ATTACK OF THE CLONES

ATM CARDS 'CLONED' IN HUA HIN

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

Reports have been coming in that at least one customer at an ATM in central Hua Hin has been the victim of a crime known as card cloning - basically the details of a credit or debit card inserted into the machine get copied along with the Personal Identification Number (PIN) when it is input. There are several methods employed by the thieves to do this, including a fake keypad placed over the original, or a completely false front to the machine, but it is also possible that some form of 'hack' has been employed on the machine that allows the data to be collected remotely. The details obtained are then used to either make a copy of the card to use on ATM's elsewhere, or sold on to other criminals to do the same or similar.

While this has been commonly reported happening in Thailand generally, this is a rare occurrence in Hua Hin, and hopefully will remain so, but anyone who has used any ATMs in the area is advised to check their accounts immediately to make sure all transactions recorded are theirs, and if not to immediately report suspected fraudulent use of their card to the card issuer.

We would also advise everybody, but particularly those using debit or credit cards from banks outside Thailand, to avoid using ATMs and instead go inside the bank to use their card, although this will normally also require your passport. This normally also has the added bonus of avoiding the local fee charged at the ATM, although does not avoid any other fees normally charged by your bank for overseas cash withdrawals. We would further advise everyone to tell the banks they use why they feel it necessary to do this, as it may persuade them to improve the security and checks on their ATM machines. Many exchange booths will also issue cash against overseas credit and debit cards with a passport, and sometimes at better rates, so please check. They also tend to open longer hours than the banks.

CAPRICORN Dec 22 - Jan 19
You can learn a lot by putting yourself in another person's shoes. Go the extra mile and put yourself in their clothes, their delicate hosieries, and their intoxicating undergarments.

AQUARIUS Jan 20 – Feb 18
Giving birth is a life-changing experience, especially when it shoots straight out of your sternum like that.

PISCES Feb 19 – Mar 20
Saturn in your sign this week is cause for concern, as Pisces has had a restraining order against the planet for years.

ARIES Mar 21 - Apr 20
You'll have no choice but to eat the other passengers after your plane crashes into an Armour Hot Dog processing plant this week.

TAURUS Apr 21 – May 21
Remember: When life gives you lemons, make lemonade. Then, when life least expects it, throw the lemonade right in its spiteful face.

GEMINI May 22 – June 21
Everyone laughed when you said mankind wouldn't last another 100 years, but that's because you did it in a funny Mexican accent.

CANCER Jun 22 – Jul 22
On sale this week at Cancer: Love advice, 99 cents a pound. Fresh, organic prophecies, two for $2.25. Plus, Zodiac-brand Fortune Bars, only $4 until supplies last.

LEO Jul 23 – Aug 22
Mosquitoes are usually attracted to body heat and perspiration, though in your case, it's the giant mosquito costume.

VIRGO Aug 23 – Sep 22
The cosmic sands of time will sweep through your sign this week, filling your shorts with eons of frustration.

LIBRA Sep 23 – Oct 23
You're about to go through a really messy divorce, thanks in large part to the Philly cheese steak you'll refuse to put down.

SCORPIO Oct 24 – Nov 21
A magic carpet ride awaits Scorpio this week. Prepare to travel from the trunk of an old Buick, down the Verrazano Bridge, and into the harbour.

SAGITTARIUS Nov 22 – Dec 21
No one likes to hear that they're going to be confined to a wheelchair for the rest of their life. Teach your cockatiel something else to say.

■ A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

This week it is..... Tawdry
Showy, but of poor quality.
Why should the derivation of a single word like 'tawdry' be included in a section that specialises in the etymology of phrases? Two reasons: one, it is short for the phrase 'tawdry lace' (of which more later) and another, it has an interesting derivation worth reading.
For the explanation of the word tawdry we have to go back to 7th century England and the story of Etheldrida, the daughter of the king of East Anglia, who was otherwise known as Saint Audrey. Audrey died in 679 AD of a tumour of the throat. It was recorded by the Venerable Bede in Ecclesiasticall History, 731 AD, that her fate was considered just retribution as she had "for vain show adorned her neck with manifold splendid necklaces" (something that has been revived with it's very own word in more modern times, in the form of 'bling').
In the 16th century Nicholas Harpsfield, the Archdeacon of Canterbury, published his own ecclesiastical history Historia Anglicana Ecclesiastica and commented that:

"Our women of England are wont to wear about the neck a certain necklace, formed of thin and fine silk."

These silks were known as Saint Audrey's laces.
As time went by, 'St. Audrey's lace' became shortened to 'taudrey lace'. That comes as little surprise to those who live in Yorkshire, where expressions like 'the other' and 'down the hole' have long been replaced by 't'other' and 'down t'ole'.
In his 1579 poem The Shepheardes Calendar, Edmund Spenser referred to 'tawdrie lace', in a warning to shepherd's daughters:

See, that your rudenesse doe not you disgrace:
Binde your fillets faste,
And gird in your waste,
For more finesse with a tawdrie lace.

'Tawdry' hadn't by that date developed the 'showy/poor quality' meaning that we now use but had started on its route there. What began as a name for fine lace ribbon became a disparaging term for the poor quality lace bought by country wenches at rural fairs. When Shakespeare wanted to establish Mopsa, the country bumpkin girlfriend of the Clown in A Winter's Tale, as less than sophisticated, he portrayed her as interested in frivolous showy dress and gave her this line:

Come, you promised me a tawdry-lace and a pair of sweet gloves.

'Tawdry' has long departed from any association with saints or expensive necklaces and is now entirely a negative description. To all the Audrey's out there, sorry but, as they would say around here, you're just t'Audrey.

■ UK British principal tells parents: No pajamas on school run

The principal of a primary school in northern England wants to impose a dress code — not on students, but on their parents.

That's because she's tired of them wearing pajamas and slippers when they drop off their offspring at the school gates each morning.

Kate Chisholm of Skerne Park Academy in Darlington, 240 miles (385 kilometers) north of London said she acted after some parents wore what she considered nightwear to school meetings.

In the letter published Tuesday she asked parents to "dress appropriately in day wear" when bringing their children to school.

Chisholm said she wanted parents to set a good example for the students and that it was "not too much to ask parents to have a wash and get dressed."

■ USA Ohio man who sent selfie to police arrested in Florida

An Ohio man wanted for drunk driving who sent police a more flattering photo of himself because he did not like his mug shot has been arrested in Florida, police said.

"How's this photo Donald Pugh?" asked the Escambia County, Florida, Sheriff's Office on its Facebook page, showing the suspect's new, broadly smiling mug shot. "Maybe that selfie helped people identify you better?"

Pugh, 45, had posted a photo of himself wearing sunglasses in a car after he saw the two mug shots that the Lima, Ohio, police department had posted on its Facebook page.

"Here is a better photo that one is terrible," Pugh wrote when he sent in the selfie.

Pugh was arrested in Century, Florida, on Tuesday morning thanks to a tip, the Escambia County Sheriff's Office said.

He is being held for warrants out of Columbus, Georgia, according to Lima police.

"Alas we will wait our turn," said Lima police on their Facebook page. They thanked "the power of social media" and tips called in to authorities for the arrest, as well as Escambia County.

Lima police last week posted Pugh's mug shots after an arrest warrant was issued following his failure to appear in court on a misdemeanor drunk driving charge. Pugh is a person of interest in several other cases including an arson and vandalism.

It was not known if Pugh had an attorney.

■ IKEA
It was IKEA's 25th birthday last week, so I took them some eggs, flour, butter, icing sugar and a whisk in a box with a little note that had instructions on how to make a birthday cake.

■ COCKTAIL PARTY
At a Scottish cocktail reception, I was invited to take a small piece of sausage on a stick from a tray.

"What's this?" I asked. "A canape?"

"Nae problem," replied the waiter. "They're free."

■ WHAT TIME DO YOU CALL THIS!
When I get home late from the pub...

I'm going to give my wife a right good listening to.

■ SCANDAL
No wonder there has been such a furore over the tennis match fixing scandal; I mean, a British woman in the Australian Open semi-final and a British man in the final? That's just asking for trouble!

■ CONTRARY
I have a strange feeling that, should I contract it, I may be the first person in the history of the world to die after a cowardly surrender to cancer.

■ POLL
70% of Americans say a Trump presidency would make them "anxious."

The other 30% say it would make them "Canadian."

■ DESPERATE
Went to a Palestine restaurant last night.
After the meal I went to use the bathroom, only to find out it was occupied.

■ HEALTH TIP
That long life double cream is a waste of money.

My friend drank six cartons a day and he's just died of coronary heart disease.

■ TERRY
Can't believe it about Terry. You could see him becoming older, more frail and less energetic with every day that passed.

I think Chelsea will be ok in the end though.

■ TERRY II
John Terry will not play for Chelsea next season.

Will he still turn up in full kit for the celebrations when they get promoted from next season's Championship?

■ TERRY III
I think the British felt an overwhelming sense of being cheated when learning of the death of Terry.

And finding out it wasn't John.

HUA HIN EVENTS

RIDING IN ON THE AIRWAVES WITH SURF 102.5 FM

Welcome to our new section in collaboration with Hua Hin's only local radio station playing Western music 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, the one and only Surf 102.5 FM! Every hour on the half hour Surf features local events and activities that visitors and locals might be interested in enjoying, and in case you miss it on the radio, we are going to reproduce them here every week, along with any new or upcoming events.

Long time readers of AWOL may remember the Hua Hin Live section that used to run in AWOL - over time we hope that this new section will expand to be a similar resource to that, but both Surf and AWOL will require support, both in the form of information from those organising events, and advertising from some of them, to be able to do so. Please contact us for details of our joint ad packages on sales@awolonline.net.

MAGS MEANDERINGS: FROM SOM TAM TO MUSHY PEAS

ANGELS WITH DIRTY FACES

You have to hand it to the Chinese - despite a bit of a slump they still know how to appeal to their export markets. Not satisfied with almost destroying the UK steel industry, they are now causing concern in Thailands' temples with those 'child angel' dolls.

I'm sure you will have seen them. The Luk Thep dolls which are adopted by Thais, and which have an alarmingly high incidence of pale skin and blond hair. Rather like the Cabbage Patch dolls in the UK at one time, except that Child Angels need to be blessed in order to do whatever it is they are meant to do.

So far so good. We accept that Buddhist blessings aren't confined to living things. It is way of life which expats quickly come to respect and even take part in. The new home/car/shrine/business must be blessed, so it comes as no surprise that Child Angels are being taken to temples to receive ritual blessings as well.

Except that for some reason, in the case of the dolls, questions have been raised about the ethics of blessing them. In particular the suspicion that some temples may try to turn Child Angel blessings into a commercial venture by charging a fee for the service, something which is strictly against Buddhist rules. Because unlike churches in the UK which charge for weddings, christenings and funerals - extra for the organ and bells of course - the temples are supposed to rely on voluntary donations. Being a monk clearly isn't as easy as it looks, and they have really been having a tough time of late. For as well as close scrutiny of their dealings with Child Angels, some have even had a bit of a telling off for taking a day trip.

For most of us a day trip can be a pleasant change from the daily grind. A change of scenery. Whether it's just a breath of sea air and an ice cream on the beach, or sheltering from the rain in an amusement arcade, it's respite. Not so for monks though, and in particular a boat load of them spotted off Trak a couple of weeks ago who were about to take a dip in the sea.

The obvious question of whether or not they planned to swim in their robes is irrelevant, because according to the Office of National Buddhism (I know - a new one on me as well) monks are not allowed to enjoy any recreational activities at all. But what if it was just a Team Building exercise? Or any sort of exercise for that matter - surely monks need a day off like everyone else? Not apparently if it involves any kind of sannuk.

Which brings us very tenuously to February 1st 1960, when Yorkshire's own countryside mag the Dalesman attempted to explain an old Hull saying which you may have heard. Known as the Beggar's Litany, 'from Hell, Hull and Halifax, Good Lord deliver us' dates back to the 1600's. It is said to be a thief's plea to be spared the harsh punishments handed out in those three places, where Sannuk was in very short supply in those days. Not that we can verify the first one, but in Hull criminals were hanged for a while, then tied to gallows in the river estuary at low tide. The rest was left to nature. Criminals in Halifax didn't fare any better, with that town having a device to behead anyone who stole goods to the value of 13 pence or more - about 6 baht in todays money.

Enjoy your day!

CRYPTIC CROSSWORD

The solution to last week's puzzle is on page 14

ACROSS

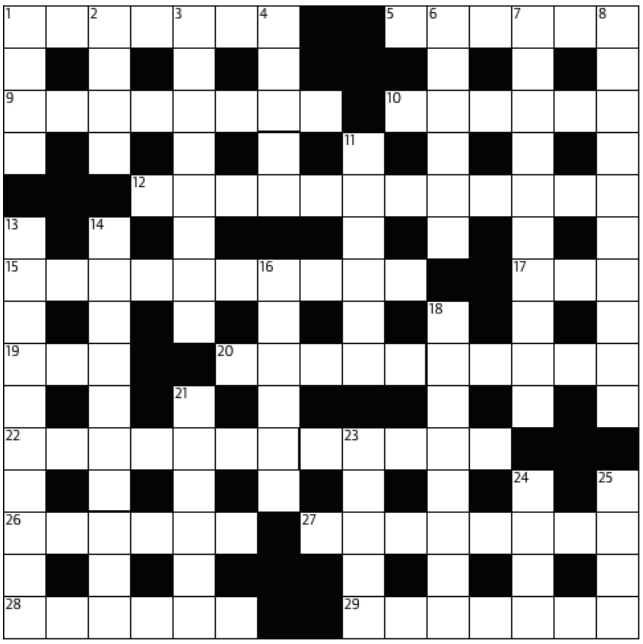
1 One comes from among relatively unrefined types (7)
5 Ford is hesitating to become emperor (6)
9 Virtue of endless hurry in financial centre (8)



10 High Church service provided it's in central France (6)
12 Commission for distribution of dog food (12)
15 A pious type, Winston, fit to move the queen (10)
17 In name it may be called the King's Arms (3)
19 Liquid, one not known to be undrinkable (3)
20 The way stuff comes and goes (5,5)
22 With vehicle, possibly, get in a top position (7,5)
26 Backstage chatter, or how Miller unmasked McCarthy? (6)
27 Increasingly out and about, as are the rich when partying (8)
28 Bird could be elegant, apart from name (6)
29 Drink needs part of the eye keeping direction (7)

DOWN

1 1,001 brushed aside by Cromwell (4)
2 Organised stock (4)
3 Troop cover after engineers cut expenses (8)
4 Playing lute softly to relieve tension (3,2)
6 Fruit, not originally but still … (6)
7 Dubious, like the filth? (10)
8 Arbitrator in mad dance borrowed from Peter to pay Paul (10)
11 Listen to variation of New Testament date (6)
13 "It can be done — somehow I have" (Cable) (10)
14 Bacon's original source (7,3)
16 Attic half overturned, brought to order (6)
18 Stern — apt perhaps to take one side or the other (8)
21 Cope with a boy when grown up? (6)
23 It may be high, but it's nothing grim (5)
24 Smith, a bit short of specialist food provider (4)
25 A good deal of land seen as one article (4))

FEATURED GAME

Saturday 6th February 2016
PREMIER LEAGUE
Man City v Leicester 19:45

The Leicester bandwagon keeps rolling, and people are now starting to believe that they will be in the mix to the end of the season. They have one big advantage over thier rivals, in that they only have the one competition to focus on, while their opponents in this match, for example, are still competing in the FA Cup, League Cup and Champions League. The Citizens must not lose this if they are to win the league, and really need to win, if only to dent Leicester's hopes. The away side will go for this one, as a win puts them in a very strong position, while a loss still sees them in the top three. We think they will stay top with a draw though.

THE STUFF OF LEGENDS

JOHN TERRY TO SPEND REMAINDER OF CAREER PLAYING AWAY FROM HOME

■ ENGLAND

John Terry has announced that he will spend the remainder of his career playing entirely away from home.

The Chelsea captain confirmed his intention to extend his playing days with a move abroad after releasing a statement that Chelsea would not be renewing his contract beyond the end of this season.

"Whilst I am proud of my footballing polygamy, infidelity has played a fundamental role in defining my off-pitch responsibilities as club ambassador," Terry told reporters outside the club's Cobham training ground.

"I firmly believe the majority of my best performances down the years have been played out in the confines of the bedrooms of absent team-mates.

"As difficult as it is to accept those days are being brought to an end at Chelsea as prematurely as some of my colleague's relationships, I have to move on.

Left: John Terry (pictured with Wayne Bridge) has provided more back page stories for AWOL than any other individual sportsman, showing his committment to proving how odious he really is

"What better way to embody the last 15 years playing-away from home than playing-away from home on a full-time contract?"

The former England captain went on to outline his preferred destinations.

"Any county which is under Shariah law has a great deal of appeal."

"The chance to take multiple team-mates wives without the unwarranted publicity is a match made in heaven."

Former Chelsea manager Jose Mourinho was quick to pay tribute to his former player's loyalty, insisting his status as club legend was secure.

"John had an ability to make club staff feel like players – even the club mascot.

"Shagging his wife practically made him feel like a squad member.

"Legend."
