What's happening, and might be happening, in and around Hua Hin

THE LAST MIGRATION?

HUA HIN IMMIGRATION TO MOVE INTO PURPOSE BUILT OFFICIAL OFFICES NEXT YEAR

HUA HIN, THAILAND

The long running saga of the location of the immigration office in the town appears to be drawing to a close, with the news this week that the current location on the Canal Road next to the Three Girls restaurant is to close, and relocate to a new official building in the centre of town.

However the rumours that this relocation is to happen this year appear to be unfounded, as an officer at the current office informed AWOL that the move will happen next year.

The Hua Hin Immigration office is actually a satellite office of the Dan Singkhon Immigration near Prachuap Kiri Khan, and it has had several locations in the town since it first opened as an office within the police station in 2005. The first move was in 2007 to a house on a new development on Soi 102, but after two years there the office moved to Soi 23, just behind the Index Shopping mall, and then in October 2010, to the current location.

It does appear as though this next move will be the final one for several years, as well as being part of a bigger plan of moving towards Hua Hin becoming the provincial capital of a brand new province, something that has been mooted for some time. If this does happen eventually, then the immigration office here would finally become their own masters, and working expats are also likely to have the convenience of an office of the Labour Department in the same building, who are responsible for the approval and issuing of work permits - currently this involves a trip to Prachuap Kiri Khan. These are all additional signs of the current and future growth of Hua Hin, on top of the numerous and very obvious large and small projects that are underway or planned, such as the Bluport and Venezia retail developments.

■ KOGELO, KENYA Witch doctor calls election for Barack Obama after analysing shells, bones

A witch doctor from the Kenyan village where Barack Obama's father is buried has predicted a landslide for the US president in Tuesday's election.

John Dimo used shells, bones and other items outside his tent in Kogelo, western Kenya, to call a winner in the race between Mr Obama and Republican rival Mitt Romney.

And Mr Dimo, who claims to be 105, says that the mystical items dispute news that the election will be a close call.

Pointing to a white shell, he declared: 'Obama is very far ahead and is definitely going to win.'

Kogelo is Mr Obama's late father's home town and expectations of another victory for him are high.

Most Kenyans consider Mr Obama, the son of a white mother from Kansas and a black father from Kenya, as one of their own.

He has five Kenyan half-brothers and a half-sister.

Dimo, about 115-years-old, says he knew Mr Obama's father, who was buried in the village in 1982.

■ USA Friendly helicopter pilot makes boy's day by rescuing his toy plane

A keen-eyed helicopter pilot who spotted a boy crash his brand new toy plane into trees close to his house flew down and rescued it for him.

The two-man chopper was passing by a mansion in the US surrounded by woodland when they saw the boy crash the plane.

The scaled-down P51 Mustang was snagged at the very top of the trees and the pilot knew that it would be unlikely to get the plane back from the ground.

So, swooping low, the pilot - whose name is Jimmy - hovered over the tree-tops while his co-pilot picks up the top plane and they land.

'Do you think I'll have permission to land now,' he jokes as they take the chopper down.

The boy and his family rush to greet them, and can hardly believe their luck.

The rescue has been viewed on YouTube more than one million times since it took place last month.

■ A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

This week it is... . Nine days' wonder

A novelty that loses its appeal after a few days.

In 1600, William Kemp, an Elizabethan clown actor, who is thought to have been the original Dogberry in Shakespeare's Much Ado About Nothing, 1599, danced a morris dance between London and Norwich. He took up the challenge for a bet and covered the distance of a hundred miles or more in nine days (spread over a few weeks). Some doubted that he had achieved this and, to quell dissent, he wrote 'Kemps nine daies vvonder', published in 1600: "Wherein euery dayes iourney is pleasantly set downe, to satisfie his friends the truth, against all lying Ballad-makers; what he did, how hee was welcome, and by whome entertained."

There is little doubt that the event did take place. The ample evidence to support it includes the 17th century records of the Norwich Town Council, which lists the payment of his prize money.

So, we have a well-authenticated historical event called 'Kemp's Nine Days' Wonder', dating back to 1600. That might be thought to be enough to establish Kemp as the source of the phrase.

Actually, he wasn't. The phrase dates from well before the 17th century. As well as the date, there's the meaning of the phrase, which isn't 'something wonderful that took nine days to achieve', but 'something which becomes boring after nine days'. The earliest citation, in Old English, is in the 'Harley Lyrics', circa 1325. The earliest record in print that most people today would be able to decipher is in 'Poems written in English during his captivity in England, after the battle of Agincourt' by Charles, Duke of Orleans, 1465: "For this a wondir last but dayes nyne, An oold proverbe is seid."

The first record in print of the phrase as we now use it is from George Herbert's poem The Temple, 1633:

The brags of life are but a nine days wonder;
And after death the fumes that spring
From private bodies make as big a thunder,
As those which rise for a huge King.

In more recent years, more than one rock band has adopted the phrase as a self-deprecatory name. That's more likely as an allusion to another phrase with a related meaning - one hit wonder, than it is a homage to the dancing Kemp. Some of them have lasted several years.

■ GUTS AND BALLS (thank you to Karl and apologies for not crediting him for one of last week's jokes))
There is a medical distinction between Guts and Balls. We've all heard about people having Guts or Balls. But do you really know the difference?
In an effort to keep you informed, here are the definitions:

GUTS - Is arriving home late after a night out with the guys, being met by your wife with a broom, and having the Guts to ask: 'Are you still cleaning, or are you flying somewhere?'

BALLS - Is coming home late after a night out with the guys, smelling of perfume and beer, lipstick on your collar, slapping your wife on the butt and having the Balls to say: 'You're next, Chubby.'

I hope this clears up any confusion.
Medically speaking, there is no difference in the outcome.
Both result in death and/or dismemberment!

■ SURPRISE CAKE
An eye-doctor was having his 40th birthday, and gathered lots of friends and family in his house. His wife had made him a surprise cake, and led her husband blindfolded to a table where the cake was placed.
Eagerly the doctor removed and looked down on the cake, and immediately burst into a crazed laughter, for there in front of him was a huge cake, with 40 marzipan eyes!
The guest, asked him why he laughed, and after some minutes of laughing and wiping his eyes, the doctor said: "I'm just thinking of my buddy who will be 50 next week, who is a gynaecologist!"

BOUQUETS FOR BIKERS!

Consider a few thousand Motorcycle Club Members from a dozen or so different Clubs in one place on a Saturday night. Throw in some rock 'n' roll and the beer is flowing. It would never happen in most Western countries but if it did; expect chaos, mayhem and violence.

Not so in Thailand and certainly not so in Cha Am at the recent 8th Diamond City 'Big Bike Rally'.

Sure the black leathers were there and the Club 'colours' with a variety of skulls and devilish logos proudly worn. Radically designed motor bikes; loud in sound and appearance were also on display. However that was the only similarity between these party goers and their less than friendly 'bikie' counterparts.

The atmosphere on Saturday night was 'family friendly' with bikers enjoying the company of their 'brothers' both within their own Club, with the Members of other Clubs but also with those outside the Motorcycle Club scene. All this and not one Police uniform in sight!

On the big stage the Lord Mayor of Cha Am, Khun Nugool Pornsomboonsiri welcomed the bikers to town and they didn't let him down. On behalf of the charities of Cha Am the Lord Mayor accepted a generous donation and invited the rally goers back next year.

Some guests in nearby hotels or others may have had their sleep disturbed by the party or by passing motorbikes. However the residents of this peaceful town would agree that the Big Bike Rally showed us all how to enjoy a good time without the 'aggro'!

As an 'outsider' to the Motorcycle Club world there are many things about the culture that I just 'don't get' and maybe I never will. However seeing how bikers can get along with the community in a colourful and peaceful way is something I certainly do 'get'.

Congratulations and thanks to the organisers, Club Members and to the Cha Am municipality for a great event, and roll on next year.

Many thanks to David for submitting this review

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

Your fear of heights worsens this Thursday when the vertical measurement calls you at home, breathes heavily into the receiver, and threatens to murder your loved ones in their sleep.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

Remember: It's not that you can't find happiness in life, it's that you won't find happiness in life.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

You always hate it when shows end with a big musical number, so you'll probably be pretty disappointed with what happens to the universe on Wednesday.

ARIES MAR 21 – APR 20

Self-improvement may be a noble goal, but the stars aren't so sure the leg rests, dual cup-holders, and wood paneling are what people had in mind.

TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

You'll be damned if you know what those guys on the Spanish-language station are saying, but they're definitely having a much better time than you are.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

Critics will call your first poetry collection a "stirring work of utmost courage and beauty," which just goes to show how much mileage that man from Nantucket has.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22

Most firearm accidents occur in the home. Avoid the chance of serious injury by getting shot repeatedly at work this week.

LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

Your hunger for knowledge is second to none. Unfortunately, you tend to regurgitate everything right back up again.

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

Set your inner child free! A bottle of disinfectant, a pair of grasping tongs, and an ordinary wire hanger are all you need!

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

Venus is descending in your sign this week, but you're better off not knowing exactly what that means.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

Love means something different to everyone, but you immediately come to mind whenever polite indifference is mentioned.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

You'll struggle to remember how you ever got around before owning a car, which is to be expected after suffering a head-on collision like that.

SIR ALEX RETIRES

FERGUSON QUITS FOOTBALL TO MANAGE SCOTLAND

■ GLASGOW, SCOTLAND

Sir Alex Ferguson has sensationally called time on his football career by signing a three-year deal to manage Scotland.

Ferguson said he did not take the decision to walk away from the game lightly.

"I've devoted almost my entire life to football, but now it's time to try something totally different. And it doesn't get much more different than taking charge of the Scottish national side," a statement from the ex-football manager said.

"There were other options, but inevitably they involved football in some way."

"I want to be a million miles away from the game, so this is a great opportunity for me."

Ferguson did flirt with a break from football when he managed Scotland on a part-time basis in 1985, following the death of Jock Stein. But a string of good results cut short his tenure and he was forced to return to the game.

Now the 70-year-old will face his greatest ever challenge by following in the clown-shoe footsteps of Craig Levein.

Emulating Levein's record of appalling results is just the tip of the iceberg. Ferguson's predecessor sought the systematic eradication of all traces of football from the Scottish game during his spell in charge.

Left: Ferguson pictured in his last break from football 26 years ago; sources close to the former Manchester United boss say that he is now ready to put his feet up and have a good laugh, instead of the high pressure environment of a football manager.

And even though Ferguson once spent £28.1m on Juan Sebastian Veron, he will struggle to match that level of disregard for football logic, according to ginger ferret Gordon Strachan.

Strachan said, "The last guy was shocking. He slipped to three wins in twelve matches, which isn't good enough."

"Ferguson is a born winner and will struggle. Sometimes I wonder if he's Scottish at all."

But Ferguson might have already pulled off the first masterstroke of his tenure. The wily ex-boss has flown to meet Emile Heskey after discovering the former Aston Villa 'striker' has a Scottish great-grandmother.
