POPPY POWER

REMEMBERING THE FALLEN AND HELPING THE SURVIVORS OF WAR

HUA HIN, THAILAND

For our British readers, the significance of the poppy will be well known, as it has been used as the symbol for the Royal British Legion's annual fund raising efforts for decades. Following the end of the Great War, World War 1, in 1918, it was decided to set a day to remember the hundreds of thousands of soldiers who had given their lives for their country, named Remembrance Day, and in 1919 the first of these was observed. The official date and time for this is the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month, when a two minutes silence is observed, although official ceremonies now normally take place on the Sunday closest to that date.

From around 1922 imitation poppies were sold to raise money to help injured soldiers and the families of lost soldiers, and this continues to the present day.

This practice has been going on in Hua Hin for several years with the approval of the Royal British Legion, with poppies and official collection boxes in selected locations; this year is a special year for many reasons, not least because it marks 100 years since the start of World War 1. This year you can buy your poppies from three locations; Hua Hin Ham, Bacon and Meat Company in Soi 41, Ye Olde Buffalo Tavern at the Chomsin Road/ Naresdamri Road junction, and El Murphys in Soi Selakam. All money collected is transferred to the RBL, and you can find out more about how the money is used on their website at www.britishlegion.org.uk. Please also see the advert on page 5 for more on the significance of this year's appeal.

Poppy Collection boxes Remembrance 2014

It is particularly poignant this year as 2014 marks the 70th Anniversary of the disastrous Operation Market Garden which attempted to secure the Rhine bridges at Arnhrm and Nijmegen between 17 and 25th September 1944. An estimated 17,000 casualtieswere reported from mainly British and US forces, the majority from airborne units of 1st Airborne Division (British) and 101st Airborne Division (USA).

■ A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

This week it is..... Remembrance Day Poppy

This week we bring you something a little different, not the etymology of a word or phrase but the origins of why poppies are sold and worn as a sign of remembering the fallen soldiers in war. (see page 1)

Scarlet corn poppies (popaver rhoeas) grow naturally in conditions of disturbed earth throughout Western Europe. The destruction brought by the Napoleonic wars of the early 19th Century transformed bare land into fields of blood red poppies, growing around the bodies of the fallen soldiers.

In late 1914, the fields of Northern France and Flanders were once again ripped open as World War One raged through Europe's heart. Once the conflict was over the poppy was one of the only plants to grow on the otherwise barren battlefields.

The significance of the poppy as a lasting memorial symbol to the fallen was realised by the Canadian surgeon John McCrae in his poem In Flanders Fields (see story and poem below). The poppy came to represent the immeasurable sacrifice made by his comrades and quickly became a lasting memorial to those who died in World War One and later conflicts. It was adopted by The Royal British Legion as the symbol for their Poppy Appeal, in aid of those serving in the British Armed Forces, after its formation in 1921.

During the early days of the Second Battle of Ypres a young Canadian artillery officer, Lieutenant Alexis Helmer, was killed on 2nd May, 1915 in the gun positions near Ypres. An exploding German artillery shell landed near him. He was serving in the same Canadian artillery unit as a friend of his, the Canadian military doctor and artillery commander Major John McCrae.

As the brigade doctor, John McCrae was asked to conduct the burial service for Alexis because the chaplain had been called away somewhere else on duty that evening. It is believed that later that evening, after the burial, John began the draft for his now famous poem "In Flanders Fields".

In Flanders Fields
by John McCrae, May 1915

In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the Dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe:
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

This year marks one hundred years since the start of the First World War in which an estimated 15 million soldiers were killed from all nations. For anyone who will be visiting London before the end of November, there is a moving tribute at the Tower Of London to the 888,246 British soldiers who died, with a ceramic poppy for each of them placed in the dry moat surrounding the Tower. Whatever the rights and wrongs of that war and all that have followed, these were fathers and sons, and in more modern times mothers and daughters, who fought and died to protect us, and should be remembered. See page 5 to find out where you can buy your poppies this year to do just that.

CAPRICORN Dec 22 - Jan 19
The sudden spike in the salmon population is no surprise to anyone who knows the real reason you like swimming so much.

AQUARIUS Jan 20 – Feb 18
A regular routine can provide much-needed structure, but you might be better off if you didn't start every day with a guy trying to saw your head off.

PISCES Feb 19 – Mar 20
It's probably best if you just put your head down and keep sharpening pencils for the next few years.

ARIES Mar 21 – Apr 20
You'll have yet another disastrous first date when you get something stuck between your front teeth and a crosstown bus.

TAURUS Apr 21 – May 21
The reality turns out to be okay, but when you heard the phrase "taco truck," you pictured a giant taco that was also a truck.

GEMINI May 22 – June 21
While it's true that someone in Baltimore loves you, this is less a reason for a jaunty T-shirt than a cause for genuine concern.

CANCER Jun 22 – Jul 22
The stars hear your unasked question, and the answer you seek is: "If they keep losing their opener to the Pirates, way more than 103 years."

LEO Jul 23 – Aug 22
You'll be spared a potential source of great conflict and divisiveness in your life this week when it's born dead.

VIRGO Aug 23 – Sep 22
Don't worry: There is nothing wrong with you that emergency brain surgery and a quadruple bypass within the next 90 minutes won't solve.

LIBRA Sep 23 – Oct 23
Your lips are red and chapped because you keep licking them. To balance this out, lick yourself raw everywhere else.

SCORPIO Oct 24 – Nov 21
Next week will call for many, many pairs of leather pants, which would be fine with you if they didn't have to be the kind of pants with asses in them.

SAGITTARIUS Nov 22 – Dec 21
You'll soon be feeling like your old self again thanks to a sudden and tragic relapse into alcoholism.

■ DOG TALE

A woman went to the cinema with her dog and on the way out she was stopped by a man. He said to her " I'm sorry to bother you but I noticed that your dog watched the film all the way through, crying at the right times, hiding during the scary bits and laughing during the funny bits. Don't you find that a bit odd?"
"Well yes" said the woman "That is odd. He hated the book."

■ HEARING PROBLEM

My wife found out that our dog - a Schnauzer - could hardly hear, so she took him to the Vet. The vet found that the problem was thick hair in the dog's ears.
The vet cleaned out both of the animal's ears, and the dog could then hear fine. The vet then proceeded to tell my wife that if she wanted to keep this from recurring, she should go to the chemist and get some "Nair Hair Remover" and rub it in the dog's ears once a month.
She went to the chemist shop to buy some "Nair Hair Remover."
At the till, the pharmacist told her: "If you're going to use this under your arms, don't use any deodorant for a few days."
My wife said: "I'm not using it under my arms."
The pharmacist said, "If you're using it on your legs, don't use body lotion on your legs for a couple of days."
My wife replied, "I'm not using it on my legs either. If you must know, I'm using it on my Schnauzer."
The pharmacist said: "Well, then, stay off your bicycle for at least a week...

■ BANK LOAN

An old native American wanted a loan for $500 so went to the local bank. The banker pulled out the loan application, "What are you going to do with the money?"
"Take jewellery to city and sell it," was the response.
"What have you got for collateral?"
"Don't know collateral."
"Well that's something of value that would cover the cost of the loan.Have you got any vehicles?"
"Yes, 1949 Chevy pickup."
The banker shook his head, "How about livestock?"
"Yes, I have a horse."
"How old is it?"
"Don't know, has no teeth."
Finally the banker decided to make the $500 loan. Several weeks later the old man was back in the bank. He pulled out a roll of bills, "Here to pay." he said. He then handed the banker the money to pay his loan off.
"What are you going to do with the rest of that money?"
"Put in teepee."
"Why don't you deposit it in my bank," he asked.
"Don't know deposit."
"You put the money in our bank and we take care of it for you. When you want to use it you can withdraw it."
The old Indian leaned across the desk, "What you got for collateral?"

TECHNOLOGY OVERLOAD

Happy Halloween and welcome back to AWOL - I hope you enjoyed the break as much as we did!

As our return coincides with Halloween it seems like a good time to offer a word of caution on the wisdom of burying your Grandma with her mobile phone.

In case you missed it, that is exactly what one family in the UK did three years ago. The deceased Grandma had apparently been very attached to her mobile, and especially loved texting. So it seemed like a good idea to bury the phone with her so that family members could carry on texting her in the hereafter. Obviously they couldn't have known whether there would be a signal down below, and didn't expect replies anyway, but that didn't deter them. And it probably cut down on the need for those tedious trips to the cemetary with flowers.

So imagine their shock when, almost three years after her demise, replies began to reach them from Grandmas' phone. Messages assuring them that they were being watched over kind of thing.

The mystery was solved when it was discovered that Grandmas' phone number had been re-allocated to another user, despite assurances by the network provider that would never happen. The new owner of the number, receiving some texts intended for Grandma, thought he should reply. As you would - it's only polite after all.

What is really worrying is how anyone could imagine that a phone battery could last that long in the first place, let alone believe anything that a phone provider tells them.

Undeterred by the potential pitfalls of technology however our very own Queen - Elizabeth that is - has sent her first Tweet. All very progressive and 21st century. But wouldn't it be wiser to leave all that stuff to the younger generations of Royals?

I doubt that she was amused by some of the Twitter responses calling for her abdication.

Still on the subject of new technology - or in this case not quite so new - it had to happen didn't it? You bought your first CD player 25 or so years ago, and soon realised that CDs were becoming more readily available, easier to store, harder wearing, and cheaper than vinyl. In fact vinyl was disappearing fast. So you gradually replaced those scratchy 33's with CDs and consigned your turntable to landfill. Over time you made the next move to i Players, digital downloads and the like, ignoring those strange geeks who continued to worship vinyl with all it's hisses and blips.

And now what happens? For the first time since 1996 sales of vinyl records are expected to exceed 1 million by the end of this year. So much for progress - the next thing we know we will be carrying around mobile phones the size of house bricks.

This weeks word of the week could easily be used to describe those who continue to argue over Angkhor Wat - or at least those on the Thai side of it.

At first glance 'Irredentist' would appear to describe a dentist armed with some kind of water torture implement. In fact it refers to a person who advocates the restoration to their country of any land which formerly belonged to it.

FEATURED GAME

SUNDAY 2ND NOVEMBER 2014
PREMIER LEAGUE
Man City v Man Utd 20:30
As always an interesting clash following their respective games last weekend. City showed some of their frailties last week and Van Gaal will be eager to explot them, while Pellegrini will be hoping that his side bounce back quickly against a defence that looks suspect. We think there will be a few goals in this one, and that United will surprise a few by grabbing a win to take them onto the shoulder of their rivals.

MY BRAIN HURTS

SUNDERLAND FANS TO HAVE MEMORIES WIPED

■ ENGLAND

SUNDERLAND players have paid to have fans' memories of their recent defeats, most notably their 8 - 0 thrashing by Southampton, surgically deleted.

Sunderland community officer Tom Booker said: "The players thought the least they could do was offer those fans pioneering brain surgery.

"The travelling supporters accepted gratefully. Very few seemed worried about the potential damage to their long-term neural functioning, although some were concerned they might forget that song about Lee Cattermole.

"We considered replacing the memory of the 8-0 loss with a victory of some kind, but doctors told us that the procedure can only do so much."

Some fans opted to wait until after last weekend's home match against Arsenal, as they were expecting an even more convinging trouncing, but were clearly unaware of the Gunner's ineptitude in front of goal - one who had the successful operation though was Nathan Muir, who said: "People keep talking about the Southampton game, but we haven't even played Southampton.

"Although I do keep having these weird nightmares about a hapless Vito Mannone repeatedly picking the ball out of a net while southerners hoot in derision at me.

"I also seem to have forgotten my name and where I live. But I do know this great song about Lee Cattermole."

Sunderland manager Gus Poyet has apparently this week opted to have the same operation, although with the proviso that he is able to remember how useless Vito Mannone is, so that he no longer feels the urge to pick him, assuming he is still in his job.
