AN ILL WIND

HOW WILL MARTIAL LAW EFFECT US?

HUA HIN, THAILAND

As martial law was declared nationwide on Tuesday, the first question most people have asked is 'how will this effect us?' While it is hard to exactly answer this, the official word from the Tourism Authority of Thailand is effectively 'Keep Calm and Carry On' with the proviso of avoiding demonstration or protest areas, and in Bangkok to avoid going outside in the evenings.

For Hua Hin, based on previous similar incidents like the military coup in 2006, it is unlikely to have any ramifications for anyone living in or visiting the area. And the reported rejection this week of a planned anti-government rally on Sunday outside Klai Kangwon Palace by protest monk Luang Pu Buddha Isara seems to indicate that the city authorities want to keep it that way.

Heads of villages and people's representatives met at the Hua Hin district office last Friday to express their opposition to the monk's plans. Buddha Isara, who is a co-leader of the People's Democratic Reform Committee (PDRC), had intended to hold a rally with some 6,000 demonstrators. Pol Maj Gen Thanet Soonthornsook, the Prachuap Khiri Khan provincial police chief, said, "It is unnecessary to file the petition in Hua Hin as concerned people can lodge it with the Privy Council Chambers in Bangkok," and stressed that there should not be such political movements in Hua Hin.

It is feasible that there may even be a mini boom of tourists heading this way, to escape the stricter conditions faced in Bangkok, and if this were the case it would prove true the old adage 'it's an ill wind that blows nobody any good'.

■ A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

This week it is..... Beck and call

To be at someone's beck and call is to be entirely subservient to them; to be responsive to their slightest request.

'Call' is used here with its usual meaning. 'Beck' is more interesting. The word, although it has been in use in English since the 14th century, isn't one that is found outside the phrase 'beck and call' these days. It is merely a shortened form of 'beckon', which we do still know well and understand to mean 'to signal silently, by a nod or motion of the hand or finger, indicating a request or command'.

If the term 'beck and call' had originated prior to the 14th century we would presumably now say 'beckon and call'. It didn't though and the first recorded use of 'beck and call' in print is in Aemilia Lanyer's set of poems Salve Deus Rex Judaeorum, 1611:

The Muses doe attend vpon your Throne,
With all the Artists at your becke and call;

That is straightforward enough. What brings the phrase to the attention of etymologists is the confusion that some people have between it and 'beckon call'. This supposed phrase is a simple mishearing of 'beck and call'. The mistake comes about because no one uses 'beck' any longer, whereas 'beckon' is commonplace.

'Beckon call' could be said not to be a phrase in English at all, but it is gaining some ground nevertheless. The misspelling began in the USA in the early 20th century; for example, this early citation from The Modesto News-Herald, May 1929:

A crowd of several hundred people heard a stirring address by B. W. Gearhart, Fresno attorney and American Legion official. "Down through the history of American wars, from the Revolutionary to the recent World conflict," the speaker declared, "America always has had at its beckon call men who would give their all for their country that people might enjoy peace and freedom.

The rogue phrase still appears in print in newspapers. Here's a recent example from the London Daily Mirror, by Phil Differ and Jonathan Watson:

He [football manager Dick Advocaat] told me what he was particularly looking forward to when he comes to Scotland and that's having the entire Scottish press at his beckon call and I promised he won't be disappointed.

Just because 'beckon call' is based on a mishearing doesn't mean that it won't one day become accepted as proper English. Other phrases, like 'beg the question' for instance, are routinely used incorrectly by so many people that the incorrect usage has now become the standard. Let's hope 'beckon call' dies a natural death, not only because it is essentially just a spelling mistake but because its adoption would signal the last gasp of the enjoyable little word 'beck'.

THE FINANCIAL BENEFITS OF BEING AN EXPAT...BENJAMIN FRANKLIN STYLE

Every week in this article Helen Couldrey, a financial consultant with the deVere Group, and also a qualified English lawyer, will give you tips and ideas of how to take advantage financially of being an expat. Helen has clients in Bangkok, Hua Hin and Cha-Am who she helps to maximise the financial benefits of living overseas.

LUMP SUM INVESTING IN FLAT MARKETS

Generally speaking, most investors will have shares or funds within their portfolio. However, if these investments don't perform well, those investors may be left with disappointing returns, and a deflated wallet. The opinion on how well equity markets will perform in the future varies depending on who you ask. But, for those who are of the opinion that the markets will trade flat, or even decline, what are the options?

STRUCTURED PRODUCTS

Structured Investment Products are an attractive solution for those who are uncertain about the future of the markets. They are linked to the performance of underlying market indices, but are not identical to them. They offer fixed rates of return over fixed investment periods, with an element of capital protection built in. One of the most popular types of Structured Product is the Quarterly Income Note, and it is designed to do just that…pay an income to the investor…every quarter.

QUARTERLY INCOME NOTE

Let's say, for example, you want to invest $50,000 into a QIN and it is linked to the performance of 3 indices (such as the FTSE 100, EURO STOXX 50 and HSCEI). On the start date of the QIN the value of each index would be jotted down on a piece of paper. This could simply be stuck to your fridge and for the duration of the QIN these 3 numbers would be the only reference points that you need. Very easy to monitor!

deVere GROUP

Each quarter you would then look at the value of each index and, provided that none indices have fallen by a selected percentage range (normally around 30%), you would be paid a fixed income payment. These payments are often around 1.75% per quarter, meaning that over the course of the year the return could be around 7% per annum.

Whilst a 7% return isn't going to make you fall off your chair with excitement, it is a substantially higher return than leaving your cash in a current account generating about 0.5%. Many people leave their lump sum cash assets sitting idle, losing value and not generating income. With the QIN, the projected return beats inflation, is fixed and is a great way of boosting your income. As always, make your cash work hard, so you don't have to.

You'll realize that you hallucinated that everyone was wearing business casual all weekend, which explains why Hallowe'en was so awkward this year.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

Romance will once again pass you by when the love of your life decides to go with a person who makes better mixtapes.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

You will get a reasonably good deal on a necessary household item, which is frankly more than an asshole like you deserves.

ARIES MAR 21 – APR 20

After taxes, overhead, and legal fees, that million-dollar idea you've been working on for years will wind up costing you several thousand dollars.

TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

You'll finally realize a dream you've had since childhood when a huge scary monster comes out from under your bed and eats you all up.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

The reason for your recent crises of conscience becomes clear this week when you realize the angel from your right shoulder and the devil from your left have been sleeping together for a year now.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22

Next week won't be the best you've ever had, but it will advance medical understanding of genital implosion by leaps and bounds.

LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

A good friend will be a pillar of strength and selflessly support you in a harrowing crisis. Show your appreciation by sending them a note that says "Thanks for your support."

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

You'll continue to get away with your horrendous crimes against humanity without suffering consequences, although they will eventually get you for the tax evasion.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

You won't be absolutely certain you like the changes in yourself, especially as you'll appeal to a whole new group of people, after they make a 12" dance remix of you.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

There's nothing wrong with being a belt-and-suspenders-type, but you should probably reconsider being a leather-shorts-and-no-shirt type as well.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

The FDA will realize their mistake too late to prevent your death after they accidentally name you as part of a complete breakfast.

■ EFFICIENCY EXPERT

The efficiency expert concluded his lecture with a note of caution. ''You don't want to try these techniques at home."

''Why not?" asked someone from the back of the audience.

''I watched my wife's routine at breakfast for years," the expert explained. ''She made lots of trips to the refrigerator, stove, table and cabinets, often carrying just a single item at a time. 'Hon,' I suggested, 'Why don't you try carrying several things at once?'"

The voice from the back asked, ''Did it save time?"

The expert replied, ''Actually, yes. It used to take her 20 minutes to get breakfast ready. Now I do it in seven.'"

■ SNOW PARKING

Harry and Martha drank their coffee as they listened to the morning weather report.

"There will be three to five inches of snow today. You must park your cars on the odd-numbered side of the street."

Harry got up from his coffee to move the car.

Two days later, they sat down with their cup of coffee and listened the weather forecast.

"There will be two to four inches of snow today. You must park your cars on the even-numbered side of the street."

Harry got up from his coffee to move the car.

Three days later, they tuned in to the weather report.

"There will be six to eight inches of snow today. You must park your cars on the... ." The power went off.

He said to Martha, "What am I going to do now?"

Martha said, "Just leave the car in the garage."

■ SISTER ANNE'S REWARD

Sitting by the window in her convent, Sister Anne noticed a shabbily dressed stranger leaning against a lamppost below.

Quickly she wrote, "Don't despair, Sister Anne" on a piece of paper, wrapped a $10 bill in it and dropped it out the window.

The stranger picked it up and, with a puzzled expression and a tip of his hat, went off down the street.

The next day Sister Anne was told that a man was at the door, insisting on seeing her. She went down and found the stranger waiting. Without a word, he handed her a roll of bills.

"What's this?" she asked.

"That's the $60 bucks you won. Don't Despair paid five to one!"

■ HONEYMOON

An elderly couple decided to celebrate their 50th anniversary in the same hotel and city where they spent their honeymoon. Before the act, he excused himself and went to loo and after a while came out laughing loudly.

''On our first night," the woman said, "you did the same thing and came out laughing. At the time, I was too embarrassed to ask what you were laughing about. Can you explain?"

''On that night while urinating, I made the ceiling wet. Today my shoes are wet."

■ STATUESQUE

Sadly the FA cup has not made it's way back to Hull, although fans are philosophical about it, and seem pleased enough just to have made it to Wembley in the first place. We did after all come a close second, and it was a nice sunny day.

One of the city's better statues is of Hull poet Philip Larkin, who stands forever at the ready in the railway station looking for all the world as if he is just going off to catch a train. Probably much as the sculptor intended.

And in the run up to Cup Final day Larkin was draped in the black and amber colours of Hull City. No-one complained or made a song and dance about it. It just seemed an appropriate outfit for the occasion, while at the same time providing plenty of photo opportunities for passers by.

Which brought to mind a bit of a fuss earlier this month involving the Angel of the North.

Standing 20 metres high, and with a wing span of 54 metres, the Angel of the North sculpture welcomes people to Newcastle. Shortly after it was unveiled in the late 90's some Newcastle United fans managed to adorn the Angel with a replica Number 9 shirt in tribute to their hero Alan Shearer. Sadly the authorities up there must be rather less tolerant than Hull folk, because the Angel stayed dressed for only 20 minutes.

That cheeky gesture seems to have been surpassed this month though by well known mid range UK supermarket Morrisons. Having recently announced a drop in sales, some enterprising marketing person decided it would be a good idea to project an image of a Morrisons' brand baguette across the wings of the Angel of the North. And very effective it looked too.

Unfortunately the Angels' sculptor wasn't too keen. In fact he seemed positively miffed by the desecration of his creation by a mere chunk of bread.

Antony Gormley pronounced that his work of art had three functions. Firstly an historical one, to serve as a reminder that below the site of the Angel coal miners worked in the dark for 200 years. (A long shift by anyone's standards.)

Secondly to 'grasp hold of the future, expressing our transition from the industrial to the information age.'

Lastly to be a focus for peoples' hopes and fears - 'a sculpture is an evolving thing' said Gormley.

Obviously grasping hold of the future in our transition to the 'information age' doesn't include using modern technology to inform passers by about Morrisons baguettes. Which is a shame when you think back to all those miners slaving in the earth beneath the Angel just to put bread on their tables.

This weeks word is 'miffed'. For no other reason than to confirm that it is actually a genuine dictionary word and not just a slang expression! If you are miffed you are feeling somewhat annoyed or peeved.

WORLD CUP 2014 PREVIEW

There are just 14 days left before the World Cup kicks off in Brazil, so here is the AWOL guide to the group stages of the competition and our predictions as to who will progress to the knockout stages.

GROUP A
(Brazil, Cameroon, Croatia, Mexico)
This should be a straightforward group for the hosts to negotiate, but second place is harder to predict. It could well come down to goal difference but we think Mexico should be able to squeak through.

GROUP B
(Australia, Chile, Netherlands, Spain)
One of several very tough groups that could all be labelled 'groups of death', but Spain are the standout favourites to top it. A lot will depend on how the Dutch gel, as they have frequently had squad fallouts at this tournament, but assuming they don't implode, we think they will progress.

GROUP C
(Colombia, Greece, Ivory Coast, Japan)
Most pundits favourites for this group are Colombia, but it looks like their star player Falcao is ruled out through injury which is a big blow. We still think they will have enough to get through, alongside the Ivory Coast, with Didier Drogba and Yaya Toure in their last ever World Cup.

GROUP D
(Costa Rica, England, Italy, Uruguay)
This is probably the hardest group both to predict and for the teams in question to get out of. All of them are capable of doing so, but are equally capable of key mistakes that could cost them. It is rare that England fail to qualify for the knockout stage but we think they will fail this time, and Italy and Uruguay to progress we think.

GROUP E
(Ecuador, France, Honduras, Switzerland)
This is likely to be another closely contested group and should favour Ecuador due to the climate conditions which they will be used to. No clear favourite though and we are going to plump for France and Ecuador to progress.

GROUP F
(Argentina, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Iran, Nigeria)
Clear favourites in this group and to at least reach the semi finals are Argentina, and we think it will be between Bosnia and Nigeria for second spot, and we are plumping for the latter to make it.

GROUP G
(Germany, Ghana, Portugal, United States)
Another collection of teams that has been dubbed a group of death with all capable of beating the others. Despite that, the pedigree of Germany installs them as automatic favourites and the presence of Ronaldo puts Portugal in line for the other spot - however we are going to pick Ghana to finish behind the Germans.

GROUP H
(Algeria, Belgium, Korea Republic, Russia)
This should be a relatively straightforward group with the strong squad of Belgium favourites, being followed by the well disciplined defensive unit that is Russia, although both of the other teams are capable of taking points off these two.

WORLD CUP 2014 PREDICTOR

AWOL has set up its own game on our website for readers to try and predict the results of all the matches in the 2014 World Cup. You will need to be a registered user on the AWOL website (free to join) and logged in to play; you can register and log in using your Facebook, Twitter, Hotmail, Gmail and many other social or email networks. Go to www.awolonline.net to register/log in, and then click on 'Play World Cup 2014 Predictor'
Full details of the game rules and scoring system can be found on the site.

FANTASY WORLD CUP

We have now chosen a World Cup Fantasy Football game to form an AWOL private league in - many of the games are not operational yet so we have chosen the game by FanXT.
To join the game you need to register (free and can be done with your Facebook account) at the following web address -

fantasyworldcup.fanxt.com and then go to the following web address to join the AWOL Challenge league - fantasyworldcup.fanxt.com/invite.php?lid=410&flid=308823

As well as the fame you can achieve locally in the AWOL competition, there will be some prizes on offer from the game organisers, to be announced soon.

RICHARD SCUDAMORE CHALLENGES ALL WOMEN TO AN ARM-WRESTLE

■ LONDON, ENGLAND

With what is being seen as a vain attempt to garner support for his derogatory references to 'female irrationality', the Premier League's chief executive has promised to prove his gender's superiority through a series of 'herculean tasks'. The beleaguered football boss is said to have thrown down the gauntlet to all women to try and beat him at 'spitting', 'trapping spiders' and 'weeing standing up.'

Mr Scudamore insisted his comments were not 'sexist' if you took into consideration his ability to parallel park, dominate the TV remote control and 'lift stuff'. Football Association board member Heather Rabbatts accused the Premier League of having a 'closed culture of sexism' but was forced to admit Scudamore was able to assemble flat pack furniture 'in a matter of minutes', 'recite the whole of Star Wars' and 'burp for a full hour.'

Above: There have been widespread rumours that the Viz character Sid The Sexist is completely based on the chief executive of the Premier League, Richard Scudamore, something that he strongly disagrees with

To a packed audience of female sports journalists, a spokesman for the Premier League slowly and loudly explained the offside rule and added: 'Of course women have a place in football. Many of our top footballers are married to women. If you asked the average fan who they'd prefer to pack their lunch, I know who they'd say.'

The chief executive reeled off a list of his achievements, including less time wasted on phone conversations, packing and 'waxing'. He then, in a commanding manner, deftly opened a jar of pickled eggs with one hand and then headed to the bathroom without the aid of a support group. His spokesman said: 'One day I'm sure we'll see a woman playing in the Premiership on equal terms with a man…just for 20% less pay.'
