CHILDREN'S HOME PLANNED IN KHAO TAKIAB

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

AWOL has covered news of the charitable efforts made by both Thai and foreign people in the area before, and this week sees yet another initiative to help the needy of the area, as the Power Of Love Church has announced its ambitious plan to build a children's home to help the most disadvantaged youngsters from this region.

There are various challenges facing these children, whether they have lost parents or other family members through to a lack of food, medical care, adequate housing, sanitation, and very importantly an education aimed at pulling them out of poverty or subsistence living. Some of them are at risk of falling prey to dangerous people due to pressures on their parents' or guardians' financial needs.

The aim is to provide for an initial 25 children so as to keep it personal. The home will be structured and run as a family with a Thai couple serving as foster Mom and foster Dad. Older children, in addition to regular school, will be given the opportunity to learn a trade from a variety of possibilities connected to the employment opportunities of the future in Thailand. Thanks to some donations, initial payment has been made on a plot of land ideally located in the centre of Khao Takiab.

The Power of Love Church now hopes for further donations so as to begin construction of the home as soon as possible. More information can be found on the church's Facebook page at - Power of Love Church (Hua Hin) Children's home soon to be built in Kao Takiab, Hua Hin,.

The Church was founded in 2010 and holds Sunday services, which are currently held in a reception hall at the Hua Hin Hilton Hotel, as well as regularly distributing food and other essentials to the poorest families in the area. You can find contact information for the Power Of Love Church in their advert on page 22.

WEIRD NEWS

■ USA Bronies, the grown men obsessed with My Little Pony

Most kids loved My Little Ponies when they were little – they were pastel and they were ponies so, really, it was inevitable. Of course, we all eventually grew out of them and onto Take That/Little Mix/Ben from down the road. But apparently not everyone does. A new documentary, which was shown at the recent Tribeca Film Festival, shines a light on the slightly unsettling subculture that is Bronies – grown men obsessed with the toy-turned-cartoon My Little Pony.

A Brony Tale follows Ashleigh Ball, the voice of characters Rainbow Dash and Applejack, as she meets her devoted male followers. Ball admits a 'pervert alarm' went off when she started getting emails from the cartoon's adult male fans, but has come to understand how important it is to people's lives after her friend, Canadian filmmaker Brent Hodge, decided to make a documentary about the phenomenon.

My Little Pony fans featured in the documentary include Steven, who likes to go shopping for the pastel ponies in toy stores but admits he often gets mistaken for a 'big old man child' or, worse, a 'paedophile' by people who jump to the 'worst-case scenario'.

Then there's DustyKatt (we're honestly not making this up) who is a handlebar-moustached welder by day, My Little Pony fan by night. He asks what's wrong with preferring a child's cartoon show to chugging beer and riding motorcycles? It's a rhetorical question, we think. And US Army veteran Brian who says the little ponies helped him through hard times when he returned home from fighting in Iraq. His favourite character is Princess Celestia: 'Any adult, who has really gone through it all and been really thoughtful and really caring and anything like that, is going to be a Princess Celestia.'

There are now estimated to be around 3million Bronies around the world, who all live by the My Little Pony mantra 'friendship is magic' and range from 14 to 57 years old. 85 per cent are male and 84 per cent are heterosexual.

They enjoy watching episodes of the cartoon, collecting MLP memorabilia and attending Brony conventions like the BronyCon, which attracts over 8000 enthusiastic fans. The documentary seeks to get to the bottom of why these men have become so enthralled with the cartoon ponies. Filmmaker Hodge believes the Bronies get a sense of 'community' and 'friendship' from the cartoon. One fan who sports a My Little Pony outfit in the film, says: 'I've tried myself to figure out why I love the show so much and honestly I can't come up with a great answer.'

■ A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

This week it is..... Take umbrage

To be displeased or offended by the actions of others.

There doesn't seem to be much we can do with umbrage other than to take it, that is, become displeased - the word is no longer used in any other context. What is umbrage exactly? It sounds like some form of distasteful patent medicine.

Step back to the 15th century and umbrage didn't mean displeasure. The word was inherited into English from the Latin 'umbra', meaning shade. Umbrage came to be used in English to mean shade or shadow, or the foliage of trees which cause shadows; for example, this piece from John Lydgate's 1426 translation of De Guileville's Pilgrimage of the life of man:

...my vysage whiche is clowded with vmbrage,

'Taking umbrage', that is, sitting under a shady tree, had then no negative associations, as is made clear in Sir Thomas Elyot's The image of gouernance, 1540:

The sayd trees gaue a commodyous and plesant vmbrage.

Over time, the figurative use of umbrage to mean displeasure evolved, probably from the simple association of darkness with gloomy thoughts. In that meaning, umbrage was first said to be given rather than taken, as this example from Sir Nathaniel Brent's 1620 translation of the Historie of the council of Trent shows:

He... therefore besought them to take away all those words that might give him any Vmbrage.

The shade/disfavour metaphor is made explicit in this piece from Sir Robert Naunton's Fragmenta regalia, 1635:

On the fall of the Duke he stood some yeers in umbrage, and without imployment.

The first record of anyone taking umbrage is in Lord Fountainhall's [Chronological Notes on] The decisions of the Lords of Council and Session, 1680:

The Bishop... took umbrage at his freedom of speech in the pulpit anent [side by side with] the government.

J. K. Rowling picked up on these associations when choosing the name of the unpleasant character Professor Umbridge in the Harry Potter series. The negative link was reinforced with the choice of Dolores (from the Latin dolour - pain) as first name.

THE FINANCIAL BENEFITS OF BEING AN EXPAT...BENJAMIN FRANKLIN STYLE

Welcome to a new regular section in AWOL, concerned with the serious matter of money! Every week Helen Couldrey, a financial consultant with the deVere Group, and also a qualified English lawyer, will give you tips and ideas of how to take advantage financially of being an expat. Helen has clients in Bangkok, Hua Hin and Cha-Am who she helps to maximise the financial benefits of living overseas.

MONEY MONEY MONEY

They say money makes the world go round, but what if you move to a different part of the world? Wherever you go, it is important to leverage the financial benefits available to you. Living in Thailand provides some excellent financial advantages, some more obvious than others, and no... we don't mean investing in pineapple funds!

COST OF LIVING

With London being the most expensive city in the world, followed closely by Oslo and Geneva, Bangkok offers much more affordable living ranking at number 143. And this is just based in the capital city! Living outside of Bangkok means that you get more Phad Thai for your Baht.

LOWER INCOME TAX

Benjamin Franklin certainly knew what he was talking about when he coined the phrase "In this world nothing can be said to be certain, except death and taxes". Whilst paying taxes on income is inevitable, the tax brackets in Thailand are significantly lower when compared with countries in the western world, meaning that more of your hard earned cash stays in your pocket, as opposed to being churned through the system.

TAX SAVINGS ON UK PENSIONS

We've handled tax, but going back to Benjamin Franklin's gloomy statement…, what about when the grim reaper inevitably visits?

If you hold a UK based pension then it's most likely that your spouse or beneficiary would only receive 45% of your pension if something were to happen to you. By transferring your UK pension offshore, your better half could be left everything that is in your pension pot!

OFFSHORE TAX FREE SAVINGS

Thinking of saving for retirement, children's university fees, or just for a rainy day? Living as an expat means you are eligible for tax efficient savings plans. In most cases the tax on growth sits at an attractive 0%.

And with a potential 0% tax being paid on yours savings, it is good to know that Benjamin's Franklin's unhappy yet valid saying can be proven wrong in some circumstances!

It's just a case of knowing that these opportunities exist, so that you can make sure your money is working harder than you are.

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

In a wacky horoscopic mixup, you'll encounter a mysterious stranger who takes you on a journey over water just as you're trying to start new projects at work.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

Keep extra apples and bandages around the house next week, as your lover seems to be going through a William Tell phase.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

There will be nothing you can do to avert the disaster of next week, although there will be plenty that a reasonably bright and competent person could do.

ARIES MAR 21 – APR 20

Your last hope of finding true and unconditional love ends this week when your ideal mate is executed by the State of Texas for unspeakable crimes against humanity.

TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

This week's revelations will be especially mortifying for you, seeing as you've been insisting for years that that life is not some sort of big pie-eating contest.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

When the moment of truth you've been praying for all these years finally arrives, you'll reject it out of hand rather than admit that it's all been the cat's fault.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22

You'll suddenly be torn away from your friends and cast out of the only home you've ever known by the authorities, who insist your sentence is over and you're free to go.

LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

Just as you've always suspected, it is in fact a felony to use your particular method of "getting girls."

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

Next week will be a time of magical romance and unending joy for you, thanks to your boundless talent for self-delusion.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

You're going to need a lot of epsom salts and lip balm this week. No, honestly, you can trust us. This isn't like the time with the horse laxatives.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

Someday you might learn that it is indeed possible to take a fun thing too far, but not before next week's experimentation with autoerotic asphyxiation.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

Your combined proclivities towards paranoia and depression combine when you start to think a race of alien lizard-people are controlling life's lowest echelons from behind the scenes.

■ ON HER MAJESTY'S SECRET SERVICE

James Bond walks into a bar and takes a seat next to a very attractive woman. He gives her a quick glance, and then casually looks at his watch.

The woman notices this and asks, "Is your date running late?"

"No," he replies, "Q has just given me this state-of-the-art watch. I was just testing it."

The intrigued woman says, "State-of-the-art watch? What is so special about it?"

"It uses alpha waves to talk to me telepathically," Bond explains.

"So what's it telling you now?" says the woman.

"Well, it says you're not wearing any panties," Bond replies.

The woman giggles and says, "Well it must be broken because I am wearing panties!"

Bond smirks, taps his watch and says, "Bloody thing's an hour fast."

■ WHALES

A little girl was talking to her teacher about whales.

The teacher said it was physically impossible for a whale to swallow a human because even though it was a very large mammal its throat was very small.

The little girl stated that Jonah was swallowed by a whale.

Irritated, the teacher reiterated that a whale could not swallow a human; it was physically impossible.

The little girl said, 'When I get to heaven I will ask Jonah'..

The teacher asked, 'What if Jonah went to hell?'

The little girl replied, 'Then you ask him'.

■ TECHNOLOGY OVERLOAD

April and May are busy months for Public holidays this year, both in Thailand and England.

As you poor souls out there face another alcohol free Holy Day on Tuesday 13th, here in the UK our Early Spring bank holiday on May 5th, coming as it did only two weeks after Easter, provided yet another opportunity to get those paintbrushes out, or, weather permitting, to fire up the barbecues and crack open the tinnies.

But with only another three weeks to our next (proper) Spring Bank Holiday on May 26th, many of us spent our early Spring break weekend glued to the World Snooker Championship, which of course always takes place in Gods' Own County of Yorkshire.

And without giving away any secrets (by the time you read this you will know who won anyway) what a final it was. But am I the only one who finds the ever more sophisticated computer aided viewing of this event just a little annoying now?

We know that technology is expanding our vocabulary almost daily, but it is also being increasingly used to supposedly enhance our enjoyment of some televised sports events.

To be fair some of it can help. That computer enhanced cue ball - shown half in black and half in yellow - really does illustrate well the spin on the white. The superimposed white line showing the likely route of the cue ball before it even sets off is just about bearable, (although uncannily accurate - how do the 'experts' do that? Oh yes of course, they have been World Champions themselves.)

What really bugs me is those constant slow motion repeats of shots. Good or bad, there it goes again. The white ball meandering slowly towards the corner pocket and hovering tantalisingly on the edge before disappearing. The black rattling around before deciding to stay in play. All preceded and followed by a visual effect resembling a cross between a fan and a venetian blind sweeping across the screen. Admittedly all very clever stuff, but I can't be the only viewer who finds those interruptions to the flow of the matches just a tad disconcerting. No sooner had a repeat ended than we were back in real time, often only just in time to see a hand on the table and a cue hitting the white ball, and so confused by then that the body attached to the hand could have belonged to either of the players.

Does the BBC really think that we all get bored by watching a player consider his next shot? That we can't bear to wait until the next short break to see repeats of the most important play? It seems to me that it is now more important for them to demonstrate the newest whizz kid technology, simply because they can.

And so to our word of the week. 'Uxorious' refers to a man who is excessively fond of his wife. Now there's a word which could only have been invented by a man!

FEATURED GAME

SUNDAY 11TH MAY 2014
PREMIER LEAGUE
Cardiff v Chelsea 21:00
Liverpool v Newcastle 21:00
Man City v West Ham 21:00

Manchester City's game in hand had not been played at press time, but either way, these three matches will determine the top three positions. Given Cardiff's relegation, Chelsea should romp to an easy win, which will guarantee them 82 points. City may already be above that mark if they have won, but could be on 80, 81 or 83 points going into their last game. Liverpool, after throwing away a comfortable lead against Palace, are on 81 points and can reach 84 with a win. The title is City's to lose, but we think they will drop points against both Villa and West Ham and open the door for Liverpool.

HODGSON'S CHOICE

SCAPEGOAT' FOR ENGLAND'S WORLD CUP ELIMINATION ALREADY CHOSEN

■ LONDON, ENGLAND

ROY Hodgson has already decided who is to blame for England's World Cup exit.

With just six weeks to go before the tournament, the 66-year old has declared that he has a clear idea of who will be taking the flak for England's limp elimination in Brazil.

"Everybody needs to know their role in the squad, from leaking information to the press, or forming a disruptive dressing-room clique, to giving away a penalty against Costa Rica.

"We've got lucky in the past by coming up with last-minute hate figures like Chris Waddle and David Beckham, but this time we're leaving nothing to chance."

Hodgson's choice is still under wraps, but reliable former scapegoat Emile Heskey is being touted for a recall.

Hodgson said: "The biggest challenge is where don't I point the finger. There's so many players I can count on to let me down, whether through incompetence, naivety, or our old-fashioned English blend of arrogance and fear, that picking just one scapegoat won't be easy. It's important we don't spread the blame, though. No-one wants to burn two effigies, and my main task is to make sure the scapegoat isn't me."

Bookmakers have already installed Joe Hart as the odds on favourite, with history strongly suggesting that the goalkeeper is an easy target, while the past also suggests that Wayne Rooney will not even figure in the betting, despite regular woeful perfirmances in an England shirt. Many clever punters though are putting their money on dodgy foreign food giving the entire squad the trots as the most likely outcome to explain England going over half a century without winning the World Cup.

Left: Bobby Robson was fortunate to have Chris Waddle as a natural born ccapegoat, shown here after his shocking penalty miss in the 1990 World Cup semi final having the ultimate ignominy of being consoled by the opposing captain, Lothar Matthäus from Germany.
