whump', muffled explosion. Shortly thereafter, an announcement: "Attention to all standby passengers, El Al is proud to announce a seat available on flight 670 to London. Shalom!"

■ MORE OLYMPICS

Britain's Andy Murray won the Men's Singles Gold Medal.

Meanwhile, Scotland's Andy Murray lost the Mixed Doubles.

The IOC sent 8 badminton players home from the Olympics for not trying. I think that is a unfair considering they let the entire Australian team stay.

I watched the heptathlon live, and have now spent every day watching the reruns of it since.

Unfortunately, I now have a bad case of Ennis Elbow.

■ RADIO COMPETITION

I phoned the local radio station today. The presenter answered and said, "Congratulations on being our first caller, all you have to do is answer the following question correctly, to win our grand prize."

"That's fantastic!" I shouted in delight.

"Feel confident?" he asked. "It's a maths question."

"Well, I've got a degree in maths and teach it at my local school," I proudly replied.

"Ok then, to win our grand prize of 2 front row seats to a Justin Bieber concert and to meet him back stage what is 2+2?"

"7" I replied.

■ GOLF AND BEES

A young woman had been taking golf lessons. She had just started playing her first round of golf when she suffered a bee sting.

Her pain was so intense that she decided to return to the clubhouse for help. Her golf pro saw her come into the clubhouse and asked, 'Why are you back in so early? What's wrong?'

'I was stung by a bee', she said.

'Where?', he asked.

'Between the first and second hole', she replied.

He nodded knowingly and said, 'Then your stance is too wide.'

Sure, a spoonful of sugar may make the medicine go down, but if it's suppositories you're struggling with, the spoon isn't going to help.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

You'll be forced to undergo surgery to remove the lump from your throat. Though it's becoming a woman and not cancer of the larynx that will send you to the hospital.

ARIES MAR 21 – APR 20

This week try wearing less make-up when you leave the house, even if it means angering the other members of KISS.

TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

While being a good friend means telling the truth, you'll soon realize that being a true friend means keeping your mouth shut.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

Success is often difficult to define, though for you, it pretty much boils down to filling that cup with clean urine.

FANTASY PREMIER LEAGUE

IT'S BACK! The AWOL Challenge is up and running again - anyone who was in the league last season will automatically be entered again this new season once they re-register with the same log in, and new players are more than welcome to join up.
New players should go to http://fantasy.premierleague.com/ and sign up to the main game, then once your team has been set, click on 'Leagues' and then 'Join A League'; the code to join the AWOL Challenge is

165133-47924

Each week we will print a league table showing the top players in the AWOL Challenge, and you will also be able to follow your progress in both this league and the main competition on the Premier League website. You can join as many other private or public leagues as you want, or even set up your own mini league.

FEATURED GAME

SUNDAY 19TH AUGUST 2012
PREMIER LEAGUE
Man City v Southampton 22:00
Etihad Stadium, Manchester, England
The Champions of the top two divisions clash in what will be an interesting test of both; Southampton are generally tipped to do well in their first season back up but this is a tough opener. City are fresh from already winning a trophy (the Community Shield) and will be keen to stamp their mark early in the league. The absolute best Southampton can hope for is a draw, but their philosophy does not really allow for that, so we expect a fairly heavy defeat.

TOUGH GIRLS

TOURISTS TO STOP MAKING EYE CONTACT WITH BRITISH WOMEN

■ LONDON, ENGLAND

As British women won gold medals for being the best at kicking and punching, the rest of the world stared directly at its feet before muttering 'no luv, I definitely wasn't looking at you funny'.

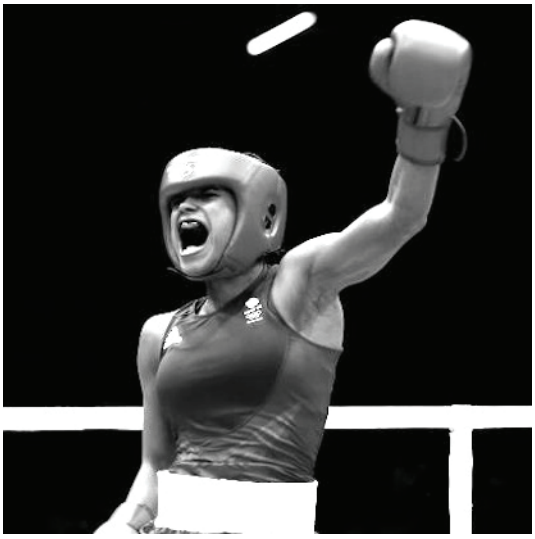
With Nicola Adams and Jade Jones proving that British women can knock seven bells out of their global counterparts, a new found respect for the females on our island has pervaded those visiting our shores.

London shop worker Deidre Matthews told us, "People seem to be more polite and deferential to me today, definitely."

"Just this morning I had an awkward American customer back down the very second I started wrapping masking tape around my knuckles. I tilted my head from side to side to loosen my neck and he was gone."

"Well done ladies, you've made us all very proud. And pretty much untouchable."

Areas of Great Britain including the North-East and Salford have called for 'pub car-park brawling' to be added to the Olympic roster in order to see Team GB secure further gold medal in Rio.



Left: Nicola Adams, now officially acclaimed as the third hardest woman in Leeds

Regular brawler Sharon White told us, "When it comes to a drunken slaps and hair pulling, there's simply no-one in the world to touch us. If you're interested in our sport you can see enthusiastic amateurs clawing their way up the ranks in pretty much any Wetherspoons on a Friday and Saturday night."

"Plus we've got some really talented teenagers coming through, too."

"Jamaica might be the global breeding ground for sprinters, but for women who can knock the crap out of anyone you simply can't beat northern British council estates."
