MANGROVE PROJECT GETS SUPPORT FROM TRASH TO TREASURE ART EXHIBITION

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

In collaboration with the Preserve Hua Hin Group, Webster University's School of Communications' 'Special Events' students are holding the event 'Trash to Treasure', a green communication campaign to support the rehabilitation, preservation and development of MEPSEC Hua Hin (Mangrove Ecosystem Preservation & Science Education Center). This event will attempt to influence the perception of waste materials and responsible disposal behaviour of the local community including schools and businesses in Hua Hin.

Local Hua Hin schools as well as Webster University students will submit their best artwork created solely from waste materials, in a community exhibition and competition to be held on Saturday, 4th of April 2015, from 2 – 4PM, at the Baan Sillapin Artists Village in Hua Hin. The artwork is going to be judged by professional artists with prizes for the winners. The organisers would be delighted if readers would join them as they work to make a change in the current state of the environment and express the need for sustainable development in the last remaining urban mangrove ecosystem in Hua Hin at Khao Klai Lart. Sponsors of the event are Chiva Som International Health Resort and Spa, Centara Grand Hotel, Rotary club of Royal Hua Hin, SKAL, Vana Nava Water Park and the Rotoract Club.

Brian Anderson, Sustainable Development Manager, Chiva-Som International Health resort and spa stated, "Preserve Hua Hin is dedicated to enriching and enhancing the richness of the natural environment in Hua Hin. We're proud to be associated with the outstanding work being carried out by the Webster communications department's special Events team. This is a great example of young people from several countries really giving back to the community"

CAPRICORN Dec 22 - Jan 19

You'll experience a breathtaking whirlwind romance this week when it's endlessly recounted by a long- winded co-worker.

AQUARIUS Jan 20 – Feb 18

You've avoided throwing the baby out with the bathwater. However, you're now left with the problem of how to dispose of a clean but rapidly drying baby.

PISCES Feb 19 – Mar 20

You won't be thanked for helping to solve a major social problem when people decide to give all the credit to the guy who made the bumper sticker.

ARIES Mar 21 - Apr 20

The inexorable power of destiny would render you powerless to stop the fateful events of next week, were anything ever to actually happen to you.

TAURUS Apr 21 – May 21

You've always believed you should go with your gut in important matters, which is why every major decision in your life has been accompanied by chili-cheese fries.

GEMINI May 22 – June 21

Although you've always claimed you'd quit when you thought you'd reached your peak, you'll find it easy to keep going when no one seems to think you'll ever improve.

CANCER Jun 22 – Jul 22

You take pride in being able to take whatever life throws at you, but you really weren't expecting this many opossums.

LEO Jul 23 – Aug 22

After all you've been through, it's nice to know that lightning doesn't strike twice. Strangely, it turns out that's not true for falling safes or pianos.

VIRGO Aug 23 – Sep 22

You've tried leaving poems at the scene, leaving signature marks, and only working on Sundays, but the papers insist on merely calling you "The Nickname-less Killer."

LIBRA Sep 23 – Oct 23

You've always had a strong fight-or-flight reflex, which turns out to be completely useless when negotiating for the best price on a bedroom set.

SCORPIO Oct 24 – Nov 21

You've finally risen to the top of your profession only to find the world's other 450,000 deep-fryer operators are pretty much there, too.

SAGITTARIUS Nov 22 – Dec 21

You're really getting tired of the meme of the dead hooker in the trunk, as no one ever seems to acknowledge how much work the whole situation can be.

■ A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

This week it is..... Hush puppies

A type of suede shoes. Also, in the USA, a form of corn-bread fritter.

Hush Puppies in the culinary sense are balls of fried seasoned cornbread. They have been popular in the southern states of the USA, often eaten with fried fish, and possibly known since the 18th century. The first reference to the term in print come quite late, but that's not entirely surprising as few people would have had any reason to write the name down.

In Dialect Notes, 1918: "Hushpuppy, a sort of bread prepared very quickly and without salt."

By 1947 the US magazine This Week had printed what amounts to a basic recipe: "What's a hush puppy? You mean you don't know that Southern fried bread like a miniature corn pone - but glorified? It's made of the white cornmeal of the South, smooth and fine as face powder."

There are many stories about the origin of the term. None of these come complete with any supporting evidence so, unlike the early hushpuppies themselves, have to be taken with a pinch of salt. Two of the most commonly repeated stories are:

If Confederate soldiers detected Yankee soldiers approaching, they would quieten their barking dogs by throwing them the fried cornmeal balls.

In the southern USA, salamanders were called "water dogs" or "water puppies". These were eaten as part of poor people's diet - deep-fried with cornmeal. They were given the name hush puppies as eating such humble food wasn't something people wanted to discuss.

Hush Puppy shoes were produced by the US shoe company Wolverine World Wide from 1958 onward. The company had developed a method of tanning pigskin and were looking for an outlet for the soft pigskin suede. It is reported that the name was coined by Jim Muir, the company's Sales Manager. He noticed that a friend's dogs were quietened by giving them corn hush puppies and, knowing that aching feet were called barking dogs, thought that 'Hush Puppies' would be a good name for the shoes. The 'barking dogs' phrase was well-known in the USA by 1958, so the story is plausible at least, although it can only be reported here as hearsay.

The shoes were heavily marketed from 1958, as this example from the Oakland Tribune that year shows.

Ironically, the shoes themselves have crepe soles that often squeak loudly on hard flooring.

■ LITTLE THELMA

Little Thelma comes home from first grade and tells her father that they learned about the history of Valentine's Day. "Since Valentine's Day is for a Christian saint and we're Jewish," she asks, "Will God get mad at me for giving someone a valentine?

Thelma's father thinks a bit then says "No, I don't think God would get mad. Who do you want to give a valentine to?"

"The Isis group," she says.

"Why them?" her father asks in shock.

"Well," she says, "I thought that if a little American Jewish girl could have enough love to give them a valentine, they might start to think that maybe we're not all bad, and maybe start loving people a little bit. And if other kids saw what I did and then they sent valentines to them, they'd love everyone a lot.

And then they'd start going all over the place telling everyone how much they loved them and how they didn't hate anyone anymore."

Her father's heart swells and he looks at his daughter with newfound pride.

"Thelma, that's the most wonderful thing I've ever heard."

"I know," Thelma says, "and once that gets them out in the open, the Marines could blow the crap out of them."

■ BUCKET

The weather was very hot and this man wanted desperately to take a dive in a nearby lake. He didn't bring his swimming outfit, but who cared? He was all alone. So he undressed and got into the water.

After some delightful minutes of cool swimming, a pair of old ladies walked onto the shore in his direction. He panicked, got out of the water and grabbed a bucket lying in the sand nearby. He held the bucket in front of his private parts and sighed with relief.

The ladies got nearby and looked at him. He felt awkward and wanted to move. Then one of the ladies said: 'You know , I have a special gift, I can read minds.'

'Impossible', said the embarrassed man, 'You really know what I think?'

'Yes', the lady replied, 'Right now, I bet you think that the bucket you're holding has a bottom.'

WEIRD NEWS

■ INDONESIA Entire neighbourhood get high after police burn 3.3 tonnes of cannabis

An entire neighbourhood accidentally got high after police burned 3.3 tonnes of seized cannabis.

Officers in West Jakarta, Indonesia, sparked the pile of drugs on Wednesday.

The smoke spread to nearby homes where locals suffered dizziness and headaches, reports asiaone.com.

Police wore masks but those without succumbed to the powerful marijuana fumes.

Nearly two kilograms of crystal methamphetamine and more than 2,500 ecstasy pills were also destroyed – but not with fire.

■ WORLD Stop everything! You can play Pac Man on Google Maps

Your day just got ten times better.

Get on Google Maps and click on that little Pac Man icon bottom right of the screen.

Watch the streets transform into your very own arcade game and prepare to do no more work today.

Normal rules apply, and it even comes complete with original music and that sweet 'wooo wooo' sound when you die (you know the one).

The search engine giant has so far remained tight-lipped on why it's decided to share this awesome feature.

*Hint: Avoid those hard to negotiate mini-roundabouts.

P.S. Not available on all maps including Hua Hin.

■ USA 'Stop pooping on the bike path' sign is intended for humans

A US town is being plagued by a mystery pooper who keeps squatting in the middle of a bike path.

The epidemic is so bad that officials have erected a sign in Hampton, Illinois, that reads: 'Stop pooping on the bike path.'

A fair order.

Scott McKay, of Hampton's Public Works, told WQAD: 'Animals don't carry toilet paper and then stuff it on top. 'It's pretty nasty. We've got enough goose crap on the bike path, let alone humans.'

Locals are bemused as to why some people are choosing to release their bowels all over the path when a perfectly fine toilet is located nearby.

Runner Mitchell Jankowski said: 'I know on long runs sometimes people have to hold it for a while, but I've never thought of carrying toilet paper and just squatting on the road.'

■ USA Father thinks he's having stroke after eating daughter's marijuana brownies

This is why you should never eat someone's food without asking, especially if they're brownies. They could be laced with marijuana and cause you to think you're having a stroke like one father in Michigan, United States.

The unnamed 58-year-old had no idea the cakes his daughter, 17, had left out contained the special ingredient and thought he was suffering a brain injury. He was so convinced that he was having a stroke that he called emergency services on Wednesday, according to USA Today. But when they arrived his daughter confessed the brownies contained marijuana and his father was most likely just high. Medical weed is legal in the state but general possession is not allowed.

MAGS MEANDERINGS: FROM SOM TAM TO MUSHY PEAS

■ DICTATORSHIP, DEMOCRACY OR DISASTER?

Many of you will have visited Singapore, the island state which during the last 50 plus years has risen from poverty to become one of the richest countries in the World. And you will also know that the man credited with making most of that rise to riches possible was Lee Kuan Yew, who died two weeks ago.

By all accounts Lee, the first Prime Minister of Singapore, was a highly intelligent but fair and determined leader, and there is no doubting the success of his authoritarian regime. Modern day Singapore stands out against its' neighbours as a shining example of how to conduct business, make money, and not least control its' citizens in such a way as to make them appreciate what they have, and to work with their government rather than against it.

The laws there can seem draconian. Singapore still has the death sentence, and is infamous for the exhorbitant fines imposed on jaywalkers, litterers, and smokers. But as a result it is almost frighteningly clean and well ordered.

One of Lee Kuan Yews' fundamental principles was that of one party rule, using a method of government designed to prevent any competition from potential opposition parties. A principle which our own David Cameron is probably praying for right now, and one which some other countries are actually beginning to aspire to.

Is Thailand one of those countries?

Not so long ago I would have choked on my Carl-sa-berg at the very idea. Now that idea seems to be a definite maybe. With a new constitution being drafted as we speak, aimed at tackling the problems experienced by Thailand in the last decade - the political demonstrations - the upsurge of rural voters hoping for a true and long overdue democracy which recognised their needs - can we really discount the possibility that Thailand will end up with a 'back to the 80's' style elitist regime along with a smattering of un-elected elders?

And an even more soul searching question has to be whether that would in fact be a good thing?

Much as I have always believed in democracy, the fact is that so far Thailand doesn't seem to have quite grasped the concept of how it should work there. Perhaps it is in fact time to go back to the drawing board and start over.

But despite the fact that a New World Order might be just around the corner, please don't ever make Bangkok as squeaky clean as Singapore!

Word of the week is 'scintilla', meaning a tiny amount, trace, iota, tad, speck etc. You might for example experience a scintilla of doubt about the wisdom of having that next Chang.

FEATURED GAME

SATURDAY 4TH APRIL 2015
PREMIER LEAGUE
Arsenal v Liverpool 18:45
Liverpool suffered a major setback in their hopes to qualify for the Champions League last time out, and a loss here would virtually end their chances. Few seem to think Arsenal are in the title race but with Chelsea playing one of their bogey teams, Stoke, later, the Gunners could find themselves only four points behind them if results go their way. The form book suggests a hme win, but this will be a tight affair, and Brendan Rodgers would probably be happy with a point; we don't think he'll get it though and may have to settle for a place in the Europa League.

TABLOID REPORTERS HAIL HARRY KANE AS ENGLAND SAVIOUR WHILE SEARCHING HIS BINS FOR DIRT

■ UK

Tabloid newspapers have celebrated Harry Kane's England debut goal by dedicating back pages to his performance and their best 'reporters' to find dirt on the young striker.

After scoring just 79 seconds into his debut, tabloid reporters have been quick to elevate him to the position of England saviour whilst also desperately looking for things to knock him down a peg or two.

Red top sports correspondent Simon Williams told us, "The guy can use both feet, he's good with his head, and he works incredibly hard – so with any luck he'll have a secret illegitimate child or an expensive coke habit."

"Last night was the stuff of dreams, so we can only hope to uncover the stuff of his nightmares some time soon."

"It's so great to see talented young English players doing it on the world stage, and one can only imagine what he could achieve for our circulation figures if we can find something scurrilous in his private life."

"Harry Kane could break records, seriously."

Shortly after filing copy for today's back pages, reporters began searching out ex-girlfriends and people from Kane's past in the hope they could shed some insight into the new England star.

Another freelance hack told us, "We're looking to hear about what he was like as a kid, who his heroes were, and whether he ever got involved in any serious criminal activity that was covered up because he can kick a football pretty well. Harry Kane could be the best thing to ever happen to England's tabloid reporters, but it's still very early days."

"It's a lot for the young boy to carry on his shoulders, for sure, but he looks like he can handle having the hopes and dreams of hundreds of tabloid reporters resting on the fact he has a skeleton in his closet."

"Hopefully it won't take too long to find it, I've got bills to pay."
