WEAR A HELMET

ANOTHER EXPAT MOTORBIKE DEATH FROM HEAD INJURIES

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

The tragic loss of yet another resident expat to a motorbike accident last weekend will ultimately end up being just another statistic except to his family and friends, but the death of Xavier Macors (Marco to all who knew him) should represent a wake up call to everyone who rides motorbikes or scooters here. Marco died when he collided with a lamp post near Soi 94, and initial reports suggest that this was at the relatively low speed of about 40 kph; however he was not wearing a crash helmet, and it was his head injuries that proved fatal.

It is not clear exactly how the accident happened, as other than a Thai man riding a scooter who Marco passed shortly before the collision, there were no others who were involved in the accident nor witnesses; it is believed the crash occurred shortly after midnight on Saturday 8th November with emergency services on the scene soon after, although it is believed Marco died on impact. Marco's father was due to arrive in Hua Hin as we were going to print, and we would like to express our sincere condolences to him and the rest of Marco's family and friends.

Unfortunately the police are not allowed to issue a death certificate to anyone other than family members, and without this his body could not be released for funeral arrangements, so we are unable to bring you information on any services; for those readers who wish to find out we suggest visiting the Railway Tavern in Soi 88 to enquire, as it is likely that by the time of our next issue it will already have occurred.

Marco was 45 and had been hoping to start a family with his long time girlfriend Fon; we will all miss his happy face and cheery personality.

Poppy Collection boxes Remembrance 2014

It is particularly poignant this year as 2014 marks the 70th Anniversary of the disastrous Operation Market Garden which attempted to secure the Rhine bridges at Arnhrm and Nijmegen between 17 and 25th September 1944. An estimated 17,000 casualtieswere reported from mainly British and US forces, the majority from airborne units of 1st Airborne Division (British) and 101st Airborne Division (USA).

Boxes are now in situ at Hua Hin Ham, Bacon and Meat Company (soi 41) - see ad front page

■ A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

This week it is..... I'm stumped

Stumped: Stuck - unable to proceed, often regarding being confounded by some intellectual puzzle.

Some authorities have supposed that this derives from the development of the road system in the USA. When these highways were being built the stumps of sawn down trees could be no more than 15 inches tall. This was fine for the high axle wagons until rain softened the soil, at which time wagons would sink into the mud and were 'stumped'. This is a good story, albeit one that doesn't come packaged with any real evidence.

Others have suggested that it might be from cricket, in which a batsman is out if the wicketkeeper removes the stumps with the ball when the batsman is out of his ground. This explanation is also lacking supporting evidence and in any case doesn't really match the meaning of the expression.

It is more likely that the term derives from ploughs sticking when they hit tree-stumps. The USA origin is certainly correct though. All of the early citations of the phrase originate from there; for example, Seba Smith's Letters of Major Jack Downing, 1833:

"My Good Old Friend, - I'm stumped. I jest got a letter from the Gineral."

The term is pre-dated by the term 'stumper', which was US slang for a difficult poser. This was cited in an 1807 edition of the New York magazine Salmagundi:

"They happened to run their heads full butt against a new reading. Now this was a stumper."

Is there an English phrase or saying that you would like to know more about?

CAPRICORN Dec 22 - Jan 19
Authorities acknowledge that yes, technically you went on a tristate killing spree, but since you did it in the Four Corners region of the Southwest, it actually makes you look lazy.

AQUARIUS Jan 20 – Feb 18
When the stars said it was a good time to start new projects at work, they didn't expect you to put Vaseline on the stairs and then pull the fire alarm.

PISCES Feb 19 – Mar 20
Thanks to the events of this week, when people think "fish sticks," they'll think of you. Then they'll throw up, especially if they're eating fish sticks.

ARIES Mar 21 – Apr 20
You refuse to buy into society's petty, narrow-minded definitions of good and evil, or at least that's what you tell people when they notice you're a lousy tipper.

TAURUS Apr 21 – May 21
You'll be doing a lot of travelling in the near future due to your inability to dribble a basketball effectively.

GEMINI May 22 – June 21
When all's said and done, you've loved and been loved in return, and no one can take that away from you. However, they can make sure you don't get paid for it.

CANCER Jun 22 – Jul 22
There will come times in life when you find it impossible to tell the dancer from the dance. Be advised the person is the dancer and the dance is the series of motions being made.

LEO Jul 23 – Aug 22
Your true goal continues to elude you when you succeed in breeding pandas to a mailbox, a surprised cat, and a traumatized lab assistant.

VIRGO Aug 23 – Sep 22
While "To thine own self be true" is wise advice, it was intended for someone whose own self didn't sit on the couch eating crisps and watching quiz shows.

LIBRA Sep 23 – Oct 23
You'll experience a slight setback when events beyond your control force you to repeat age 8 all over again, which actually isn't half bad.

SCORPIO Oct 24 – Nov 21
You've always detested clichés, tired old jokes, and easy irony, which are three more reasons why you're going to hate being killed by a falling safe.

SAGITTARIUS Nov 22 – Dec 21
They say a good friend will bail you out of jail but a best friend will share your cell. With that in mind, your best friend will stab you with a sharpened toothbrush this week.

■ NEWS FLASHES:
Now on sale at IKEA - beds for lesbians: no nuts or screwing involved, it's all tongue and groove.

A Muslim has been shot with a starting pistol; police say it's definitely race related.

I got a letter from Screw Fix Direct thanking me for my interest, but explaining they were not a dating agency.

The lead actor in the local pantomime production of Aladdin was anally raped by the gay genie on stage last night - to be fair the audience did try to warn him.

Such an unfair world. When a man talks dirty to a woman its considered sexual harassment. When a woman talks dirty to a man its £2.50/min (charges may vary)

Just booked a table for Valentine's Day for me and the wife. Bound to end in tears though - she's crap at snooker.

Met a beautiful girl down at the park today. Sparks flew, she fell at my feet and we ended up having sex there and then. God, I love my new Taser!

If you get an email telling you that you can catch Swine Flu from tins of ham then delete it. It's Spam.

They say that sex is the best form of exercise. Now correct me if I'm wrong but I don't think 2 minutes and 15 seconds every 6 months is going to shift this beer belly.

When I was a kid people used to cover me in chocolate and cream and put a cherry on my head. Yeah, life was tough in the gateau.

■ DICKENS'S MARTINI
Charles Dickens walks into a bar and orders a martini. The bartender asks, "Olive or twist?"

■ THE OFFSPRING
A birch and a beech tree grow up side by side in the forest. One day, a sapling grows between them, and each swears that it's not their son. The beech thinks it's a son-of-a-birch, and the birch thinks it's a son-of-a-beech. To settle it, they enlist the help of a woodpecker, who checks it out.
"You are both wrong," he says when he comes back up. "That's the best piece of ash I've ever had my pecker in."

■ A BLONDE & HER THERMOS
A blonde notices that her coworker has a thermos, so she asks him what it's for. He responds, "It keeps hot things hot and cold things cold."

The blonde immediately buys one for herself. The next day, she goes to work and proudly displays it.

Her coworker asks, "What do you have in it?"

She replies, "Soup and ice cream."

■ CHRISTMAS IS COMING?

Imagine if you will a small boy, about 8 years old, playing with his friend. They seem to be inseparable, watching TV together, travelling on a bus, doing all the things that friends do. Except that the friend is a real live penguin named Monty, who, like all penguins of a certain age, is becoming broody for a mate.

Fortunately the young boy is street wise for his age. Recognising a love sick penguin when he sees one, he surprises Monty with a little lady friend for Christmas. And as Monty bonds with his soul mate Mabel it becomes clear that the two penguins are not real at all, but just toys.

By this time you are either going all gooey eyed or reaching for the bottle. Maybe you are also wondering what the story was all about.

Well wonder no more, for it is the latest John Lewis Christmas advert, which very quickly went viral, so if you haven't yet seen it you can - if you must - catch up online.

This is just one of the latest batch of seasonal ads in the growing trend for seasonal ads which don't actually advertise products. Instead they aim to tug at the heart strings and evoke that 'feel good' factor which will draw shoppers to those magical emporiums of Christmas dreams, (or at least to visit their websites.) And to be fair the John Lewis 'feel good' ad did at least, either by accident or design, result in them selling out of some very expensive toy penguins in no time.

Of course other retailers ads are available, including front runners in the gooey seasonal ad market Marks and Spencer and Boots. In fact these two, along with John Lewis, form the top three Christmas ads in an online vote for the best of the 2014 bunch.

But when the M and S advance viewing landed in my E mail inbox last week it was quite a relief that the laptop battery expired half way through, curtailing the vision of women pretending to be fairies and flying around snowy rooftops in a rather wooden fashion, trailing fairy dust in their wake. True - a few products could be glimpsed if you watched closely enough, including the clothes of the fairies in question, which to be honest were not suited to the weather. Clearly M and S daren't risk going the whole hog like John Lewis, which given the competition these days is maybe wise.

Boots meanwhile have no such qualms - concentrating on a little story about going home to family for Boxing Day, with no product placement in sight - not even a penguin.

Maybe I should stop giving my E mail address to almost every national chain of retailers that I use and save myself a lot of angst!

But no, it is almost impossible now - even in Hull - to get by without online shopping and store points cards, and in any case ads on TV are unavoidable so they get you one way or the other. I just wish they would stick to the point and stop pretending they are something they're not.

The moral to this story is that however annoying those loudspeaker bearing pickups are on the sois of Hua Hin, be thankful that they quickly pass you by.

You may of course be planning to immerse yourself even more fully in festive celebrations by popping up to Bangkok for a few days. If so this weeks' word could prove useful in Patpong. No-one will understand it except you, but it could be an interesting ice breaker. 'Ecdysiast'. According to Wiki this means an erotic dancer who removes their clothes as a form of entertainment. Also known as a stripper.

FEATURED GAME

WEDNESDAY 19TH NOVEMBER 2014
INTERNATIONAL FRIENDLIES
Scotland v England 03:00
While this game has no competitive importance as regards any championship or trophy, to the fans it has far more significance than the qualifying games played in the week prior to it. This is the first time in 15 years that England will play in Scotland, and the home fans will be after revenge for the narrow loss they suffered in August last year. Scotland are much improved under Gordon Strachan and we think this will be another closely contested affair, and will be a hard fought draw.

ROY HODGSON UNHAPPY WITH SEVERED LIMBS ON WEMBLEY PITCH

■ ENGLAND

ENGLAND manager Roy Hodgson has complained about the human body parts littering Wembley after last weekend's NFL game. The contest between the Dallas Cowboys and the Jacksonville Jaguars, which killed 16 players and injured more than 200 spectators, has left the pitch strewn with human debris ahead of Saturday's game against Slovenia.

Hodgson said: "A few arms we could cope with. But when I pulled one half-buried leg out of the centre circle it turned out still to be attached to quarterback Tony Romo, who had been buried alive in a complex offensive play.

"Even without oxygen for 12 hours his intense will to win remained, and he tore up half the pitch dragging his broken body to the touchdown area."

Wembley officials have been quick to reassure Hodgson and the England squad that all traces of the dead and injured would be removed before Saturday's game, and are in talks with the Scottish F.A to negotiate a joint deal with OCS, the commercial cleaning company, to clear up after the inevitable carnage to occur at next week's clash between Scotland and England at Celtic Park.
