HUA HIN LAND DEPARTMENT UNDER SCRUTINY AFTER HIGH RANKING OFFICIALS IMPLICATED

HUA HIN, THAILAND

It has been reported this week that the police are to take action against six officials, including senior figures at the Land Department, for allegedly issuing illegal documents for two plots of land in Prachuap Khiri Khan province. The plots of land are a seven rai plot in the Hin Lek Fai subdistrict of Hua Hin, and a four rai seaside plot within the Hua Hin municipality.

The larger plot is reported to be 'near a golf club in Hua Hin district' and from the information and photographs available AWOL has ascertained that this is the Black Mountain course, as this is the only course in that subdistrict.

There have been rumours and hearsay for many years about corruption in Hua Hin's Land Department, but this is the first time we are aware of such high profile action being launched. Natural Resources and Environmental Crime Suppression Division chief Norasak Hemnithi said an investigation revealed irregularities in the issuing of title deeds for the two plots with a total of ten people involved in the scam. The officials allegedly took bribes for the issuing of the title deeds, with the senior land officials receiving 200,000 baht per rai and the local administration officers being paid a total of 1.6 million baht, he said. Investigators are compiling more evidence before filing formal charges against the officials.

The seven rai plot had been confiscated by the police in December 2007 under land encroachment laws, but in 2010 it was discovered that a title deed had been issued for the land and it had been sold for 7 million baht per rai. A similar scenario unfolded with the other plot, seized between 2008 and 2009, with a value of 10 million baht per rai if it had been sold. It is believed that a number of other plots with unlawfully issued title deeds are also being investigated.

■ SUWON, SOUTH KOREA 'Toilet theme park' is a hit in South Korea

It may sound pants, but the world's first 'toilet theme park' is proving a huge hit with tourists in South Korea. Visitors to the Restroom Cultural Park in the southern city of Suwon can learn fun facts about human poo and look around a toilet-themed art gallery.

The unusual amusement park was built in memory of the city's former mayor, Sim Jae-Duck, affectionately known as Mr Toilet. Mr Jae-Duck had a passion for toilets and spent his life campaigning for better toilets in the sovereign state. He was reportedly born in his grandmother's loo and even built a toilet-shaped house to live in, which has since been turned into a museum in the theme park.

The park's Lee Youn Souk said the importance of the toilet should not be underestimated. 'We just focus on eating everyday, we sometimes overlook the importance of the toilet,' she told the BBC. 'We already know upon waking up in the morning we should go to the toilet but people don't want to talk about this. [They are] so important for health, sanitation and water conservation.'

■ USA Voters in Florida and Alabama elect dead candidates in US elections

Anyone who thinks their local politician doesn't do much should spare a thought for voters in Florida and Alabama, who elected two dead politicians in this week's US elections.

Earl K Wood, a Democrat campaigning to be reinstated as Orange County Tax Collector in Orlando, Florida, died aged 96 of natural causes on October 15. Despite being criticised for never coming into his office but collecting a large salary, he still managed to secure 56 per cent of votes against his very-much-alive Republican opponent.

Standing for election in central Alabama, Republican Charles Beasley, 77, was trying to reclaim his old seat on the Bibb County Commission when he died of a suspected aneurysm on October 12. Mr Beasley received a convincing majority of votes against Democrat opponent Walter Sansing.

Mr Sansing said: 'It is a touchy situation. When you are running against a dead man, you are limited as to what you can say.'

■ A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

This week it is... . Second-guess

1. To criticize and offer advice, with the benefit of hindsight.
2. To foresee the actions of others, before they have come to a decision themselves.

A commonly used meaning of 'to second-guess' is to criticize the actions of others, after the event. The event in questions was, and often still is, a sporting event. The term is derived as what is known as a back-formation. As back-formations loom large in etymology we'll break off to explain what they are.

New words are usually created from existing words. For example, we all know what 'fishing' means and, armed with that knowledge we could easily coin the word 'fisherman' and a phrase like 'fishing for compliments'. Sometimes though, the order that words and phrases are derived in isn't so obvious. For example, people who rob from houses have been called 'burglars' since the 13th century and it might be supposed that they got their name from being engaged in 'burglary'. However, it wasn't until the 19th century that the legal profession decided that 'that thing that burglars do' needed to be given a name and hence 'burglary' was coined as a back-formation from 'burglar'. Likewise, 'narration' and 'scavenge', which were coined centuries after 'narrator' and 'scavenger'.

The same back route was taken by the phrase 'second-guess'. The umpire in a baseball game used to be called, rather unkindly, 'the guesser'. People who were continually telling the guesser, the manager or the players what they were doing wrong were known as 'secondguessers' and were so defined in the Sporting News Record Book, 1937:

Secondguesser, one who is continually criticizing moves of players and manager.

Another meaning of 'to second-guess' is to anticipate what others might do in a particular situation. This is also of American origin but, somewhat more impressively, refers to a guess made before rather than after the event. An early example of its use comes from Broadcasting magazine, December 1941:

Do not try to second-guess or master-mind our military officials. Leave this for established military analysts and experts, who are experienced enough to await the facts before drawing conclusions.

■ LIE CLOCKS

A British man died and went to Heaven. As he stood in front of the Pearly Gates, he saw a huge wall of clocks behind him. He asked 'What are all those clocks?'

St. Peter replied 'Those are Lie-Clocks. Everyone on Earth has a Lie-Clock. Whenever you lie, the hands on the clock move. This one here is Mother Teresa's. The hands have never moved so she has never lied. That one over there is Abraham Lincoln's. It moved twice, so he only lied twice in his whole life.'

'Well, where's Tony Blair's clock?' asked the man.

'It's in my office, I'm using it as a ceiling fan'

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

Curiosity will kill the cat this week, though the microwave, duct tape, and Tupperware container will be mostly to blame.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

Like a river that has, due to a number of environmental changes, begun to run dry, so too will your life become strained and hard to parse.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

There's just something about women you find completely irresistible. Probably their reproductive organs.

ARIES MAR 21 – APR 20

Your life is about to get a whole lot easier. Unfortunately, the same thing can't be said for your live-in nurse.

TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

Pain will be yours this week when that Man from Nantucket finally hears all the terrible things you've been writing about him.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

If you had a dollar for every time a gorgeous woman invited you back to her place, you probably wouldn't be saving for that prostitute right about now.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22

The kinds of changes that await you this week can be readily found within the pages of most high school chemistry books.

LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

You will once again lie to your dentist about brushing three times a day, flossing regularly, and not sleeping with his wife at the nearby motel every other Tuesday.

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

Humiliation will be yours this week when astronomers discover four large satellites orbiting around you.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

Sure, smoking won't make you look cool, but at least it'll give you an excuse for being so incredibly lame.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

You'll put yourself through college by stripping, which wouldn't be so bad if you were doing it for the tuition money rather than the classroom grades.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

An attempt at composing the perfect love sonnet will fail time and again this week when you fall for a girl named Orange.

Firstly may we wish them a speedy recovery, and secondly we hope that a new season of the Hua Hin Premier League and Championship will be organised soon. Once they are we will be glad to bring the information to you every week once more.

TERRY WASN'T SUBSTITUTED, SAY CHELSEA

■ LONDON, ENGLAND

JOHN Terry played a full 90 minutes against Liverpool on Sunday, according to Chelsea FC. The charm-avoiding billionaire's Subutteo set claim accusations that Terry was substituted in the first half against Liverpool are a campaign to smear him.

A Chelsea spokesman said: "John actually went on to complete his hat-trick in the second half, although you'd never know that looking at the biased coverage of the game.

"Several Chelsea players have given statements confirming that he completed the match in perfect health and actually did 100 push-ups in the centre circle in 15 seconds to celebrate our 6-1 win."

The club dismissed reports that Terry injured his knee in a collision with fellow conversationalist Luis Suarez. The spokesman said: "He doesn't actually have knees, just a series of sinewy chambers full of age-defying fluids. Footage of him squealing like a baby and then apparently receiving lengthy treatment on the pitch before being stretchered off has been faked and misinterpreted. John was actually doing a fundraising personal appearance for St John's Ambulance during a lull in the match."

Above: Suarez cracks another good one about Patrice Evra which had John Terry rolling on the floor squealing with laughter, according to Chelsea officials

Chelsea confirmed that Terry will be missing from the squad for several weeks but say this is because of his forthcoming series of talks in Rwanda, Syria and Palestine promoting unity and brotherhood.
