WORLD IN MOTION

THAILAND IS ABLE TO WATCH THE WORLD CUP BUT NOT ALL MATCHES ON FREE TO AIR TV

HUA HIN, THAILAND

With the 2014 FIFA World Cup having kicked off in the early hours of Friday morning, Thai time, it was a last ditch scramble on Tuesday to ensure that the matches would be shown live on Thai TV.

As it stands, an agreement was reached between RS Plc, the holder of the broadcasting rights for the 2014 Fifa World Cup, and TrueVisions, to sub-license rights to broadcast all 64 tournament matches,, so now Thai football fans have four options to view the 64 World Cup games — PSI-O2 HD subscribers, via RS's Sunbox set-top box with a 299-baht one-time payment, RS's World Cup set-top box priced at 1,590 baht, TrueVisions and currently 22 of the games on two free TV channels, Channel 7 and Channel 8, including the opening and final matches.

TrueVisions subscribers on all packages will be able to view all 64 games, with some in HD, while Gold and Platinum subscribers can see all games in HD. The one outstanding issue was a court battle between RS and the National Broadcasting and Telecommunications Commission, with the latter demanding that all the matches be shown on free to air channels, but the court ruled in RS favour just before our print deadline. There was still a chance that the other 42 matches will be on free to air TV as the National Council of Peace and Order has requested RS to allow this on the Army's Channel 5 and 7 with "reason of returning happiness to the Thai people", but no announcement had been made as we went to print. Earlier this week RS had threatened to pull the plug on all the matches if the court ruled that they had to broadcast all the games on free to air TV.

AWOL includes our World Cup Wallchart again this week, with Thai dates and times of matches for those who missed it last week.

A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

This week it is..... Motley crew

An assorted and ill-disciplined group of ne'er do wells.

Since at least the 14th century, 'motley' (with a variety of spellings) has been the name of a type of cloth made from two or more colours and, in later years, the name of clothing made from such cloth. There are several citings of motley in the late 14th century, including this from the Prologue of Chaucer's Canterbury Tales:

"A marchant was there ... In motlee, and hye on hors he sat."

The best-known wearers of motley were jesters of harlequins and the patchwork costume became their standard style of stage dress, as in this painting by Frans Hals, circa 1620.

From the 17th century onward, any miscellaneous ragbag of undisciplined ne'er-do-wells might find themselves described as a 'motley crowd', 'motley herd', 'motley assembly' etc. Added to this list, but with no especial significance came 'motley crew'. It may be that this was in reference to the crews of sailing ships, with the 'motley' being used to distinguish between an assortment of types, as distinct from a crew of disciplined and uniformed sailors. The earliest citation that can be found of 'motley crew' in print certainly refers to sailors. That's in George Anson's Voyage Round the World, 1748:

This ship they resolved, if possible, to carry to Europe... but their great difficulty was to procure a sufficient number of hands to navigate her. They endeavoured to supply this defect by pressing many of the inhabitants of Buenos Ayres, and putting on board besides all the English prisoners then in their custody, together with a number of Portuguese smugglers whom they had taken at different times, and some of the Indians of the country. With this motley crew (all of them except the European Spaniards extremely averse to the voyage) Pizarro set sail from Monte Video.

With the associations of a 'motley crew' with indiscipline and garish costume, what better name for a heavy rock band? Mötley Crüe formed in 1981 and adopted the name. In the fashion of the time, like contemporaries Siouxsie & the Banshees and Enuff Z'nuff, they indulged in a deliberate misspelling. That fashion has passed now, but it's unlikely that their bass player Nikki Sixx will revert to his given name of Frank Carlton Serafino Feranna, Jr.

Is there an English phrase or saying that you would like to know more about?

THE FINANCIAL BENEFITS OF BEING AN EXPAT...BENJAMIN FRANKLIN STYLE

Every week in this article Helen Couldrey, a financial consultant with the deVere Group, and also a qualified English lawyer, will give you tips and ideas of how to take advantage financially of being an expat. Helen has clients in Bangkok, Hua Hin and Cha-Am who she helps to maximise the financial benefits of living overseas.

TOO MUCH CASH…?

Cash plays a useful part in most investors' portfolios. But, like all good things, one can hold too much cash. So what is the optimum amount of cash for an investor to hold? And where might excess cash be more usefully placed?

As mentioned in a previous article, good financial planning means you will have access to emergency cash, normally 6 months of living expenses. But what about additional cash within an investment portfolio? Many advisers, including myself, recommend having a small cash holding at all times, perhaps 5% of total financial investments. This may seem an illogical thing to do if you are certain that there are other investments that could yield you higher returns, however there are some good reasons behind holding a cash proportion.

Why hold some cash?

Firstly, it is a source of liquidity, allowing you the flexibility to buy assets that you may need without having to sell something else first. Secondly, a cash deposit can be a safe haven during periods of turmoil on financial markets. Diversification is a vital ingredient of any portfolio and having some cash assets can significantly reduce overall portfolio volatility. And finally, cash levels, particularly as you move towards the end of an investment's life-span, should increase as investors 'de-risk'. This affords greater certainty over the final sum, particularly when considering retirement investments.

deVere GROUP

Avoid holding excessive cash.

However, the right balance has to be struck. Holding too much cash, can be excessive. This is because long term returns on cash are notoriously low. Over any meaningful time period a basket of global equities or structured products will outperform cash, and the longer the time period, the greater the outperformance. Secondly, cash rarely outdoes inflation and the value of the cash over a period time can actually be eroded.

So what can be done with cash?

If you have identified excess cash in your investment portfolio what should be done with it? In short it should be put to work in a higher return asset class. Personally, I favour Structured Notes such as the Quarterly Income Notes that I discussed a few weeks ago which yield around 7 – 9% per annum, beating inflation. Or there's the Autocallable Note which can yield up to 50%, which I will discuss next week. Global equities are also favourable, with carefully selected ones steady increasing over time. But at all times, do keep a bit of cash in your pockets as you never know when you may need it.

Although you are firmly convinced there are some things that mankind was just not meant to know, you're not exactly sure how you're supposed to be able to tell what they are.

PISCES Feb 19 – Mar 20
Someday in the future, long after you've died and passed from living memory, really won't be that long from now.

ARIES Mar 21 – Apr 20
Your excitement at winning a trip to the big city will be painful to watch for all those who know what happened to the other pretty Ukrainian teens who entered the contest.

TAURUS Apr 21 – May 21
You will be celebrated and vilified in equal measure when you scientifically determine the exact point when a cute kitten becomes a full-grown cat and starts to suck.

GEMINI May 22 – June 21
You've always thought that blimps were kind of relaxing, but that was before the long, drawn-out, almost boring horror of a three-hour accident.

CANCER Jun 22 – Jul 22
Trouble arises at work when, after overhearing you say that Lincoln freed the slaves, your boss whips you, chains you to the drill press, and remarks that Lincoln was a long way from Shenzhen.

LEO Jul 23 – Aug 22
The supposedly open-minded residents of your hometown will shun you for sleeping with white women, especially when they find out you're using lead-based paint to get them that way.

VIRGO Aug 23 – Sep 22
You'll find it difficult to express your pride when the local nursing college lists your "activities" as the reason enrollment is down.

LIBRA Sep 23 – Oct 23
While it's true that a lot of music contains sexual innuendo, you're pretty much alone in thinking that Beethoven's Fifth has an undeniable copulatory rhythm.

SCORPIO Oct 24 – Nov 21
You've always believed that you've left your lovers happy, satisfied, and thinking fondly of you, but their plaintive oinking and squealing would seem to suggest otherwise.

SAGITTARIUS Nov 22 – Dec 21
You awoke this morning a carefree young man, but due to cosmic events beyond your control, you'll end the day as the oldest woman ever inducted into the Country Music Hall of Fame.

■ BLONDE IN A SEX SHOP

This guy just started at his new job, working at a sex shop.

His boss comes out and tells him that he has to leave for a while, and "can you handle it?" The new employee is somewhat reluctant, but with the boss's positive comments he finally agrees. So, the guy is there by himself for a little while and a white woman comes in.

She asks, "How much for the white dildo?"

He answers, "฿25."

She: "How much for the black one?"

He: "฿25 for the black one, ฿25 for the white one."

She: "I think I'll take the black one. I've never had a black one before." She pays him, and off she goes.

A little bit later a black woman comes in and asks "How much for the black dildo?"

He: "฿25."

She: "How much for the white one?"

He: "฿25 for the white one, ฿25 for the black one."

She: "Hmmm…I think I'll take the white one. I've never had a white one before." She pays him, and off she goes.

About an hour later a young blonde woman comes in and asks, "How much are your dildos?"

He: "฿25 for the white, ฿25 for the black."

She: "Hmmmmm….how much is that tartan one on the shelf?"

He: "Well, that's a very special dildo…it'll cost you ฿125."

She thinks for a moment and answers, "I'll take the tartan one, I've never had a tartan one before." She pays him, and off she goes.

Finally, the guy's boss returns and asks, "How did you do while I was gone?" To which the salesman responded, "I did really well, I sold one white dildo, one black dildo, and I sold your thermos flask for ฿125!"

■ FUNNY PERFUME

Two blonde girls walk into a department store. They walk up to the perfume counter and pick up a sample bottle. Nancy sprays it on her wrist and smells it, "That's quite nice, don't you think, Kathy?"

Kathy takes a sniff and replies, "That is nice. What's it called?"

"Viens a moi," replies Nancy.

"Viens a moi? What the heck does that mean?"

At this stage the store clerk offers some help. "Viens a moi, ladies, means 'come to me' in French."

Nancy takes another sniff, then offers her arm to Kathy again, and remarks, "That doesn't smell like come to me. Does that smell like come to you?"

■ A HUSBAND IS LIKE A FINE WINE

I told my wife that a husband is like a fine wine; he gets better with age.

The next day, she locked me in the cellar.

■ DON'T FORGET YOUR GLASSES

An old married couple stopped at a roadside cafe to have a cup of tea before resuming their journey.

Thirty minutes later, the man realised he'd left his glasses on the cafe table, so they had to turn round and drive back, the woman complaining all the way about his forgetfulness.

They arrived back at the cafe and as he got out of the car she said, "While you're in there, you might as well get my umbrella too."

■ D-DAY

No doubt most of you will have seen the story of D Day veteran Bernard Jordan, who went AWOL from his residential care home in Hove, to make his way to France for the 70th anniversary of the D Day landings in Normandy on June 6th.

A heartwarming story. It has been reported that staff at Bernards' care home had been unable to secure a place for him on an official Royal British Legion trip. So the 89 year old donned his medals and simply disappeared to board a coach to France.

The care home in question is said to be one of the best in England. Residents are free to come and go as they please. So how sad that Bernard felt he had to sneak out of there without saying where he was going.

Even more sad that, when it was realised that there wasn't a Royal British Legion place available, the home couldn't have arranged for a member of staff to accompany Bernard on his journey. Of course that would have meant some expense and considerable staff time. But surely the good publicity to be gained from such a simple act of kindness and recognition would have been worth it?

When you think about it though, the prospect of complying with Health and Safety legislation, together with 'duty of care' issues, may also have been a deterrent. The kind of issues which would make it impossible for an operation like the D Day landings to ever happen again. Not that we would want it to happen again of course, or even need it in these times of modern warfare. But let's just imagine what would happen if.....

'Sorry sir those landing craft can't go across the Channel. Their annual certificates of seaworthiness expire tomorrow.' - or -

'These food rations need to be consumed within two days, they don't include the minimum five a day, and those corned beef tins are lethal.'

And of course - 'Yes I know the enemy is gathering over there ready to launch an attack, but the Met Office has forecast a gale force 8 and advised all small boats to stay in harbour sir.'

Fortunately for many of us people like Bernard just got on with it.

Word of the week is 'meretricious' - meaning something which appears attractive but has no real value. A strange one this - because surely everything has some kind of value? Something to ponder over your next Chang perhaps.

FEATURED GAME

SUNDAY 15TH JUNE 2014
FIFA WORLD CUP - GROUP D
England v Italy 05:00
Probably the key game for both these sides, as a win will not only be a huge step towards qualifying for the round of 16, but also a big confidence boost. Both teams have struggled in recent months, with both drawing their last warm up games against opposition they were expected to beat easily. The conditions at the Arena Amazonia, Manaus will be quite similar to those experienced in Hua Hin with temperatures in the 30s Celsius, high humidity and chances of thunderstorms, which neither side will be completely comfortable with.
The Italians are missing a number of key players but are still dangerous, while England have become a bit of an unknown quantity with so many new younger players in the squad. This one could end either sides hopes of progression so for that reason we think it will be a nervy draw.

WORLD CUP 2014 PREDICTOR

AWOL has set up its own game on our website for readers to try and predict the results of all the matches in the 2014 World Cup. ENGLAND PLAYERS WILL PRACTICE DISAPPOINTED FACES IN TRAINING, REVEALS HODGSON

■ RIO DE JANEIRO, BRAZIL

England manager Roy Hodgson has revealed that his 23-man squad for this Summer's World Cup in Brazil will be practising their disappointed faces during training sessions.

Hodgson was talking to reporters about the preparations his players faced now they have completed their warm up games in Miami.

"Of course you can't recreate the pressure that goes with looking dejected at a major tournament, but that doesn't mean you shouldn't try and prepare," he revealed.

"We've spent a lot of time standing with our hands on our hips, shaking our heads, using our shirts to wipe away tears and practising interviews where we can't put our finger on what went wrong."

The former Fulham, Liverpool and West Brom manager went on to reveal he had no fears about using young players with little experience in looking desolate at international level.

"I'm confident that the players who have no tournament experience have what it takes to look crestfallen at the highest level," he said.

With their opening game against Italy just twelve days away, England captain Steven Gerrard told reporters that the experienced players will help the younger members of the squad cope with the pressure of looking forlorn.

"There's a big difference between looking disconsolate in the Premier League and looking inconsolable at a World Cup," he said.

"Wayne Rooney and Frank Lampard have spent a lot of time with the younger lads watching Turner & Hooch and Marley & Me on DVD."

"If you fail to prepare then be prepared to fail."
