NEW WATER JUNGLE OPENS IN TEN DAYS; MUSIC FESTIVAL THERE THIS WEEKEND

HUA HIN, THAILAND

Anyone travelling beyond the flyover south of the town cannot have failed to see the colourful new water park emerging, as Vana Nava Hua Hin nears completion. Billed as Asia's first water jungle, it is due to open fully to the public on 1st December, but prior to that there is a surprising sneak peek opportunity, as the Tempology "underground dance music festival" takes place this Saturday (22nd November) offering festival goers the chance to enjoy rides and a swim while listening to a line-up consisting of local underground heroes and a mixture of live bands and DJs who will play the whole spectrum of dance music from indie disco, house and roots music to hard-edged techno. Tickets are 500 baht each, and more information can be found on www.tempobkk.com.

Vana Nava itself s expected to bring in more than 300,000 visitors in its first year, and is the first phase of a larger 35- rai mixed-use development. The park's highlights include The Abyss, and the 31-metre-high Vana Nava Falls, which is said to be Asia's tallest man-made mountain waterfall, as well as LED lighting in all the pools. Other slides and attractions include the Slide Jungle, a large tower with 6 of the fastest slides ever built and the Surf Zone consisting of a Double Flow Rider as well as a bar, a game arcade and live DJ station.

Daily admission to the water jungle zone starts at 1,000 baht per adult and 600 baht per child, with a family package for 2 adults and 2 children at 2,600 baht. Operating times during the regular seasons will be 10am - 6pm, extended to 10am - 9pm during the peak season and on public holidays. For more information and special deals, visit www.VanaNavaHuaHin.com.

■ A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

This week it is..... Field day

A day of excitement or a circumstance of opportunity.

The origin use of this term comes from the military. The literal sense of the term, that is, a day spent in field manoeuvers, is now little used. The first reference we have for that meaning is from 1747, in Scheme Equip. Men of War:

"These periodical Intervals of eating and drinking ... are to the Citizens as it were Field Days, for improving their Valour."

A more specifically military reference comes from a little later, in The Edinburgh Advertiser, May 1776:

"The officers, on a general field day, instead of commanding, are obliged to coax them [the soldiery] to go through their different manoeuvers."

'Field day' was a commonly used term in the military throughout the rest of the 18th century. During the 19th century it began to be extended to refer to any event that might happen in a field; for example:

Hunting: "Sometimes a dance (though rarely on field days, For then the gentlemen were rather tired)." - Lord Byron, Don Juan, 1823.

Scientific expeditions: "We had a delightful field-day in the abbey." - Sir George Gilbert Scott Recollections, 1878.

Around that time the term also began to be used for any exciting or welcome event, as in Thomas Creevey's Letters, 1827:

"Saturday was a considerable field day in Arlington Street, ... and a very merry jolly dinner and evening we had."

We spend less time in fields now than before and during the 20th century the term was further extended to include opportunity as well as enjoyment; for example, 'Clergyman found drunk in nightclub - the tabloids will have a field day with that'.

CAPRICORN Dec 22 - Jan 19
You've always considered yourself a belt-and-suspenders type, but all everyone else seems to focus on is your lack of pants.

AQUARIUS Jan 20 – Feb 18
Buck up: You still have a lot of life ahead of you, even if the good part was over years ago.

PISCES Feb 19 – Mar 20
You will fall into a pattern of self-destructive behavior this week when you discover how much fun that sort of thing is.

ARIES Mar 21 - Apr 20
After a long, sweaty, painful time trying to fix a knotty problem yourself, you'll finally admit defeat and call in a real thoracic surgeon.

TAURUS Apr 21 – May 21
You'll become frustrated and depressed when, after approaching beautiful women with the corny line "I must paint you," you find it actually works like a charm.

GEMINI May 22 – June 21
A horrifying incident with a knife-thrower, a chainsaw-juggler, and a fire-eater will result in grievous bodily harm, although it's kind of a surprise that it mostly involves being hit by a bus.

CANCER Jun 22 – Jul 22
The stars are sorry, but someone has already thought of starting a band with two of each instrument in it. It wasn't all that great an idea then, either.

LEO Jul 23 – Aug 22
You aren't the first person to try to change someone after falling in love, but you might be the first to try to make that someone into a robot.

VIRGO Aug 23 – Sep 22
The powers-that-be will get back to you on that pesky legal matter with the news that they're sorry, but you can't be officially recognized as the first blind person to drive across China if you poke out your eyes just before the finish.

LIBRA Sep 23 – Oct 23
Some say the world will end in ice, some fire. However, the end of your personal world will be most notable for banal remarks on the humidity.

SCORPIO Oct 24 – Nov 21
While it's true there is no plumbing the depths of the human heart, you'll come up with some novel ideas about its heating and electrical wiring.

SAGITTARIUS Nov 22 – Dec 21
Your theory that there are only two types of people in the world won't go over well with the only other survivor of this week's global thermonuclear holocaust.

■ TWO TIGERS:

Two tigers are walking along a jungle trail in single file. The rearmost tiger wanders off the trail for a few minutes, then reappears shortly thereafter. A few moments later, the front tiger feels what seems to be the other tiger's tongue, applied just below his tail. The tiger disapproves of this action, but doesn't want to start anything by bringing it up. Then, the tiger again feels the tongue, again in the same place.

He decides to confront the after tiger, and asks him, "Did you just lick me twice in the butt?"

The other tiger replied, "Yeah, sorry about that. I just ate a lawyer and I was trying to get the taste out of my mouth."

■ KLEPTOMANIA

"Mr. Chilton," the analyst said, "I think this will be your last visit."

"Does that mean I'm cured?" he asked.

"For all practical purposes, yes," she said. "I think we can safely say that your kleptomania is now under control. You haven't stolen anything in two years, and you seem to know where the kleptomania came from."

"Well, that's terrific, Doctor. Before I go, I'd like to tell you something. Although our relationship is strictly professional, it's been one of the most rewarding of my life. I wish I could do something to repay you for helping me."

"You've paid my fee," the doctor said. "That's the only responsibility you have."

"I know," Chilton said. "But isn't there some personal favour I could do for you?"

"Well," the doctor said, "I'll tell you what. If you ever suffer a relapse, my son could use a nice portable colour television."

■ SNOW STORM

A blonde got lost in her car in a snow storm. She remembered what her dad had once told her. "If you ever get stuck in a snow storm, wait for a snow plow and follow it".

Pretty soon a snow plow came by, and she started to follow it. She followed the plow for about forty-five minutes.

Finally the driver of the truck got out and asked her what she was doing.

She explained that her dad had told her if she ever got stuck in the snow, to follow a plow.

The driver nodded and said, "Well, I'm done with Wal-Mart; now you can follow me over to K-Mart."

■ JOE THE LAWYER

Joe the lawyer died suddenly, at the age of 45. He got to the gates of Heaven, and the angel standing there said, "We've been waiting a long time for you."

"What do you mean," he replied, "I'm only 45, in the prime of my life. Why did I have to die now?"

"45? You're not 45, you're 82," replied the angel.

"Wait a minute. If you think I'm 82 then you have the wrong guy. I'm only 45. I can show you my birth certificate."

"Hold on. Let me go check," said the angel and disspeared inside. After a few minutes the angel returned. "Sorry, but by our records you are 82. I checked all the hours you have billed your clients, and you have to be 82..."

SNAILS BEFORE SWINE

Looking for a gift for that special someone? Look no further. These two little gems came to my attention just the other day.

The first - bacon flavoured massage oil - may not appeal to all faiths. But you have to admit that it sounds like a winner. Available on Amazon it could certainly liven up breakfast times, giving a whole new meaning to breakfast in bed, although there is no indication as to whether it is produced smoked or unsmoked, and as we all know some people are very fussy about their bacon.

The second offering is quite frankly bizarre by comparison. Last week I mentioned all the retail ads which land in my inbox, and one of those retailers is the popular UK High Street supplier of health foods Holland and Barrett. It's the place to go for your cod liver oil capsules, pitted prunes and all things herbal.

This time though Holland and Barrett have surpassed themselves by offering gift packs of snail gel beauty products. For just 40 pounds - or around 2000 Baht - you get snail gel hand and nail elixir, snail gel facial serum, and the mysterious sounding 'original snail gel.' (Probably best not to confuse that with the bacon massage oil.)

All snail products are of course organic, and are derived from a 'unique substance' which snails produce to regenerate and protect their shells and skin. This 'remarkable secretion' is blended with other natural products to help soothe and moisturise the skin.

I realise that we women are prone to trying all kinds of miracle skin products which promise eternal youth. Some even get quite nasty substances injected into their wrinkles. But I honestly can't see snail gel flying off the shelves, can you?

You might fancy a coffee now to help you recover from visions of snail gel on the bathroom shelf. Which brings us to this weeks word - 'barista'.

With the huge rise in Starbucks world wide, plus all its very similar big brand rivals, 'barista' has become a quite common word to describe those who serve up our caffeine shots.

Back in my Hua Hin days a leisurely break now and then during shopping trips provided an excuse for a relaxing half hour or so just watching the world go by. Whether in Bon Cafe - which was on Naebkerhardt Rd in a lovely old wooden building, or at one of those mobile sidewalk huts serving 20 baht shots of thick black stuff.

Some things don't change, and the same routine is followed here in the UK, (where coffee consumption now exceeds that of tea) except that now we are served by Baristas. Which means that as well as being trained to drive the coffee machines provided, they are also adept at adding the frothy milk, and should be able to make pretty patterns on the top of that milk.

Rather like our bartenders used to be able to make the shape of a shamrock on top of a pint of Guinness, (now sadly a dying art) the word 'barista' is in fact derived from the Italian for bartender.

FEATURED GAME

SATURDAY 22ND NOVEMBER 2014
PREMIER LEAGUE
Man City v Swansea 22:00
Both of these teams will be hoping that not only can they get all three points here but also that Chelsea, Southampton and West Ham slip up in their respective matches, but in particular the leaders from Stamford Bridge. It should be an entertaining game with lots of fast attacking football, and we also expect plenty of goals - both teams average a goal a game conceded so far, and both offer a significant goal threat from several positions. We think the final outcome will be score draw, which will do neither's title aspirations much good.

USA vs FIFA

US ADDS FIFA TO AXIS OF EVIL

■ USA

The US has expanded the Axis of Evil to include World football governing body, FIFA.

The Axis of evil, named by President George w. Bush in his 2002 State of the Union speech previously included Iran, Iraq, and North Korea.

It is thought that FIFA's recent report entitled 'Why we're brilliant and all the others, especially England, aren't,' is the trigger for their inclusion.

The FA welcomed the announcement.

"About bloody time," said Chairman Greg Dyke. "This is a grotesque, bloated and corrupt organisation. Not like the FA."

"After all, when it came out that we'd all been given nice watches as bribes, we sent them straight back. No messing. We didn't even have to wait to be told."

"We have amassed a vast dossier on the crimes of FIFA," said a spokesperson for the White House. "They've accepted bribes, they've given bribes, they flout local regulations, they run an active slave trade, they worship the devil, they leave the toilet seat up, they don't serve dolphin-friendly tuna, and we have a great deal of evidence to suggest it was them who attached a pogo-stick to the bottom of the Philae lander."

Despite the accusations, FIFA remained defiant. "This announcement is provocative and unwarranted. FIFA will defend itself against this constant harassment and slander," said a spokesperson. Frankly, Sepp's been looking forward to trying out the army of evil robo-soldiers he's built in his secret lair under a volcano. So bring it on America."
