MOVE ON UP

IMMIGRATION MOVES AGAIN - FOR THE LAST TIME?

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

The long mooted move of the Immigration Bureau in Hua Hin is finally happening, according to official notices that have been posted at the current office, although at press time the actual date of the move was still a little uncertain.

According to immigration officers, the move was due to happen at some point between Wednesday 25th June and Tuesday 1st July, while the map and other notices on display outlined that the new location will be on Soi 35, close to the Queen Sirikit Memorial Park, or 19 Rai as it more commonly referred to.

For anyone who needs to visit immigration and arrives at the old office on the canal road to find it closed, the new location can be found as follows: coming from Hua Hin, take the main Phetkasem Road going north before turning right at the traffic lights just after the Klaikangwon Palace grounds, which is Soi 35. Follow the road and bear to the left where the road turns, and then proceed parallel to the coastline for approximately 750 metres, and you will see the new Immigration Bureau on your left. From Cha Am and the north of Hua Hin, take the main Phetkasem Road south to Soi 19 and turn left into it - the soi is next to a large temple and has an open temple 'gate' spanning its entrance. Go to the end of this soi and turn right (there is a sign to immigration here); you will go past the park on your left and the Immigration Bureau is about 100 metres further, on your right.

While there has been no official word it looks very much like this could be a permanent home for what is still officially an offshoot of the Dan Singkon immigration office near Prachuap Kiri Khan, which, if it is, we are sure will be a relief to both staff and those using it, after five relocations in the last eleven years.

A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

This week it is..... Power corrupts; absolute power corrupts absolutely

Literal meaning.

Absolute monarchies are those in which all power is given to or, as is more often the case, taken by, the monarch. Examples of absolute power corrupting are Roman emperors (who declared themselves gods) and Napoleon Bonaparte (who declared himself an emperor).

"Absolute power corrupts absolutely" arose as part of a quotation by the expansively named and impressively hirsute John Emerich Edward Dalberg Acton, first Baron Acton (1834–1902) (above). The historian and moralist, who was otherwise known simply as Lord Acton, expressed this opinion in a letter to Bishop Mandell Creighton in 1887:

"Power tends to corrupt, and absolute power corrupts absolutely. Great men are almost always bad men."

The text is a favourite of collectors of quotations and is always included in anthologies. If you are looking for the exact "power tends to corrupt, and absolute power corrupts absolutely" wording, then Acton is your man. He didn't invent the idea though; quotations very like it had been uttered by several authors well before 1887. Primary amongst them was another English politician with no shortage of names - William Pitt the Elder, Earl of Chatham and British Prime Minister from 1766 to 1778, who said something similar in a speech to the UK House of Lords in 1770:

"Unlimited power is apt to corrupt the minds of those who possess it"

Acton is likely to have taken his lead from the writings of the French republican poet and politician, again a generously titled individual - Alphonse Marie Louis de Prat de Lamartine. An English translation of Lamartine's essay France and England: a Vision of the Future was published in London in 1848 and included this text:

It is not only the slave or serf who is ameliorated in becoming free... the master himself did not gain less in every point of view,... for absolute power corrupts the best natures.

Whether it is Lamartine or his anonymous English translator who can claim to have coined 'absolute power corrupts' we can't be sure, but we can be sure that it wasn't Lord Acton.

THE FINANCIAL BENEFITS OF BEING AN EXPAT...BENJAMIN FRANKLIN STYLE

Every week in this article Helen Couldrey, a financial consultant with the deVere Group, and also a qualified English lawyer, will give you tips and ideas of how to take advantage financially of being an expat. Helen has clients in Bangkok, Hua Hin and Cha-Am who she helps to maximise the financial benefits of living overseas.

TO STUDY, OR NOT TO STUDY, THAT IS THE QUESTION....

Raising children is becoming more and more expensive. Never mind the obligatory i-Pad, the latest sportswear or the foreign holidays. The real concern that most parents have is in relation to the soaring rise of University fees. With many parents facing university fees of over $100,000 per child, governments and advisors are encouraging people to plan well in advance for further studies. The big rub for an expatriate is that you could be faced with fees of two or three times that amount as your child may be deemed an overseas student. Throw accommodation and living costs into the mix and it's an expensive life event.

Now, this is all a troubling thought, and we haven't even accounted for inflation yet. As a global average, the cost of education is growing at around a staggering 7% per annum. This has the unfortunate result that you may need to double or triple the current costs, depending on the age of your child. When your child eventually heads off into the sunset, clutching his or her student cookbook, things will inevitably be more expensive.

However, with all that said, providing for your child's education is one of the greatest investments that you can ever make and the benefits of providing your child with a good start in life can outweigh the costs. But what are the best ways to prepare yourself financially?

- Get an idea of how much it will really cost. Sit down with an advisor and run through the figures…and be realistic!
- Save regularly. Trying to save over $100,000 per child may feel like hunting for a torch in a powercut. However, the real key is to save regularly by putting monthly contributions into a dedicated and separate plan. Putting just $300 per month over 18 years into a 6% return plan could allow you to reach your goal.
- Take advantage of the tax free benefits of saving offshore. Remember that this is one of the perks of being an expat!
- And finally, make sure your child or children know the value of money. Budgets should ideally not be new concepts to first year students. I recall performing the most cost effective supermarket trips known to mankind whilst at university. Knowing how to be thrifty is an extremely valuable trait.

Your romantic life will hit a rough patch this week when your lover, having grown bored of your relationship, trades you to the Saskatchwan Rough Riders.

TAURUS Apr 21 – May 21
The Parandrus, an antlered, hairy, cloven-hoofed beast the size of an ox and notable for its ill temper and foul breath, was thought to be mythical until people got a load of you.

GEMINI May 22 – June 21
Your sudden desire for stability will lead to you retrofitting yourself with StabiliTrak, a rather dated skid-control system that brakes your feet individually to improve control.

CANCER Jun 22 – Jul 22
You'll be taken aback by the news that your life story has been changed from a lightweight romantic comedy to a lengthy and detailed police procedural.

LEO Jul 23 – Aug 22
The so-called Tenth Crusade will end almost as soon as it begins next week when armies of religious warriors have no trouble whatsoever conquering and subjugating you.

VIRGO Aug 23 – Sep 22
Pluto rising in your sign indicates trouble in your romantic life, which is problematic because, for astronomical reasons, Pluto's going to be rising in your sign for the next 87 years.

LIBRA Sep 23 – Oct 23
You have evidently failed to learn history's lessons, as you begin next week by trying to find the Northwest Passage, unite Britain and Ireland, and get your family to stop giving Christmas gifts.

SCORPIO Oct 24 – Nov 21
Only one major thing will happen to you this week. After that, however, it won't really be possible for anything to ever happen to you again.

SAGITTARIUS Nov 22 – Dec 21

You'll suspect that your spouse has taken other sexual partners shortly after they open a conversation with you by saying "I've been thinking about taking other sexual partners."

■ MYSTERY VOICES

Bill is sitting alone at a bar enjoying a quiet drink, when he hears a little, high-pitched voice say "Oh, you're quite amazing, you're really something special."

Bill wheels round to see where the voice is coming from, but except for him and the bartender the bar is completely empty.

A little un-nerved at the experience he decides he must have been day-dreaming, so decides to occupy his idle mind with a little flutter on the fruit machine in the corner. He puts his money in the slot and spins the reels. Each of the reels clicks to a halt – oranges, cherries, bananas – no win. Immediately he loses he hears a rough booming voice – "What a loser! You'll never win! And you're ugly to boot!."

Again Bill wheels round to locate the source of the voice, but the bar is still empty except for him and the bartender.

He decides that the bartender must be playing tricks, so decides to challenge him – "Hey Buddy! What's your game with the voices?."

"I'm sorry sir" replies the bartender "I don't know what you mean, I haven't spoken a word."

"Don't play tricks with me!" storms Bill "One minute you're saying nice stuff about me, then shouting abuse!."

"Ah yes" replies the bartender "that will be the peanuts and the fruit machine again – they can't help themselves I'm afraid."

"What on earth are you talking about" demands Bill.

"Well sir – the peanuts on the bar are complimentary, and the fruit machine in the corner is out of order."

■ LUCKY STATUES

In a park stood two statues, one female and the other male.

These two statues faced each other for many years. Early one morning an angel appeared before the statues and said, "Since the two of you have been exemplary statues and have brought enjoyment to many people, I am giving you your greatest wish. I hereby give you the gift of life. You have 30 minutes to do whatever you desire."

With that command, the statues came to life. The two statues smiled at each other, ran toward some nearby woods, and dove behind a couple of bushes.

The angel smiled to himself as he listened to the two statues giggling, bushes rustling and twigs snapping. After fifteen minutes, the two statues emerged from the bushes, satisfied and smiling.

Puzzled, the angel looked at his watch and asked the statues, "You still have fifteen minutes. Would you like to continue?"

The male statue looked at the female and asked, "Do you want to do it again?"

Smiling, the female statue said, "Sure. But this time YOU hold the pigeon down and I'LL poo on its head."

■ THE VISIT (PART 2)

First this week, a helpful alert from an undercover mole in Hua Hin for those of you who receive the UK State Pension as expats, and as such don't qualify for the annual increase to your pension.

You should receive a tax coding every April from the PAYE folks. It is worth checking your new tax code to make sure that an assumed increase in your State Pension hasn't been used when calculating the new coding. It appears that mistakes are being made by HM Revenue and Customs (no surprise there then) which could have been going on undetected for years.

There are also rumours about moves afoot to try to rectify that con called 'contracting out of SERPS' for those in certain mandatory occupational pension schemes. More later if the story unfolds.

Now back to the fun we have with our visitors to the Land of Smiles. Last week found my own group of four elderly farang first timers recovering from the effects of travel and tummy bugs in their Hua Hin hotel.

Conveniently located as they were next to a farang style general store, a couple of good breakfasting places, and the old Satukharn Square, they began to slowly venture out in search of 'proper' food - and Immodium. But with any group of four there are bound to be disagreements and differences in culinary needs. So it was that for the first couple of days they survived on a diet of omelettes, biscuits, and bread and jam.

Considerable coaxing was needed for them to overcome their suspicions of all things from the sea, all things accompanied by rice, and all noodle based dishes. Which before Big Mac hit Hua Hin didn't leave much else.

Of course there were very good proper British fish and chips available nearby, the idea of which was greeted perversely with cries of 'we didn't come all this way to eat fish and chips!' Nor did Hua Hins' selection of Scandinavian, German and Italian cuisine create any interest. It was all just too 'foreign.'

Somehow we all survived the next two weeks, aided by a trip to the River Kwai, the butterfly farm, and the presence of a hotel pool. But let's face it, good as it is to have family visit, it can be oh so good when they go home!

Some people may be forgiven for feeling pretty much the same way about the retirement of Jeremy Paxman from Newsnight, the TV programme which he has fronted for longer than we care to remember. 'Paxo' as he is known certainly showed signs of schadenfreude when interviewing his victims.

And that is our word of the week. Although clearly of German origin, with no apparent attempt to anglicize it, 'schadenfreude' nevertheless appears in the Oxford English dictionary. It means the pleasure which someone gains from another person's misfortune.

FEATURED GAME

SUNDAY 29TH JUNE 2014
FIFA WORLD CUP - ROUND OF 16
Netherlands v Mexico 23:00
With both teams in form and unbeaten in the tournament, this should be a cracking game. Both came out of tough groups as well and this, we think, will be a very close game. It could well go to penalties but either way we think the Dutch are going to edge it.

TIKI-TAKA TONKED

SPANISH FA TO DITCH FAILED TIKI-TAKA STYLE FOR GRASSROOTS CONVERSION TO LONG BALL GAME

■ MADRID, SPAIN

After the holders became the first team eliminated from the World Cup, the Spanish FA has announced a change in philosophy to embrace the great long ball teams of years gone by.

With ineffective tiki-taka football blamed for Spain's early exit, those at the top of the game in Spain have begun looking for videos of the great Wimbledon sides of the late 1980s.

A spokesperson for the Spanish FA told us, "The tiki-taka experiment is over. It is time for something completely new."

"Spain has led the world on tactical philosophy, and we will lead again by reinventing the alternative playing styles that proved so successful in the past."

"People talk about the great dutch teams of the 70s and their invention of total football, and by the next world cup everyone will be talking about the long ball revival within Spanish football."

"We have already made tentative approach for Bobby Gould to see if he would like to create his own 'Banda loca' with our international footballers. He seems keen."

"Punting the ball 80 yards onto the head of a freakishly tall forward will win the next world cup – mark my words."

"Player research is also underway, and there's a big 6 foot 5 lad playing the third division who controls the ball further than most of our team can kick it – but boy can he head it. He'll get his first cap next season."

"Hey, you're English, I don't suppose you know if Andy Carroll has a Spanish grandparent?"
