RALLY ROUND

2013 VINTAGE CAR RALLY GETS INTO GEAR

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

Next weekend sees the eleventh outing of the Hua Hin Vintage Car Rally, or more correctly called 'Automobile Concourse'. Running from next Friday 29th November through to Sunday 1st December, it involves a grand parade of more than 50 hard to find classic cars, and will be the largest of its kind in Thailand's history.

Among the cars on show will be a Rolls-Royce Silver Dawn, an exclusive model built in England during 1949-1955, and was used by Queen Elizabeth II during her state visit to Thailand when she visited His Majesty King Bhumibol and Queen Sirikit. Another is a 1928 Packard 626, which has not been shown anywhere else before. A 1964 Corvette Stingray used in the movie "Stingray" will also be on display.

On Friday evening there will be entertainment and dinners held at the Venezia and Majestic Creek, while on the Saturday a gala charity dinner is being held at the Centara Grand Beach Resort & Villas. Money raised from the whole event will be donated to the Chaipattana Foundation, which is renowned for projects dedicated to improving the quality of life and self-reliance, and was initiated by His Majesty King Bhumibol.

Other events forming part of the Concourse are releasing fishes and turtles at Chang Hua Man Royal Project, planting rubber trees at Khao Krapuk, the donation of 86 bicycles to four selected local schools in Prachuap Khiri Khan, and offering food in a traditional ceremony to 86 Buddhist monks.

CAR JAM

By Roger Norwood

It has been reported this week that the police in Bangkok are keen for bus lanes to be utilised and possibly more of them put into key areas.

While the idea behind bus lanes is a good one - namely allowing buses to travel freely and to their timetable and thus encouraging more people to use them rather than their own vehicles, benefiting the environment, other road users and actually making roads less congested, often the practice can be less than perfect.

Most of the problem in Bangkok (or anywhere else in Thailand that it might be attempted) is a common issue for any law that needs enforcing, which is the motivation for the police or whichever group is given the authority, to actually make sure the bus lanes are usable, and ONLY by buses.

This would mean going completely against the unwritten rule of Thai roads, which is that motorbikes don't have to obey any of the rules. They can go the wrong way down a one way street, turn right at a left turn only junction, drive on the pavements, u-turn at no u-turn spots and so on and so forth.

It would also mean an investment in a large fleet of tow trucks - it doesn't take a genius, or even someone who has seen Bangkok drivers in Hua Hin, to realise that a host of Thai Jeremy Clarksons are going to park their Mercedes' in the bus lane because it is the closest place to where they are going. And how many cops or traffic wardens are going to break the Thai class system and attitudes to confront an obviously wealthy Hi-So Thai?

Something clearly needs to be done about congestion, whether it is Bangkok or Hua Hin, but at the moment I don't believe bus lanes is it. It requires something more fundamental, and things haven't been helped by the frankly careless government tax policy encouraging Thais to buy more (new) cars. Cars were already hugely important to Thais and with no major Thai car manufacturer, what is the benefit to this country? Bus lanes?

A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated. This week it is..... Worse for wear

Shabby or worn through use; drunk.

The expression 'worse for wear' is something of a linguistic oddity in that it has endured a variety of different meanings, versions and spellings during its lifetime. Let's start with the spelling indignities. 'Worse for wear' or 'worst for wear'? Both of these are found in print but, of course, the phrase is 'worse for wear', the alternative being a simple but sadly commonplace muddling of 'worse' and 'worst'. 'Worse for ware' and 'worse for where' are also sometimes seen, again occasionally using 'worst' rather than 'worse', and there's little better explanation for them other than that some people can't spell 'wear'.

Anyone familiar with etymology will have come across the redoubtable John Heywood's glossary A Dialogue Conteinyng the Nomber in Effect of all the Prouerbes in the Englishe Tongue. 'Worse for wear' is one of the older phrases in the language and Heywood included it in the book's first edition in 1546:

Al thyng is the wors for the wearyng.

The meaning there is clear - 'as things are used they deteriorate'. As it became established in the language 'worse for wear' developed into a synonym for 'worn out'. At this stage the variant 'none the worse for wear' was coined, meaning 'used but not worn out' and also dragging along its misspelled 'worst/ware/where' versions. The English poet Charles Churchill used that expression, in a rather backhand compliment to his wife, in the poem The Ghost, 1794:

Some, in my place, to gain their ends,
Would give relations up and friends;
Would lend a wife, who, they might swear
Safely, was none the worse for wear.

Into the 20th century and the phrase took on another meaning, that is, 'drunk'. This was taken up by the UK tabloid press in the 1960s and has now superseded 'tired and emotional' as the euphemism of choice when describing some young wag falling out of a taxi at 3am.

Is there an English phrase or saying that you would like to know more about?

■ THE KISS

A tough group of bikers were riding along when they saw a girl about to jump off a bridge, so they stopped. The leader, a big burly man, gets off his bike and asks her, 'What are you doing?'

'I'm going to commit suicide' she says.

While he didn't want to appear insensitive, he didn't want to miss an opportunity so he said, 'Well, before you jump, why don't you give me a kiss?'

So she does and it was a long, deep, lingering and sensual kiss. After she's finished the biker says, 'Wow! That was amazing, the best kiss I have ever had. That's a real talent you are wasting. You could be famous... Why are you commiting suicide?'

She said, 'My parents don't like me dressing as a girl'

■ THAI MISUNDERSTANDING

The Thai mother-in-law walks into her daughter's new house in the village and finds her farang son-in-law furiously packing his suitcase.

"What happen?" she asked.

Farang: "What happened? - I'll tell you what happened! I sent an e-mail to Kung saying that I was coming home from England today. I got here and guess what I found?..... My wife, yes, your daughter (!) in our bed with a Thai man! So, this is the end of our marriage and I am leaving Thailand forever!"

"Relax, relax!" says the now distraught mother-in-law, "Mistake, sure....something not right about this story. Kung never do something so stupid! Wait...I go check to see what really happen."

Moments later she comes back with a big smile.

"See, I told you there must be simple explanation..... Kung never receive your email!"

■ MED SCHOOL EXAM

When I saw the entrance exam for medical school, I was perplexed by this question:

"Rearrange the letters P-N-E-S-I to spell out the part of the human body that is most useful when erect."

Those who spelled SPINE became doctors. The rest are in Parliament.

■ THE FARMER

An Isaan farmer in his pickup drove to a neighbour's and knocked at the door. A boy, about 9, opened the door.

"Is your Dad home?"

"No he isn't; he went to town."

"Well, is your Mother here?"

"No she went to town with Dad."

"How about your brother Howard? Is he here?"

"No he went with Mum and Dad."

The farmer stood there for a few minutes, shifting from one foot to the other, and mumbling to himself.

"Is there anything I can do for you? I know where all the tools are, if you want to borrow one, or I can give Dad a message."

"Well," said the farmer uncomfortably, "I really wanted to talk to your Dad. It's about your brother Sombat getting my daughter Noi pregnant."

The boy thought for a moment.

"You would have to talk to Dad about that. I know he charges 5000 baht for the bull and 500 baht for the dog, but I don't know how much he charges for Sombat."

Remember: Love is more than just feelings of infatuation and attraction and lust. Usually, there's a few feet of rope also involved.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

The presence of Jupiter in your fourth house indicates newfound personal maturity. The presence of empty pizza boxes in your first apartment, however, suggests otherwise.

ARIES MAR 21 – APR 20

It's not so much your intimacy issues, or even your commitment issues that will stand in your way. It's your Uncanny X-men issues.

FEATURED GAME

SATURDAY 23RD NOVEMBER 2013
BARCLAYS PREMIER LEAGUE
Everton v Liverpool 19:45
There is a trio of local derbies this weekend with West Ham/Chelsea and West Brom/ Aston Villa as well, but the Merseyside battle is as intriguing as ever this season. Both teams have relatively young managers who like to play attractive passing football, and this should be a treat. As ever with these matches the most likely result is a draw, but we think Liverpool with the 'SAS' will edge it this time.

RUGBY ADMITS DEFEAT AGAINST FOOTBALL

■ LONDON, ENGLAND

RUGBY is to end after admitting defeat in the battle for ball game supremacy in the UK.

It has long been acknowledged that rugby and football were locked in a battle to the death, with the nation only having enough emotions to invest into one ball-based activity.

The Institute for Studies declared victory for football after comparing television viewing figures, amounts of shiny shirts sold and the number of players who are sort-of-celebrities in America.

The English FA chairman Greg Dyke said: "This is a great day for the nation. We've got only one sport with a field, a ball and goals that's really popular in this country.

"It's called football.

"Like wrestling on World of Sport, rugby is a once-amusing novelty long past its sell-by date."

Prop forward Tom Booker admitted: "Rugby's been a great way for me to explain away my alcoholism, desire to rub up against other men, and penchant for stockings and suspenders.

Left: A new range of mens underwear will be made out of all the unused rugby balls

"But all those things are acceptable in society now so I can throw away my hooped jersey and stand proud."

The end of rugby is expected to pass unnoticed in most of the country, with the only people affected being the upper middle class, the Welsh, and isolated pockets of Scotland and the North-West. One additional side effect is that the town of Rugby in Warwickshire will be renamed Football, so as to properly recognise the New Ball Order.

Dyke concluded: "I call upon the rugby league to do the decent thing, dissolve itself, and let us all move on from this whole silly business."

When told that there are actually two kinds of rugby, rugby league and rugby union, he said: "Oh, for *###'s sake."
