300 UP!

AWOL REACHES ANOTHER MILESTONE

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

Welcome to the 300th issue of AWOL! It is hard to believe that we have reached this milestone, which almost coincides with another that arrives at the beginning of October, when we will have been publishing for six years. A lot has happened in that time, and hopefully we have kept you abreast of a lot of it.

Looking back on all those issues, it is interesting to see that however much has changed in Hua Hin (and Cha Am), there is a lot that remains the same, both good and bad. The good encompasses the unique charm that both Hua Hin and Cha Am still possess, the tolerance and friendliness that the majority of the resident Thais show to the sometimes rude and ignorant people who flock to the towns, the abundance of great restaurants, hotels and guesthouses and the (now restored in Hua Hin) lovely beaches of the area. The bad is largely to do with an infrastructure that struggles to keep pace with the continuing and apparently accelerating growth of the area; traffic congestion, water shortages, electricty brown and black outs and telecommunication network outages.

While the authorities have clearly been trying to deal with many of the issues, most notably the roads currently, it is, to use an appropriate Scottish analogy as this week's independence vote occurs, like painting the Forth Bridge, a never ending job. It is also a job that is hampered by a number of other things, some of which the current national government has vowed to address, and has done to some extent. We can but hope that both local and national government successfully tackles all the problems facing it.

AWOL still loves Hua Hin and its environs, good or bad, for better or worse, and we hope that our readers and advertisers will continue to love AWOL, because we can only continue if you do. Lets look forward to the next 300 issues!

A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

This week it is..... Take the gilt off the gingerbread
Remove an item's most attractive qualities.

This phrase has nothing to do with being guilty of anything of course - 'take the guilt off the gingerbread' is just a misspelling. The word is 'gilt', which refers to a thin layer of gold. Gingerbread is a form of cake and, although the association of the two words seems a little odd, gingerbread cakes were in fact gilded for festivals and other special events in the Middle Ages.

The word gingerbread has been recorded in English since the 13th century; it was originally a form of simple cake flavoured with treacle and, not surprisingly, ginger. It was, and is, frequently made as a form of biscuit, by rolling out the dough and cutting it into shapes - men, animals, letters of the alphabet etc.

Gold can be hammered to a minute thickness to form gold leaf. This can be 'gilded' to many different surfaces, including cake, and is harmless when eaten in small quantities - hence its use as a culinary decoration.

The expression 'taking the gilt off the gingerbread' isn't found in print until the 19th century, but the practise of gilding gingerbread cakes was probably in place well before that, as 'gingerbread' has been used as an adjective meaning 'showy and insubstantial' since the 17th century. Gingerbread without its casing of gold leaf was a rather humble offering - often little more than flavoured stale bread, and not likely to attract a reputation for showiness. Using present-day parlance, ungilded gingerbread was more minging than blinging. An early reference to that disparaging usage of gingerbread is found in The History of the tryall of Cheualry, 1605:

Anticke! thou lyest, and thou wert a Knight of gingerbread: I am no Anticke.

The first evidence that found in print of 'take the gilt off the gingerbread' is from The New Zealand newspaper The Lyttleton Times, February 1854:

To borrow a homely expression, it was determined in taking the gilt off the gingerbread.

The 'homely expression' reference indicates that the phrase was already known, in the Antipodes at least, by 1854.

It has been suggested that 'take the gilt off the gingerbread' derives from the ornately carved decoration on ships and buildings. This decoration was known as gingerbread-work and was referred to in print by Tobias Smollett in The adventures of Roderick Random, 1748:

Lookee, - if you come athwart me, 'ware your gingerbreadwork. - I'll be foul of your quarter, d--n me.

Gingerbread cakes had been decorated with gold for centuries before the naming of gingerbread-work and it is clear that the gilded decoration was named after the cake rather than the other way around. 'Take the gilt off the gingerbread' wasn't coined until after both meanings were known, so it could be derived from either. None of the early uses of the phrase relate to ships. It seems more likely that the phrase derives from the 'cake' context.

Sadly, gingerbread men (now often politically corrected to 'people') have had the gilt taken off them and are now usually clad with icing sugar.

CAPRICORN Dec 22 - Jan 19
You will be granted an uncommonly long life, though an uncommonly large part of it will be spent getting into bus accidents.

AQUARIUS Jan 20 – Feb 18
There will be a brief cease-fire in the age-old war between the sexes as both sides cooperate in hunting you down and trying you for war crimes.

PISCES Feb 19 – Mar 20
The flaw in your plan was the part where your accomplice would start a fire, and in the confusion, you would sneak into the philosophy department and finish writing your dissertation.

ARIES Mar 21 – Apr 20
It's important, as Kipling said, to treat triumph and disaster both the same, but it seems all you ever get are mild satisfaction and vague disappointment.

TAURUS Apr 21 – May 21
You're trying to live healthier, but you'll continue refusing to give up cigars, since they're still the best way to light the dynamite you throw into children's hospitals.

GEMINI May 22 – June 21
You will soon be judged by a jury of your peers, which is a good thing, as people who weren't also self-centered drunken assholes would probably want you dead.

CANCER Jun 22 – Jul 22
You'll ask the tool salesman for a drill press that can bore all the way through a bowling pin the long way, but he'll know damn well what you really want it for.

LEO Jul 23 – Aug 22
You'll be asked to give up your destructive patterns of behaviour by concerned people who love you but don't understand how much fun it is to destroy things.

VIRGO Aug 23 – Sep 22
The blessed arrival of a baby in your life would be greeted with a lot more joy if you could figure out who mailed it to you.

LIBRA Sep 23 – Oct 23
Investigators on the scene of the accident will say there was nothing you could have done, unless you count not stomping on the gas and driving straight into the huge tanker truck.

SCORPIO Oct 24 – Nov 21
Someday, people will have healthy, well-adjusted attitudes toward sex, but until then, you can still have it occasionally.

SAGITTARIUS Nov 22 – Dec 21
Your ravenous hunger for human flesh will be quashed when you find out how it's made and how much artificial crap is in it.

■ TEN THINGS TO PONDER...
#10 Life is sexually transmitted.

#9 Good health is merely the slowest rate at which one can die

#8 Men have two emotions: Hungry and Horny. If you see him without an erection, make him a sandwich.

#7 Give a person a fish and you feed them for a day; teach a person to use the internet and they won't bother you for weeks.

#6 Some people are like a slinky... not really good for anything, but you still can't help but smile when you shove them down the stairs.

#5 Health nuts are going to feel stupid someday, lying in the hospital dying of nothing

#4 All of us could take a lesson from the weather. It pays no attention to criticism.

#3 Why does a slight tax increase cost you two hundred pounds, and a substantial tax cut saves you thirty pence???

#2 In the 60's, people took LSD to make the world weird. Now the world is weird and people take Prozac to make it normal.

#1 Don't worry about old age - it doesn't last that long.

■ MY GOLDFISH DIED...
Little Nancy was in the garden filling in a hole when her neighbour peered over the fence. Interested in what the cheeky-faced youngster was doing, he politely asked, "What are you up to there, Nancy?"
"My goldfish died," replied Nancy tearfully, without looking up, "and I've just buried him."
The neighbor was concerned, "That's an awfully big hole for a goldfish, isn't it?"
Nancy patted down the last heap of earth then replied, "That's because he's inside your bloody cat."

■ FEMALE DENTIST
The female dentist pulls out a numbing needle to give the man a shot of Novocain.
"No way! No needles. I hate needles" the patient said..
The dentist starts to hook up the nitrous oxide and the man objects..
"I can't do the gas thing. The thought of having the gas mask on, suffocates me!"
The dentist then asks the patient if he has any objection to taking a pill.
"No objection," the patient says. "'I'm fine with pills."
The dentist then returns and says, "Here's a Viagra."
The patient says, "Wow! I didn't know Viagra worked as a pain killer!"
"It doesn't" said the dentist, "but it's going to give you something to hold on to when I pull your tooth out"

■ GETTING A TIGER BY THE TAIL

Last week was one of those when nothing much happened. Nothing much happens quite often at this time of year, a bit like Bintabaht on a wet Monday night. There was of course a bit of world wide media rumpus over a woman who got pregnant. And the first sign of Christmas decorations in the shops over here.

(Fortunately you HuaHinians will have to wait until at least the end of next month for your tinsel and baubles, although there was a glorious time not so long ago when the dreaded C word didn't arrive in Hua Hin until the beginning of December.)

We also had a bit of a stir when the owner of Hull City FC, Dr Allam, declared that the club is up for sale. Reported by some as having spat out his dummy, the announcement came following the FA's rejection of Allams' request for the clubs' name to be changed back in April.

At the time hard core supporters vehemently opposed the idea. Now of course they are begging Allam not to sell and praising him for the millions which he has invested in their club. But there are always two sides to a story, and there happens to be an ongoing feud between Hull Citys' owner, who is after all trying to run a business, and the Hull equivalent of a Tessabahn over development of the Stadium site, which cannot be ignored as a major factor in Dr Allams' decision.

Still, the resulting press conference served as a mild diversion from the tedium of ripping my CD collection to a memory stick. (Don't ask. It just seemed like a good idea at the time.)

As some readers will know I have an ongoing battle with all things IT. It seems to develop at a much faster pace than any normal persons brain cells. Still - on reflection I probably cope with it quite well compared to many others of a certain age. Having abandoned the land line phone and mastered all that full wireless malarky, not to mention having no problem at all with the laptop mousepad, downloads, Googling, re-tuning the TV, and of course online shopping. Even predictive text has never been an issue.

What does bug me - no pun intended - is how as consumers we are tempted to upgrade our various gadgets on an almost annual basis. And as queues for the latest iPhones show, many people do.

Yes it is maybe handy to be able to carry your lifes' essentials around with you at all times. The music collection, photos, downloads and apps. To have the means to Tweet, e mail, Google and text, take photographs and listen to Kasabian while comparing supermarket prices all with one small device, which can even be used to speak to people as well.

But at risk of being labelled a dinosaur I'll stick to the trusty old Nokia, digital camera and Walkman thank you very much. The thought of losing all that stuff in one go is not a happy one. The cost of the device needed to do it all on can be daunting. The very concept of built in obsolecense goes against the grain. But most importantly for us Silver Surfers, we struggle to see well enough to drive the damn things.

And so to this weeks' word. It was tempting to make it 'saltire' but by the time AWOL hits the sois that could be a bit contentious. Instead we have 'chiaroscuro'. An overly tricky word to pronounce which simply describes the effect produced by the treatment of light and shade in drawings and paintings. As in 'the chiaroscuro of cobbled streets.'

FEATURED GAME

SUNDAY 21ST SEPTEMBER 2014
PREMIER LEAGUE
Man City v Chelsea 22:00
The obvious big game this weekend, with City needing the win more than their visitors. Last week both City and their opponents Arsenal were guilty of overplaying in an attempt to score the perfect goal, while Chelsea have so far been ruthless. Having said that the only team from last season's top 6 the Blues have played has been Everton, so this will be an interesting test of their mettle. We think City will win a tight affair by the odd goal.

GLASGOW FOOTBALL FANS CONFUSED BY CHOICE

■ SCOTLAND

Confusion reigned this week in Glasgow as supporters of arch rivals Glasgow Celtic and Glasgow Rangers discovered that they might have to vote the same way as the other side in the Scottish Independence poll that took place on Thursday,

Traditionally the fans of the sides would choose the exact opposite of whatever their auld enemies chose, so for instance if the Rangers fans chose to drink Tennants Super, then the Celtic fans would only drink Tennants Extra. Other examples of the fierce rivalry are the nicknames the two sets of fans will call themselves, with Rangers supporters opting for 'Jock' and Celtic fans being the polar opposite and choosing 'Jocky'.

However the voting to decide whether Scotland becomes an independent country has been a traumatic experience for the fans, as the Jocks discover that they will end up voting in alignment with the Jockys.

Left: These two fans were spotted running around Pollock Coutry Park singing Proclaimers songs, clearly sent totally doolally by the impossible choice they had to make.

One Rangers fan, who asked to remain anonymous, so we will call him Jock, said, "Ah jist dornt ken whit tae dae - Ah hae gain against th' selic fans aw mah life."

Meanwhile a Celtic fan we spoke to, who wanted to reveal his full name, address, phone number and inside leg measurement when he found out that the Rangers fan wanted to be anonymous, but who we will call Jocky to avoid confusion, said, "Those gers fans ur a boorichie ay religioos fanatics - hoo can Ah vote th' sam way as them?" (at least thats what we think he said).

At press time the result of the poll was not known but there have been widespread reports of Old Firm fans wandering around polling stations in a state of bewilderment, talking to themselves before heading off for a deep fried Mars Bar without voting.
