SPECIAL DELIVERY

NEW POST OFFICE OPENS; OLD ONE BEING DEMOLISHED

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

The much maligned old post office in the centre of Hua Hin is no more - demolition work on the building, which had been closed for several weeks, began this week, although it is not known what will take it's place yet. What is known though is that a new post office has now opened in a brand new building between the Mercedes dealership and Koncept furniture showroom on the Phetkasem Road north of the town, and just south of the tunnel, roughly opposite the Go Kart Hua Hin track on Soi 2.

The new office currently opens on Monday to Fridays only from 8 am to 3.30 pm but has one particularly huge advantage over the old office - plenty of space to park. Whether there will also be improvements in the sorting and delivery of mail, something that has been a major criticism of the postal service in the area for many years, remains to be seen. The new office may also start to open on Saturdays if it is felt there is the need.

We are sure that some residents and tourists will find the new location inconvenient, particularly those further south of the town, but there are a plethora of private operations dotted across the area who can handle most postal requirements, and no doubt many opened because of the problems at the old location, where long queues were the norm. Stamps are normally available from the shops that sell postcards and greetings cards as well. However some services are only available at the post office itself, such as poste restante and collection of mail that has to be signed for, so it must be hoped that the new office will be able to handle these better than before.

As for the old location, the site must be very valuable, and our bet would be on either a hotel or a big retailer taking it on if it is being, or has been sold, and we will endeavour to find out and bring you the news.

■ A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

This week it is..... a bit different - inspired by the book advertised below we are going to look at the use of the word 'heart' in the Thai language and try to explain some of the more than 700 expressions that use it.

Before we begin that though, the title of the book is 'The Boy With The Bamboo Heart', written by a Canadian author, Chantal Jauvin, and is the true story of Dr Amporn Wathanavongs. AWOL will be publishing an interview with Ms. Jauvin later in the year, but we asked her about the term 'Bamboo Heart'; as far as we are aware it is not a common phrase in Thai, but her answer was that it was the perfect description of Dr Amporn's heart, as bamboo is both strong and flexible, provides nourishment when it is young but continues to be useful as it ages. We believe the transliteration of the Thai for bamboo heart would be 'phai jai' or possibly 'mai phai jai'. We encourage all our readers to attend the event and to get a copy of the book, as it is a truly incredible story.

Anyway, on to more common Thai heart phrases. First up is 'dee jai', literally 'good heart' but meaning happy. Flipping that around, 'jai dee' means kind or generous. The opposite of this is 'jai dam', literally 'black heart' and meaning cruel or malicious. In the same vein 'jai rai' or 'jai lai' (bad heart) would be used for someone who is mean or nasty. You would also think that 'jai mai dee' may mean something similar, but in fact it means feeling worried. 'Gloom jai' (worry heart) also means this.

Phrases that most foreigners will be familiar with are 'jai yen' (cool heart) which means calm, and 'jai yen yen' meaning calm down, as opposed to the state most of us get in, 'jai rorn' (hot heart) meaning hot tempered or impatient. Also familiar to many will be 'dtok jai', which means frightened or shocked (literally falling heart).

A phrase that many foreigners when driving probably didn't think existed in Thai is 'greng jai' (a heart in awe) which means considerate, while 'sabai jai' (relaxed heart) equates to being worry free.

'Por jai' (enough heart) simply means satisfied, while 'mai por jai' is the opposite. Two more that could easily be mixed up are 'man jai' (certain heart) meaning confident, and 'nam jai' (water heart) meaning generous.

'Jai orn' has the same literal and actual meaning, soft hearted, while it's literal opposite, 'jai kairng' (hard heart) actually means strong willed, resistant or tough. Similarly 'jai hin' (stone heart) means adamant, and 'jai petch' (diamond heart) means determined.

If you are sitting reading this and are getting excited about the pretty girl looking at you, then you are 'dtem jai' (full heart) - in other words excited. However if your wife is sitting next to you then you need to be 'gep jai' (collect heart) - hide your feelings, or your wife will be 'jep jai' (hurt heart) - feeling hurt, and may not have 'wai jai' (keep heart) - trust in you any more. However if she is a bit of a swinger, she might have 'dtahm jai' (follow heart) and go along with whatever you have in mind. If you believe that is likely though, we think you might be 'jai ngai' (easy heart) - gullible! One thing is for sure though - at least one of you will end up with 'sao jai', literally and actually a sad heart. Whether your friends will have 'hen jai' (see heart) sympathy for you is hard to say, but we are sure they will have 'son jai' (interest heart) - be interested in the story.

We hope you all have 'chorp jai' (like heart) - are pleased with this edition of English Corner, and hopefully 'kao jai' (into the heart) understand this week's deviation from the norm; we will be back to our regular offering next week.

Is there an English phrase or saying that you would like to know more about?

YOURSTARS

CAPRICORN Dec 22 - Jan 19
You will be given a second chance in life this week due to your employer's failure to comply with federal regulations regarding the mishandling of radioactive medical waste.

AQUARIUS Jan 20 – Feb 18
The sun is in Virgo, the moon is in Capricorn, and Cancer is in Taurus this week. You however, are still single.

PISCES Feb 19 – Mar 20
Few will be able to resist your charms this week, especially if you keep using those sawed-off 12-gauge charms.

ARIES Mar 21 - Apr 20
Patience will see you through life's most harrowing times. Plus you can fake patience by just sleeping constantly.

TAURUS Apr 21 – May 21
For the last time: You do not have miraculous stigmata that cause you to bleed like the wounded Christ. You've been shot.

GEMINI May 22 – June 21
Remember, the slow cycle of sun, wind, and rain can sunder even the hardest stone, so whatever you do, don't go outside.

CANCER Jun 22 – Jul 22
Although Mercury is rising in Venus this week, do not worry; this is just a mystic-sounding horoscope term. No actual planetary collision is taking place.

LEO Jul 23 – Aug 22
The stars will give you a thousand baht if you go over to that guy in the next cubicle who's always talking loudly into his hands-free device and pour scalding hot coffee into his lap.

VIRGO Aug 23 – Sep 22
Your sign is usually subject to the rule of water, but in truth, Funkadelic's "Red Hot Mama" is what really rules.

LIBRA Sep 23 – Oct 23
Don't sink to the level of those who would drag you down with their judicious criticism. Instead, listen to those who praise you indiscriminately no matter what.

SCORPIO Oct 24 – Nov 21
It doesn't matter if the other students approve of your "Blood on the Mats" yoga regimen. All that matters are the results.

SAGITTARIUS Nov 22 – Dec 21
Everything negative that happens to you this week will be a direct result of you consulting the I Ching, that fallacious oracular slut.

■ TRUE LOVE

The Highways Agency found over 200 dead crows on the M4 near Bridgend recently, and there was concern that they may have died from Avian Flu.

A Pathologist examined the remains of all the crows, and, to everyone's relief, confirmed the problem was NOT Avian Flu. The cause of death appeared to be from vehicular impacts. However, during analysis it was noted that varying colours of paints appeared on the bird's beaks and claws.

By analysing these paint residues it was found that 98% of the crows had been killed by impact with lorries, while only 2% were killed by cars.

The Agency then hired an Ornithological Behaviourist to determine if there was a cause for the disproportionate percentages of truck kills versus car kills.

The Ornithological Behaviourist quickly concluded that when crows eat road kill, they always have a look-out crow to warn of danger.

They discovered that while all the lookout crows could shout "Cah", not a single one could shout "Lorry"

■ LIFE SAVER

Bob receives the following text from his neighbour:

'I am so sorry Bob. I've been riddled with guilt and I have to confess. I have been nobbling your wife, day and night when you're not around, I'm not getting any at home, but that's no excuse. I can no longer live with the guilt and I hope you will accept my sincerest apology with my promise that it won't happen again'.

Bob feels anguished and betrayed and enters his bedroom, grabs his gun, and without a word, shoots his wife and kills her.

A few moments later, a second text comes in:

'Damn auto-correct. I meant "Wi-Fi", not "Wife"'.

■ SPICE GIRLS

My girlfriend revealed to me that she's a huge fan of The Spice Girls.

"Well, tonight is the night when two become one," I winked.

"Aww, that's really sweet," she giggled.

"No, I mean I'm leaving you," I said.

■ A LITTLE IRONY...

Not exactly a joke, but the image of the book cover below was a genuine book released in 1985. In the introduction Savile says: "Will you remember a stranger is danger when you are on your own? Will you remember the stories in your book? I hope so because I like you and want you to be safe and happy. Best wishes from your friend, Jimmy Savile."

FAIR ENOUGH

Last week I threatened (sorry - promised) to explain the history of Hulls' fair, which is in fact quite an interesting ride.

Now over 700 years old, Hull Fair is the largest travelling fair in Europe, and one of the oldest. Originally founded as a place for traders to sell their wares - everything from hardware and groceries to horses and cattle - it was a commercial venture which allowed traders from out of town restricted access annually to sell for a specific length of time. (No doubt in return for the payment of a fee to the Council.)

The idea being that limiting access to goods from other parts of the country encouraged more trade to develop in the town, which could sustain it during those days of civil unrest and battles.

Begun by Royal Charter in 1278, the fair went through two more successive royal charters, and changes to its' duration and starting date, which in 1751 caused a bit of a furore that now sounds more Thai than English. In 1750 England adopted the Gregorian calendar in order to come into line with other countries, including Scotland, and in doing so changed the legal New Year from March 25th to January 1st. This meant that, on paper at least, 1751 appeared to lose 12 weeks, and as the fair then began in March people believed that they had been swindled out of 11 days of their fair. Mobs took to the streets to demand their 11 days back, and to solve the problem the fairs' start date was changed to the Friday closest to October 11th, where it remains to this day.

By the 18th century the fair was changing to more of an entertainment venue, featuring jugglers, puppet shows, side shows, food of course, and a menagerie of wild animals, and by the 1890's steam powered roundabouts and a circus had arrived.

Not so different to Thailands' temple fairs, or 'ngan wat', except that Hulls' fair has little or no foundation in religious worship.

The ngan wat, as the name suggests, takes place at temples, or at least very close by, space permitting, and has its' origins in the small village gatherings which served as social events in the past. It is still essentially a time to make merit, and to share that merit making by sharing the fun, whether that be the dancing, cock fighting, music or comedy shows. Plus of course that permanent fixture. The food.

Like Thailands' temple fairs, Hulls has seen the coming and going of that dubious entertainment - the freak show, although simulated versions still take place in Thailand using actors and the magic of mirrors. And of course Englands famed health and safety laws have to a large extent banished the 'wall of death' once so popular at Hull Fair, where now even side show prizes of goldfish are banned along with any form of animal fighting or displays of wild animals.

But despite the differences in origin, religious intent and political correctness, the present day 9 day long fair in Hull has one thing in common with Thailands ngan wat. An awful lot of noisy sanuk (Editor's note: 'sanuk' for readers who don't speak Thai means 'fun' and is also sometimes transliterated as 'sanook').

On this day - October 16th, in 1867, Alaska adopted the Gregorian calendar. Let's hope they didn't have a fair going on at the time.

And finally, Hull born actress Maureen Lipman, of 'Beattie' fame for those who remember the advert, has hijacked our column name. Her new BBC radio comedy series, which began on October 14th on Radio 4, is called 'To Hull and Back'.

BREWING UP FIFA

FIFA NOW ONLY CONSISTS OF A TEA-LADY AND THE CAT

■ ENGLAND

After the exit of Sepp Blatter and Michel Platini, FIFA now consists of the office cat and a tea-lady called Kath, with all other employees either suspended, banned or arrested.

The shock news that the whole of world football is in the hands of the lady who makes the tea and a cat called Puddles will come as a lift to football fans who will see the new leadership as vastly more suited to the job than a bunch of grotesquely corrupt old men.

Immediately changes within the organisation were evident with Kath declaring that on her watch all tea would be made in a pre-warmed pot and the cake trolley will have a lovely Battenberg on it made by her friend Sylvia.

Former England great Gary Lineker gave Edna's words a cautious welcome.

"Obviously, I'd like to understand Kath's views on the specifics of how to deal with the World Cup in Qatar, and how to institute full internal organisational reform," he said, whilst eating some crisps.

"But, frankly, Kath's promise of a pre-warmed pot is the most sensible thing to come out of FIFA in years."

Puddles also showed he has strong views on the current state of world football.

"Meow," he said.
