SWIFT JUSTICE

RAILWAY MURDERER AND RAPIST SENTENCED TO DEATH

HUA HIN, THAILAND

For those of our readers who are used to the slow pace of the Thai legal system, this week's news that a former railway worker was sentenced to death on Tuesday for the rape and murder of a 13-year-old girl on an overnight train, throwing her body out of the train just south of Hua Hin, will come as quite a surprise. As many will be aware, this horrific crime occurred on 5th July, and the case was heard at the Hua Hin Provincial Court.

The court found Wanchai Sangkhao, the first defendant in the case, guilty of several counts. He was sentenced to death for murder, nine years in jail for raping a girl under 15, five years in prison for stealing while on public tranport vehicles at night, one year for hiding a body and six months for drug abuse, with the most severe sentence prevailing. The court rejected Wanchai's claim for mercy because he had confessed in an act of repentance. The court said Wanchai confessed because he had no choice as the evidence against him was so strong, thus there were no grounds for commutation of sentence. A second defendant, Nattakorn Chamnarn, 19, was charged as an accessory to the rape, which he confessed to when interviewed by the police, but denied in court; he was sentenced to six years in prison, with the penalty commuted by a third to four years for his previous confession.

While the death penalty will not sit comfortably with many people, it is hard to argue against it when faced with such an awful crime, not necessarily as a deterrent to others, but simply because such an abhorrent individual does not deserve to remain in this world.

■ A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

This week it is..... Get medieval

Use violence or extreme measures.

The expression 'get medieval' was coined in the USA is fairly recent years. It joins a list of figurative phrases of the 'become crazy' form. These include venerable expressions like 'go berserk', 'run amok', 'go haywire' and, more recently, 'go postal'.

The allusion in 'get medieval' is clearly to the forms of torture that were in use in the Middle Ages, the best-known of which was the rack. This grisly stretching apparatus was used to extract retractions of faith from both Protestants and Catholics during the 15th and 16th centuries in England. A notable victim was Cutbert Simson, who is shown in the accompanying image, which records his torture in 1558. He was probably relieved when he was released from the rack, but not for long - he was burned at the stake soon afterwards.

The person who brought the phrase 'get medieval' to the public's attention is Quentin Tarantino, who, with Roger Avary, wrote the screenplay to the 1994 film Pulp Fiction. In the film, the character Marsellus Wallace swears revenge on an attacker:

I ain't through with you by a damn sight. I'm gonna git Medieval on your ass.

Tarantino leaves it to our imagination what the revenge will be but, as Wallace says it is going to involve "a pair of pliers and a blow-torch", we can assume a degree of unpleasantness.

Tarantino and Avary didn't coin the phrase however. It was in occasional use by the 1970s. The earliest use that can be found of it is in another form of pulp fiction, a cartoon strip in the Ohio newspaper The Lima News, October 1971 (right). The cartoon suggests that the expression wasn't then used as a reference to extreme violence.

As a related aside, the phrase 'Go postal' means to fly into a violent rage, especially when provoked by workplace stress. This originated in the USA in 1990s following several incidents from 1986 onward, in which individuals working for the United States Postal Service workers shot and killed fellow workers and members of the public. The first event of this kind was in August 1986, when fourteen postal workers were killed and six wounded by gunshot in an Oklahoma post office, by Patrick Sherrill, himself a postal worker, who later shot himself. Between that date and 1997 there were more than 40 deaths in 20 such incidents.

The term was first recorded in the Florida newspaper The St. Petersburg Times, December 1993:

"The symposium was sponsored by the U.S. Postal Service, which has seen so many outbursts that in some circles excessive stress is known as 'going postal'."

Despite the unfortunate reputation gained by the US Postal Service as a result of these murders, statistics measured over the longer term show that the service is no more stressful than other comparable occupations and the number of incidents of workplace rage no worse than other forms of employment.

CAPRICORN Dec 22 - Jan 19
You'll be saddened when it turns out that all those people who only like you for your money turn out not to be very good friends.

AQUARIUS Jan 20 – Feb 18
Old promises come due this week when you're reminded of your pledge to get a real job just as soon as the Portuguese prime minister retires.

PISCES Feb 19 – Mar 20
You'll continue to spend your days covered in feathers and bird shit, proving that being dressed by birds every morning isn't all it's cracked up to be.

ARIES Mar 21 – Apr 20
You're not the kind of person who can wear those stylish strappy heels, mostly because you're too stupid to figure out how shoes go on.

TAURUS Apr 21 – May 21
Love, wisdom, and luck are all strong in your zodiac sign this week, providing further proof that you are not your zodiac sign.

GEMINI May 22 – June 21
The bellboy will be a little intimidated by all your luggage, but, frankly, a single suitcase nuke won't do the job on a city that size.

CANCER Jun 22 – Jul 22
You'll become embroiled in a vicious conflict between those who feel Queens of the Stone Age are overrated and those who want control of the cocaine trade on the Eastern Seaboard.

LEO Jul 23 – Aug 22
You're starting to believe that your neighbour is trying to hide something from you with all those clothes she insists on wearing.

VIRGO Aug 23 – Sep 22
The stars have nothing to say to you this week, as they're trying to work on their own future for once, if you don't mind.

LIBRA Sep 23 – Oct 23
Spice things up in the bedroom this week by inviting someone to go in there with you for some intercourse.

SCORPIO Oct 24 – Nov 21
You'll have strange dreams in which a bearded hippie in a long robe urges you to cast off your burdens and join him at the right hand of his father, but it's probably nothing.

SAGITTARIUS Nov 22 – Dec 21
Next week will be a joyful whirlwind of magic, laughter, and romance, so it's too bad you're going to miss the whole thing.

■ THE BLONDE DRIVER

One day while on patrol, a police officer pulled over a car for speeding. He went up to the car and asked the driver to roll down her window. The first thing he noticed, besides the nice red sports car, was how hot the driver was! Blue eyes, blonde, the works.

"I've pulled you over for speeding, Ma'am. Could I see your drivers license?"

"What's a license???" replied the blonde, instantly giving away the fact that she was as dumb as a stump.

"It's usually in your wallet," replied the officer. After fumbling for a few minutes, the driver managed to find it. "Now may I see your registration?" asked the cop.

"Registration….. what's that….?" asked the blonde.

"It's usually in your glove compartment." said the cop impatiently. After some more fumbling, she found the registration.

"I'll be back in a minute." said the cop and walked back to his car. The officer phoned into the dispatch to run a check on the woman's license and registration. After a few moments, the dispatcher came back, "Ummm… is this woman driving a red sports car?"

"Yes." replied the officer

"Is she a drop dead gorgeous blonde?" asked the dispatcher.

"Uh… yes." replied the cop.

"Here's what you do." said the dispatcher. "Give her the stuff back, and drop your pants."

"What!!? I can't do that. Its… inappropriate." exclaimed the cop.

"Trust me. Just do it." said the dispatcher.

So the cop went back to the car, gave back the license and registration and dropped his pants, just as the dispatcher said.

The blonde looked down and sighed….. "Ohh no… not another breathalyzer……"

■ BE SURE YOU KNOW THE SUBJECT MATTER

The male teacher in a girls' school asked the science class: "Who can tell me what organ of the human body expands to 10 times its usual size when stimulated? Mary, can you tell me?"

Mary blushed furiously as she stood up. She said: "Sir, how dare you ask such a question? I will complain to my parents, who will complain to the principal."

The male teacher was taken aback at first by Mary's reaction.

Then, as understanding dawned on him, he called for another pupil, this time a volunteer.

Lily put up her hand. "Yes, Lily?"

"Sir, the correct answer is the iris of the eye."

"Very good. Thanks, Lily," said the male teacher. He then turned to the first girl, who threatened to complain to her parents and principal: "Well, Mary, I have three things to tell you: First, you have not done your homework. Second, you have a dirty mind.

And thirdly, one day you are going to be sadly disappointed."

■ A TERRIBLE ARGUMENT

Two men were talking over a pint of beer.

"Me and the wife had a terrible argument last night," said Alf. "She's a bloody stubborn woman. But I got the last word in."

"Good for you, Alf," said his mate, "and what was that?"

"Okay, buy the damned thing," he replied.

■ TOELINING

Did you spot last weeks' deliberate mistake? The missing 'word of the week'? Which just goes to show that the little grey cells don't always do what you would like them to.

So to make up for it here are two words which both show just how contrived our language is becoming.

First is 'frenvy', to envy a friend. Next is 'gaydar', the sixth sense which enables homosexual people to recognise those of a similar persuasion.

It seems that anyone can join in the fashion for making up new words by joining together parts of other words, so why not have a go? A few Singha might help you along.

Speaking of which it was good to see that bottled brew on sale in a local bar over here last weekend. Unfortunately it wasn't hot enough to sit outside and do it justice with bottle, glass and a bucket of ice, and they would probably charge extra for the ice anyway.

Meanwhile Thailand was dealing with the crucial issue of TV soaps, which are a bad influence on the masses and need to be re-written. The Powers That Be clearly don't watch Eastenders, or even Emmerdale, which could no doubt benefit from David Camerons' personal intervention. I'm sure the voters of the UK wouldn't object at all to him fitting in a little script writing in between bombing Iraq and trying to persuade his MPs not to defect to UKIP.

Of course Cameron does have a democratically elected sidekick in the shape of Nick Clegg, who could be glad of something useful to do.

And speaking of democracy, it is a concept which still seems to puzzle Thailand. So much so that from November it will become a subject in every school curriculum. Staff in the countrys' Education Ministry have been told by the Electoral Commission that in other countries, which are already fully developed democracies, people are provided with the freedom and rights to express their views 'within a framework of discipline and observation of regulations'.

I wonder just how much of Thailands' new democracy teaching will focus on those two words 'discipline' and 'regulations', and how much on 'freedom and rights.' Because along with the need for things like public order and the absence of corruption, the most basic principle of democracy is to allow for freedom of thought and the right to choose our representatives. Surely a good way to start would be for children to be allowed some freedom of thought and expression? Even if that does include the freedom to watch TV programmes which haven't been doctored by the government.

Editor's note: The title of this week's THAB was the perfect excuse to make up a word as Mags' suggested - 'Toelining', from the made up verb 'to toeline' which gives us the noun 'toeliner'; the meaning is the act of toeing the line or obeying the rules. A kind of description of what Thailand's government is currently trying to get the population to do.Now, can our readers do any better? Take up the THAB challenge and make up some words and their meanings, and send them to Mags at thab@awolonline.net, and she will feature the best ones in a future column, particularly those that reflect on some of the aspects of living in Thailand.

FEATURED GAME

SUNDAY 5TH OCTOBER 2014
PREMIER LEAGUE
Chelsea v Arsenal 20:05
A win for Chelsea would put them 9 points ahead of the Gunners and at such an early stage of the season that is a huge margin. Wenger will have his work cut out to prevent it, as along with Everton and Manchester United they are conceding too many goals to be true title contenders. However caution does not seem to be a word that the Arsenal manager recognises so we could be in for a real spectacular here; we think lots of goals and a Chelsea win.

PREMATURE EVALUATION

SPURS TAKEOVER OFF AFTER BIDDERS WATCH THEM PLAY

■ ENGLAND

INVESTORS have withdrawn a bid for Tottenham Hotspur after seeing them in action.

Cain Hoy executives attended last week's Capital One game against Nottingham Forest to give them a taste of the team in action but during a goalless first half several of them slipped into mild comas.

Consortium head Nikki Hollis said: "We'd had a chat with Malcolm Glazer about how investing in English football was a great way of making a fortune without doing any work.

"He also recommended it as a way of annoying millions of arseholes which, while not financially lucrative, is always fun.

"But Erik Lamela? Chas and Dave?

"No."

Hollis said: "Oh, and the pies? Seriously, what the hell?"

Spurs had hoped the investment would allow them to purchase their first striker since Jurgen Klinnsman and employ a songwriter to create a chant that does not involve Arsenal.

Cain Hoy were due to make a cash offer for the team in the region of eight figures, if you include the two numbers after the decimal point.

An earlier 'one billion' valuation of the club was dismissed, unless the currency in question was the Mark during the hyperinflation-hit Weimar Republic of the 1920s or the Laotian Kip.

In a bad couple of weeks for the club they also learned that their hoped for groundshare of the Olympic Stadium in Stratford while White Hart Lane is redeveloped would be vetoed by tenants West Ham, leaving them with a likely groundshare of the Matchroom Stadium, formerly known as Brisbane Road, Leyton Orient's ground (capacity 9,271).
