TRAVEL STRAIN

NEW FLIGHTS 1, HIGH SPEED TRAIN 0

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

As one door closes, another opens, it is often said, and this week that seems to be the case with the transport infrastructure in and out of Hua Hin. Today (Friday 21st March) sees the start of the new Thai Lion Air service between Hat Yai and Hua Hin, scheduled to run 5 times a week, on Fridays, Sundays, Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. However, yesterday Thailand's Constitutional Court ruled as unconstitutional the legislation that sought huge financial support for the Yingluck government's ambitious rail and logistics development plan, including the proposed high speed rail link between Bangkok and Hua Hin.

Many believed from the very start that this project would not go ahead, but one analyst connected with the transport sector said that the project still exists and is bound to be carried out by a future government in the years ahead. However the project might be downsized to cut costs if the much- heralded scheme of modernizing Thailand's land-based transportation system would be implemented, he said. Acting Transport Minister Chatchart Sitthipun said that the high- speed train project might be indefinitely suspended, despite its potentials in boosting cross-border transport of cargoes and tourists.

As far as AWOL is aware, this will not impact on the building of a dual standard track between Bangkok and Hua Hin, which we believe has already had its funding approved, so there should still be improved journey times by rail in the future. Hopefully the growth of Hua Hin as an international tourist destination will also lead to further international and domestic flights using the vastly under utilised airport.

WEIRD NEWS

■ FUJIAN PROVINCE, CHINA Man survives despite hammering three 10cm nails into own head

A man has miraculously survived after apparently hammering three 10cm (4in) nails into his own head. X-rays revealed that the nails had been hammered through the man's skull and into his brain – but he made a full recovery following surgery.

The unnamed 69-year-old was discharged on Thursday after spending three months in a hospital in Haifeng County, Fujian province in China, to be treated for what he claims were self-inflicted injuries. However, despite maintaining that he hammered the nails in himself, hospital staff believe the injuries must have been inflicted by someone else because of their severity. The very lucky man insisted police should not be called, and no one has yet been arrested in connection with the incident.

■ ZHAOTONG, CHINA Girl thought to have bad cold turns out to have leech in her windpipe

Doctors were surprised when a young patient suffering from throat pain turned out to have a live leech stuck in her windpipe. The seven-year-old girl from Zhaotong, south-west China, was taken to the Kunming Children's Hospital by her parents after she began having problems with her breathing. Medics eventually discovered she had a five centimetre worm in her windpipe and removed it. 'We thought she might have caught a cold, but never thought it was a leech or that it could stay there so long,' the unnamed girl's mother said.

Doctors added the worm had probably grown in size while it was in the youngster's throat after sucking on her blood. The leech is thought to have entered the schoolgirl's mouth after she drank directly from a tap.

■ AUSTRALIA Ten-year-old surfer's 'shark attack' downgraded to… a nasty mackerel bite

A young surfer sparked a shark attack alert this week when she suffered a 'significant hand injury'. The ten-year-old, a regular at Lennox Head, New South Wales boarding hot spot, was taken by paramedics to Lismore Base Hospital. However, later reports suggested her assailant was merely mackerel and that she suffered a 'scratched thumb'

A spokeswoman for the New South Wales state ambulance service said they received a report that the youngster had been bitten on the wrist by a shark off at the beach 120 miles south of Brisbane.

Although sharks are common off Australia's coast, the country averages fewer than two fatal attacks per year.

A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

This week it is..... Not a dicky-bird

Not a sound; not an utterance.

A 'dicky-bird' might be of uncertain spelling - it is variously spelled 'dicky-bird', 'dickey-bird', 'dickybird', 'dickeybird' and, when referring to the retired English cricket umpire, 'Dickie Bird'. The country of origin isn't at all uncertain; 'dicky-birds' are unequivocally English. The term dates from at least the 18th century, when it appeared in the London Evening News, May 1766, as the title of a story they intended shortly to publish:

"The Swan and the Dickey-bird: A fable - shall be inserted in our next"

At that time 'dickey-bird' was a generic nursery term for the small, chirruping birds often found in the English countryside and features in the well-known nursery rhyme Two Little Dicky Birds. The rhyme is usually accompanied by wiggling index-finger gestures, to represent the birds:

Two little dicky birds,
Sitting on a wall;
One named Peter,
One named Paul.

The rhyme was adapted from the earlier 'Two Little Blackbirds', which was first published in London in the first book of nursery rhymes, Mother Goose's Melody, circa 1765:

There were two blackbirds
Sat upon a hill,
The one was nam'd Jack,
The other nam'd Gill.

The 'not a dicky-bird' phrase indirectly derives from the tweeting sounds made by the birds. 'Dicky-birds' became established as a Cockney Rhyming Slang term for 'words', in the mid 20th century. The first record of it in print is in the 1932 'P. P.' Rhyming Slang:

" Word... Dicky bird."

So, 'not a dicky-bird' means 'not a word', that is, silence, especially in the context where a spoken or written word might have been expected - for example, 'Jack said he would write, but I haven't heard a dicky-bird from him for weeks'.

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

You have to stop worrying about what people think of you, especially since it's so complicated you probably wouldn't be able to understand it.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

They say a fool and his money are soon parted, but you still have that ten bucks you found on the sidewalk the other day.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

Your ex will finally stop by to get all his stuff, which is weird because you didn't know anyone saw you take it.

ARIES MAR 21 – APR 20

Remember, it's never too late to fall in love. It's just too late to fall in the kind of love that isn't a complete compromise based on a fear of dying alone.

TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

You'll become the sworn enemy of men's magazine readers nationwide when you publicly state that Bullit wasn't really a very good movie.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

You'll stumble onto a great little trattoria with excellent food and a great wine list, but what you'll really need is a well-equipped burn ward.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22

You'll be plunged into a pit of depression by the thought that Stevie Wonder will probably not live forever.

LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

Raise your voice in anger and rail against the Gods all you want, but they only have it in blue and not in your size.

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

Your love life will hum along like a well-oiled machine, thanks largely to a new formulation of oil and a clever little Swedish machine.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

In The Hall Of The Mountain King is a strange choice for a first dance between husband and wife, but the walrus trainer insists.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

You've never been the type to believe in love at first sight, or anything else even slightly romantic, for that matter.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

You'll start to wonder if people aren't getting a little too political after you're blasted in the media for being soft on education and the economy.

■ BOB (many thanks to David)

Bob works hard at the office but spends two nights each week bowling and plays golf every Saturday.

His wife thinks he's pushing himself too hard, so for his birthday she takes him to a local strip club.

The doorman at the club greets them and says, 'Hey, Bob! How ya doin?'

His wife is puzzled and asks if he's been to this club before.

'Oh no,' says Bob. 'He's in my bowling league.

When they are seated, a waitress asks Bob if he'd like his usual and brings over a Budweiser.

His wife is becoming increasingly uncomfortable and says, 'How did she know that you drink Budweiser?'

'I recognize her, she's the waitress from the golf club. I always have a Bud at the end of the 1st nine, honey.'

A stripper then comes over to their table, throws her arms around Bob, starts to rub herself all over him and says,

'Hi Bobby. Want your usual table dance, big boy?'

Bob's wife, now furious, grabs her purse and storms out of the club.

Bob follows and spots her getting into a cab.

Before she can slam the door, he jumps in beside her.

Bob tries desperately to explain how the stripper must have mistaken him for someone else, but his wife is having none of it.

She is screaming at him at the top of her lungs, calling him every 4 letter word in the book..

The cabby turns around and says,

'Geez Bob, you picked up a real bitch this time.'

Bob's funeral will be on Saturday.

SUPERSTITIOUS MINDS (PART 2)

And so enters the class divide, with higher classes now looking down on people like the construction workers whose tattoos advertise to all what they do for a living. But there can be problems with the potency of even the one tattoo. If the tattooist doesn't believe that his customer is worthy, he may introduce a slight error or variation in the design, which, unknown to its' wearer, will destroy the tattoos' power. Whether insurance companies in Thailand check for fraudulent accident claims on the grounds of insufficient tattoo protection isn't clear.

Traditional superstitions and talismans also suffer from increasing westernisation. Those figures of the beckoning lady - or 'nang kwak' - usually placed on or near shop counters are one of the devices used by businesses to encourage customers to spend. Not to be confused with the larger figures of ladies 'wai-ing' by the entrances to shops etc, the nang kwak beckons with one hand held out in the polite palm down gesture. Which is fine in places like HuaHin, where tourists expect to see quaint old fashioned things. But in some of the trendier shops, particularly in Bangkok, modern versions of the 'Maneki Neko' talisman are used instead. This cat with the waving paw is a common sight in Chinese restaurants and shops all over the place, but is believed to have been introduced to Thailand from Japan when they became trading buddies. The cat also has the advantage of being lower maintenance than the beckoning lady, requiring fewer offerings, because just like the shrines in bars and other businesses and homes, all talismans must have regular offerings to maintain their potency.

While the shrines, beckoning ladies and cats are easy to spot, small traditional businesses, especially shops, may contain a host of other artifacts. All intended to bring prosperity and good fortune. They include portraits of monks, bottle gourds, plaques bearing auspicious words, amulets and charms. Another - quite easy to find along the Chomsin and SraSong Roads area of HuaHins' market - is the stylised fish trap.

These objects are made from an open patterned bamboo weave, and resemble a long narrow fish shape. They can be around a metre long, and hang from the ceiling towards the front of a shop to 'trap' the shopper. But as with tattoos, non of these talismans will work unless they are first blessed by a monk or Shaman.

Many of you will have noticed a different kind of blessing which is made by the shop owner when the first sale of the day is made. Seen usually at stalls or in small 'Mom and Pop' shops, the vendor will waft your payment over their stock, almost as though they are dusting with baht. They are simply spreading the good fortune of the first sale in the belief that many other sales will follow.

The prices of items sold are determined partly by our final big superstition - numerology. In the West prices tend to end with 99 - whether it be euro, dollars or pounds, a 99 cents or pence at the end can make the item look like a bargain. In Thailand the reason for the 99 baht is simply that the number 9 is considered lucky. Like dusting with baht notes, lucky numbers are also easy to use - needing no blessings or offerings. They are inherently lucky and much sought after. Rather than try to enter the realms of how numerology works, it is probably best just to accept that 9 is the luckiest of the lot., and that a string of 9's is even better. That's my excuse anyway! You have to be pretty quick off the mark twice a month to find a lottery ticket with plenty of 9's in the number, and if you want a vehicle registration plate with 9's, or numbers which add up to 9, you would certainly need to win that lottery first.

Souay Vista Social Club

Sunday 23rd March will be our last Sunday open until October. Please join us for Ghong's party and 100 Bt optional Buffet, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Most of our musicians, will be making a special appearance & providing a variety of music throughout the evening.
(After this week we will continue to be open Tues thru Sat with live music nightly)

Any music lovers, anywhere in the proximity of Hua Hin, need to find their way over to the Souay Vista on Soi 94, to hear the Liquid Blues Band play their mix of rhythm & blues - every Thurs and Sat night. There is no cover charge, you are not even required to eat or drink, but this band deserves an audience! Ask anyone who has been part of that audience – or better yet, come see for yourself. If you haven't been, you need to make that happen, because you are missing some magic.
(Special guest appearance this Sunday 23-Mar, see details at the top of this ad)

We look forward to enjoying your company!!

Hua Hin City Football Club is the local professional team for the area formed in 2011. They are in the Thailand Division 2 Central West Region and play their home matches at the Kai Tanarat Stadium in Pranburi, a little way south of Hua Hin, although there are rumours that a purpose built stadium is going to be constructed in Hua Hin itself.

FEATURED GAME

WEDNESDAY 26TH MARCH 2014
PREMIER LEAGUE
Man Utd v Man City 02:45
Many are wondering if this will be David Moyes last game in charge of the Red Devils after their dramatic collapse this season - losing to Liverpool would be have been hard enough to take but losing to thier city rivals again may be the straw that breaks the camel's back. Of course squeezed in between those games is a visit to Upton Park, which has been the scene of a couple of historic games that have denied Manchester United the title, and a defeat there might even spell the end. We think Moyes will be teetering on the precipice after two defeats in three days.

EXCUSEZ MOI?

ARSENE WENGER WELCOMES OPPORTUNITY TO FOCUS ON DOMESTIC EXCUSES

■ LONDON, ENGLAND

Arsenal manager Arsene Wenger has welcomed his team's exit from the Champions League, insisting it will give him and his team time to focus on excuses for their ongoing domestic failure.

After an aggregate 3-1 defeat to current holders Bayern Munich, Arsenal are now left to focus on failing dismally in the premier league and FA Cup.

Arsene Wenger told a press conference at the Emirates stadium, "Fighting for abject failure on all fronts is simply not possible, as we have seen last night."

"Now is the time to regroup, look at ourselves in the mirror and prepare the excuses we will all hide behind when we end the season trophyless. In the FA Cup we are one of four teams that can win it, with Wigan, Hull and Sheffield United – so this can only end really badly for us. I have a laminated injury list for you all to take away with you, which I'd like you to lead with when we get knocked out."

Left: Wenger wonders if he can blame this season's failure on a dose of the trots

With fans expecting a capitulation in the FA Cup and premier league over the coming weeks, many have said it's nice to have excuses still in reserve as the season reaches mid-March.

Season ticket holder Simon Williams told us, "Normally the league doesn't require an excuse, as we're nowhere near from before Christmas, but this year not winning it will mean we have to line up all sorts of excuses – and that's progress."

"Sure, we'll end up with an empty trophy cabinet again come May, but we'll have plenty of sob stories to fall back on."

"And at the end of the day, at least we're not Man City."
