FISHING PIER REDEVELOPMENT STARTS

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

The seafront area near the junction of Chomsin and Naresdamri Roads that has traditionally been where the fishermen bring in their catch but has also been a much needed car park, was finally closed to access this week, as work begins on a much announced and anticipated redevelopment.

The plans for the area, estimated to cover about 4 rai (6400 square metres), are not completely known, but certainly one part of it is being devoted to seafood restaurants, which has led to speculation that the current restaurants operating on the old piers south of the area will be relocated, as there has been much dispute over their right to remain where they are.

The future of these old pier establishments, which also include guesthouses, has been discussed for years, with many feeling that they are a charming attraction for the town, while others wish to see a genuine seafront promenade in their place.

One issue that the redevelopment is already causing is the reduction in areas to park in the town centre, which has been a major problem for years; there have been some recent efforts by the authorities to reduce the number of spaces taken up by taxi and tour operators most notably on Damnoernkasem Road (Soi 61), but it is clear that the town desperately needs more capacity for parking, or a more draconian approach to those who prevent vehicles parking in the streets. Drivers and motorcyclists could also be encouraged to be more considerate when they park, while a more extensive and later running local public transport network might encourage more people to leave their vehicles at home, reducing both the pressure on parking, traffic and accidents. #wecanbutdream for anyone who is reading this online...

■ A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

This week it is..... Chop-chop
Be quick; hurry up.

This little reduplicated term has its origins in the South China Sea, as a Pidgin English version of the Chinese term k'wâi-k'wâi. The earliest known citation of chop-chop in print is from the English language newspaper that was printed in Canton in the early 19th century - The Canton Register, 13th May 1834:

We have also... 'chop-chop hurry'.

A slightly fuller account was printed two years later, in a monthly journal which was produced by and for American missionaries in Canton - The Chinese Repository. In January 1836 it contained an article headed 'Jargon Spoken in Canton', which included:

"Chop-chop - pidgin Cantonese phrase for 'Hurry up!'"

The adoption of the chop-chop pronunciation was influenced by the long-standing use of 'chop' and 'chop-up' by English seamen, with the meaning 'quick' or 'hurried'. This usage dates back to at least the 16th century, when it was commonly used in the strange expression - 'chopping-up the whiners'. This referred to gabbling through prayers in order to get them finished quickly; for example, from Philip Stubbes' The anatomie of abuses, 1583:

Which maketh them [Reading ministers] to gallop it over as fast as they can, and to chop it up with all possible expedition, though none understand them.

The seafaring usage of 'chop up' referred specifically to a sudden change in the wind and the waves. This also gives us of the term 'choppy' for turbulent water and is a constituent part of the expression 'chop and change'. 'Chop-up' was recorded by Sir William Monson in Naval Tracts, 1642:

"The Wind would chop up Westerly."

One of the many other meanings of the word chop is 'to eat; to snap up' - that is, 'to take into the chops' (the jaws/cheeks/mouth). It would be a reasonable conjecture that this was the source of the word 'chop-sticks'. Reasonable, but not correct. It is the 17th century sailor's slang use of 'chop' to mean 'quick' which led to chop-sticks. The nimbleness of the Chinese in their eating without the aid of forks caused the seamen to coin the term 'quick-sticks' or chop-sticks'. William Dampier recorded this in 1699 in A New Voyage Round the World:

"At their ordinary eating they [the Chinese] use two small round sticks about the length and bigness of a Tobacco-pipe. They hold them both in the right hand, one between the fore-finger and thumb; the other between the middle-finger and fore-finger... they are called by the English seamen Chopsticks."

This is in line with the original Chinese meaning. The Chinese name for chop-sticks is k'wâi-tsze, which translates literally as 'nimble boys' or 'nimble ones'.

Apart from in travelogues of the Far-East, there is little recorded mention of chop-sticks in English until the mid 20th century. The term 'quicksticks' however, did make it back to Britain in the 19th century, as an imperative meaning 'hurry up; do it without delay'. John C. Hotten recorded this in A dictionary of modern slang, 1859:

"Quick sticks, in a hurry, rapidly; 'to cut quick sticks', to be in a great hurry."

■ ISRAEL Bad smell sparks chain reaction of vomit in nightmare plane journey

A plane journey from hell was forced to make an emergency landing after a strange odour sparked a chain reaction of vomit.

The nightmarish scenes took place after take-off from Ben Gurion Airport in Israel on Friday night.

A weird smell wafted its way through the US Airways cabin.

Soon after passengers and crew members began spewing up and down the aisle.

A total of 14 crew members and two passengers fell seriously ill – prompting the Philadelphia-bound flight to make an emergency landing in Rome.

A number of people were taken to hospital and released soon after.

US Airways maintenance crews are working to discover the source of the pungent odour.

■ SWITZERLAND Swiss McDonald's accidentally showed porn all evening and none of the staff noticed

McDonald's is proud of its family-friendly image.

But a branch of the fast food restaurant treated its customers to something that was anything but when it broadcast porn all evening on a large video screen… and none of the staff noticed.

Employees at the hamburger chain in Zuchwil, Switzerland accidentally screened a series of X-rated episodes from the Sexy Sports Clips programme aired by German channel Sport 1 on Saturday night.

And though they failed to notice their error, customers certainly didn't – though one diner and his friends didn't mind. 'We were only a group of men so it didn't bother us,' he told local TV.

McDonald's have defended their oblivious employees, who only realised the error after several hours' showing of wide-screen porn. 'If our employees didn't immediately realise what was going on, it's because they were concentrating on our customers and their work,' a McDonald's spokesman said.

CAPRICORN Dec 22 - Jan 19
You really hate it when people say "let's get out of here" in disaster movies, which is hypocritical given how it's usually the first thing out of your own mouth during a disaster.

AQUARIUS Jan 20 – Feb 18
The stars apologize for the lack of detail in last week's horoscope about being seduced by a tall, dark stranger, but you must admit you had never seen that horse before.

PISCES Feb 19 – Mar 20
You'll have a hard time finding inner peace, but frankly, you're snorting so much large-animal tranquilizer the stars figure you don't really care.

ARIES Mar 21 - Apr 20
Sometimes the exact right thing falls right out of the sky and hits you between the eyes, which will be the case next week after the bowling-ball plant upwind from you explodes.

TAURUS Apr 21 – May 21
You'll worry about your mental health when your dog suddenly begins speaking to you in a commanding voice, but all it seems to want is food, water, and the occasional walk.

GEMINI May 22 – June 21
You'll set off on an unnerving romantic adventure with a new partner who shares your unhealthy interests and reflects all the things you like least about yourself.

CANCER Jun 22 – Jul 22
Soon you will reach the halfway point of your life, allowing you to look back on past triumphs as well as forward to the time when you'll be old enough to legally buy alcohol.

LEO Jul 23 – Aug 22
They'll say you died of a broken heart, but that's only because no one wants to explain autoerotic asphyxiation to your poor mother.

VIRGO Aug 23 – Sep 22
Demanding excellence from yourself and your colleagues is not enough. Demand excellence from yourself and excellence, cash, and valuables from your colleagues.

LIBRA Sep 23 – Oct 23
Everything will go just fine next week except for the part with the truckload of carpet tacks, which doesn't really come when you'd think the part with the truckload of carpet tacks would.

SCORPIO Oct 24 – Nov 21
It's true that just one more cookie won't hurt, as the volcanic activity that will soon render all your earthly concerns irrelevant has been building up for months now.

SAGITTARIUS Nov 22 – Dec 21
You'll have difficulty making yourself understood next week, and for quite a while, even though the people who found you frozen in that block of ice are extremely intelligent scientists.

■ THE HAT

An elderly man was quite unhappy because he had lost his favorite hat. Instead of buying a new one, he decided he would go to church and swipe one out of the vestibule. When he got there, an usher intercepted him at the door and took him to a pew where he had to sit and listen to the entire sermon on "The Ten Commandments." After church, the man met the preacher in the vestibule doorway, shook his had vigorously, and told him "I want to thank you preacher for saving my soul today. I came to church to steal a hat and after hearing your sermon on the 10 Commandments, I decided against it."

Preacher: "You mean the commandment 'I shall not steal' changed your mind?"

Old Man: "No, the one about adultery did. As soon as you said that I remember where I left my old hat!"

■ TWO NUNS AND A BLIND MAN

Two nuns are ordered to paint a room in the convent, and the last instruction of the Mother Superior is that they must not get even a drop of paint on their habits. After conferring about this for a while, the two nuns decide to lock the door of the room, strip off their habits, and paint in the nude.

In the middle of the project, there comes a knock at the door. "Who is it?", calls one of the nuns.

"Blind man," replies a voice from the other side of the door. The two nuns look at each other and shrug, and, deciding that no harm can come from letting a blind man into the room, they open the door.

"Nice tits," says the man, "where do you want these blinds?"

■ COWBOY BOOTS

Bert, age 80, always wanted a pair of authentic cowboy boots, so, seeing some on sale, he bought them and wore them home. Walking proudly, he sauntered into the kitchen and said to his wife,"Notice anything different about me?"

Margaret, age 75, looked him over. "Nope."

Frustrated, Bert stormed off into the bathroom, undressed and walked back into the kitchen completely naked except for the boots. Again he asked Margaret, a little louder this time, "Notice anything different NOW?"

Margaret looked up and said in her best deadpan, "Bert, what's different?It's hanging down today, it was hanging down yesterday, it'll be hanging down again tomorrow."

Furious, Bert yelled, "AND DO YOU KNOW WHY IT'S HANGING DOWN, MARGARET?"

"Nope. Not a clue", she replied.

"IT'S HANGING DOWN, BECAUSE IT'S LOOKING AT MY NEW BOOTS!"

Without missing a beat Margaret replied, "Shoulda bought a hat, Bert! Shoulda bought a hat."

■ OLD FRIENDS

Two Scotsmen met 25 years after their last get-together. They hugged and slapped each others back and tears formed in their eyes as they renewed their old friendship.

"Let's have a drink like we did in the old days," the first Scot winked at his mate.

"Aye," his mate replied. "And don't forget it's your shout."

CALENDARS, STAMPS AND PHARMACIES

You may have noticed our absence from your sois last week. In fact this year AWOL has made a pretty good effort to compete with Thailand in the holiday stakes, where there are more festival and holy days than you can keep track of.

But to me December 5th has always been the most special of Thai days. To observe the reverence with which his subjects honour His Majesty King Bhumibol Adulyadej on his birthday, and for farang to be welcomed in sharing the experience, really demonstrates the warmth of Thai people, not to mention their obvious pride in their heritage.

Maybe it's because we no longer have the same level of respect for our own monarchy in the UK that makes December 5th in Thailand so special. I'm not an anti UK royalist, and unfortunately I'm old enough to remember when our National Anthem was always played in cinemas here, but those days are long gone, replaced by the constant scrutiny of the press which often does very little to endear us to our Queen and her family.

So I wasn't really interested in keeping the 'glossy' 2015 calendar of Prince George baby photos which was a recent freebie in my daily newspaper. The fact that I would personally prefer to see dogs on a calendar may also have something to do with it. Whatever - I didn't need the thing hanging on my kitchen wall for the next 12 months.

Which is where Wal-Marts' UK chain of supermarkets comes in, in the form of Asda - scene of some violent exchanges and fisticuffs over really big TV's and other bargains on Black Friday. And it was here in my local Asda that I was peacefully queueing some time later with the unwanted calendar in my trolley. On finally reaching the check-out lady I asked her if she wanted a Prince George calendar. 'Yes I do' she replied, 'but I'm not allowed to take it.' Now we all know that people like the Police and Government officials of all descriptions are not allowed to accept gifts from the public, which is another area in which the UK differs a little from Thailand. Or at least is supposed to. But I can now confirm that Asda employees obey the rules, even if our Government officials don't.

The next supermarket revelation however came as even more of a surprise. I needed to stock up on postage stamps, only to discover that they can only be sold at the cigarette kiosk, and not at the check outs. The check out lady thought that this rule was to do with the transporting of the Queens' image. Something which I would have accepted without question in Thailand. But a fair bit of Googling has failed to come up with any reason for this ruling, which may well be of Asdas own making and purely for their own convenience.

It reminded me though of my first visit to Thalland when I needed some stamps. Stationed in Patpong 2, and still unfamiliar with my surroundings, I set off down Surawang Road in search of a Post Office. You would think that on such a busy main road you would eventually stumble across one, but no. Almost two hours later I tottered back to base, hot and flustered, only to be told that 'pharmacy sell stamp.'

Which shows that in Thailand you start learning from day one, and that their policy on the sale of the monarchs image can be surprisingly more lenient than that of the UK.

FEATURED GAME

TUESDAY 16TH DECEMBER 2014
PREMIER LEAGUE
Everton v QPR 03:00
Everton have struggled to balance the challenge of playing in the Europa League with the nuts and bolts of the Premier League, and a defeat here would have them to the edge of the relegation scrap, unlikely as that might seem. QPR have been enjoying a better run of form in recent weeks, and most importantly beating two of their relegation rivals. They are capable of trading blows with the traditional big clubs as well, as evidenced by their draw with Manchester City a few weeks ago, and they will be in this game and create chances. However they would be happy with a draw, and we think that is the likely end result, with the home team not quite gelling at present.

YORKSHIRE RESIDENTS TERRIFIED THEY COULD BE MADE LEEDS UNITED OWNER

■ LEEDS, ENGLAND

THE cobbled streets of Yorkshire are empty as residents cower in their homes, terrified they could be made the new owner of Leeds United.

Scouts are hunting for a fall guy to take control of the club while current owner Massimo Cellino, found guilty of being Italian, steps down until next March.

54-year-old Bill McKay said: "You can't have a pint without fear of being press-ganged and waking up with that white rose in your buttonhole, marked for life.

"Just look at the previous incumbents: Peter Ridsdale and Ken Bates, neither of whom will ever be served in a Betty's Tea Rooms ever again.

"Homing pigeons go ten miles out of their way to crap on their heads."

A Leeds spokesman said: "It is true that we are having difficulty finding anyone willing to take on the debts and opprobrium of heading the most loathed club in English football. No, the world.

"We need someone who is already unpopular. Maybe Geoffrey Boycott, Jeremy Clarkson or one of those puppets from the Wonga adverts. We might even consider another Scottish person again, but we are going to draw the line at asking Nigel Farage."

Left: This cup of Yorkshire Tea is apparently the bookmakers' favourite to be installed as the new owner of Leeds United
