ROBBING HOODS

SPATE OF ROBBERIES IN LOCAL AREA

HUA HIN, THAILAND

While it is impossible to say if it is coincidental or an indication of the hard times being suffered by many in Thailand, in recent weeks there has been a wave of robberies from both individuals and businesses acroos the area. Chronologically these began with the robbing of a Swedish woman by three Thai men who initially helped her after a motorbike accident, on Wednesday 4th May, bagging her iPhone and a few thousand baht in cash, and who were subsequently arrested in the following days.

This was followed by a failed ATM robbery on Monday 9th May - the ATM was housed in the S2 auto spares shop which the thieves broke into and then used a gas powered cutting tool to open the back of the ATM but were unable to get the money out. That same night, the largest of the recent spate of robberies took place, with the 11 million baht raid at a Bangkok Bank in Cha Am, and police have now arrested a driver at the bank, recovering 5.7 million baht's worth of cash and gold, with the rest as yet undiscovered.

Then came the discovery of an as yet unsolved robbery at a home owned by a Swedish couple who were away, where the robbers apparently tucked into the wine and chocolates found in the fridge, as well as the unknown contents of a wardrobe safe. Finally, last weekend, the Chulaporn Narawithayalai school in Cha Am suffered a robbery where over half a million baht was taken from a safe in their finance offices.

It may be that there is more criminal activity in the area now, or simply that it is now being reported, but crime statistics broken down for local areas have been historically difficult to get hold of, so it is impossible to know if this is an unusual spike, or it fits in with the normal pattern. Either way, we thought our readers should be made aware of these break ins, so that everybody can be more vigilant and take necessary precautions.

LEO Jul 23 – Aug 22
You'll learn too late that love and deception often go hand in hand when the eloquent stranger sending you love letters turns out not to be the real Sarah Vowell.

VIRGO Aug 23 – Sep 22
The flame of true love will finally gutter and die in your soul, but take heart: the flame of too many video game systems plugged into a single outlet is burning bright in your den.

LIBRA Sep 23 – Oct 23
You'll be unable to think of anything sadder than the sight of the hooks which once held her picture, but there's absolutely nothing else in the room to stare at for hours on end.

SCORPIO Oct 24 – Nov 21
When you were a child, you spoke as a child, you understood as a child, and you thought as a child; so no real changes, then.

SAGITTARIUS Nov 22 – Dec 21
Your lifelong search for your soul mate will comes to an end at last when you discover it was Robert Kearns, inventor of the intermittent windshield wiper, who died in 2005.

■ A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

This week it is..... Sacred cow

Something too highly regarded to be open to criticism or curtailment.

This term is an allusion to the Hindu reverence for cows. The first use in English that I have found of the term 'sacred cow' as a description of the recipient of that long-standing Hindu veneration is in an American newspaper from the 1850s. This is a reprint of a letter that was sent by Wady Jahed, an Indian emigre, living in Janesville, Wisconsin, to The Calcutta Times. Mr Jahed sent the letter on the'17th day of the 6th Moon' and The Janesville Free Press printed it in January 1854:

To the most eminent Kaali Ramon, High Brahmin, at Benares, India.

The religion of the Hindoo is now well established here, but I find many things to correct. For instance the grain which they bring as an offering to the goddess Bhavani, which they pronounce brewery, they work up into a liquor which they drink in honor of the gods, instead of feeding it to the sacred bulls and cows; they also eat the flesh of animals, and do other vile things.

Kiss the sacred cow for me, and may Doorgha bless you at all times.
From your Slave,
WADY JAHED.

It seems he was right to question the lack of knowledge of sacred cows in the USA at the time. Several other US newspapers refer to them in the late 19th century and variously describe them as coming from India, Tibet and 'Muhammedan lands'.

The figurative use of the term 'sacred cow', to refer to a project or process that is immune from tampering, is American in origin and also dates from the late 19th century. A piece in The New York Herald, in March 1890, uses a simile that comes close to that metaphorical use:

"While the great ditch may be regarded as one of the commercial diversities of the commonwealth, to worship it as a sort of sacred cow is not necessarily a work of true statesmanship."

In September 1909 The Galveston Daily News went a little further and referred to a project that was a 'sacred cow', rather than merely being like one:

"They understand Mr. Bryan's position to be one of antagonism to the contention that raw material is a 'sacred cow,' immune from tariff reform, ever to be upon the dutiable list and in consequence enjoying the blessings of incidental protection."

■ BULGARIAN TRAGEDY

There was a man in Bulgaria who drove a train for a living. He loved his job, driving a train had been his dream ever since he was a child. He loved to make the train go as fast as possible.

Unfortunately, one day he was a little too reckless and caused a crash. He made it out, but a single person died. Well, needless to say, he went to court over this incident. He was found guilty, and was sentenced to death by electrocution. When the day of the execution came, he requested a single banana as his last meal. After eating the banana, he was strapped into the electric chair. The switch was flown, sparks flew and smoke filled the air- but nothing happened. The man was perfectly fine.

Well, at the time, there was an old Bulgarian law that said a failed execution was a sign of divine intervention, so the man was allowed to go free. And somehow, he managed to get his old job back driving the train. Having not learned his lesson at all, he went right back to driving the train with reckless abandon. Once again, he caused a train to crash, this time killing two people. The trial went much the same as the first, resulting in a sentence of execution. For his final meal, the man requested two bananas. After eating the bananas, he was strapped into the electric chair. The switch was thrown, sparks flew, smoke filled the room - and the man was once again unharmed. Well, this of course meant that he was free to go.

And once again, he somehow manages to get his old job back. To what should have been the surprise of no one, he crashed yet another train and killed three people. And so he once again found himself being sentenced to death. On the day of his execution, he requested his final meal - three bananas. "You know what? No," said the executioner. "I've had it with you and your stupid bananas and walking out of here unharmed. I'm not giving you a thing to eat, we're strapping you in and doing this now." Well, it was against protocol, but the man was strapped in to the electric chair without a last meal. The switch was pulled, sparks flew, smoke filled the room - and the man was still unharmed.

The executioner was speechless. The man looked at the executioner and said "Oh, the bananas had nothing to do with it. I'm just a bad conductor."

■ PACK IT UP, PACK IT IN, LET ME BEGIN...

This week in 1994 the Manchester United team was at number 1 in the UK singles chart with 'Come On you Reds'. The record reached number 1 on May 21st, with a little help from Status Quo, and stayed there for 2 weeks. This year Man U won the FA Cup for the 12th time on May 21st.

But this year their win sees the end of manager Louis van Gaal, which may bring back memories to many fans of their 1990 win, also against Crystal Palace, which reportedly saved the career of then manager Alex Ferguson. Makes you wonder just what a guy has to do doesn't it?

Meanwhile here in Hull we wait to see what tomorrow's (May 28th) Championship Playoff final at Wembley will do for Hull City manager Steve Bruce.

On the plus side summer is trying really hard to arrive, and holidays rather than football are on many folks minds. There has of course been a marked interest in cruising in recent years - the seagoing variety that is. Rich 'baby boomer' pensioners are thought to be to blame, together with ever increasing fears about flying. I have my doubts about the 'rich pensioner' theory, but either way it can't be good news for Thailand's quality tourism industry.

Still, the cruise boom has resulted in a spectacularly huge new liner, the Harmony of the Seas, which set off from Southampton on its maiden voyage last Sunday - May 22nd. Just a short jaunt to Rotterdam, presumably to make sure that everything works OK.

If you have seen photos of it the thing looks truly daunting. With 17 decks, space for over 6,700 passengers and 2,100 crew, it could accommodate almost all of Hua Hin. But think of a floating Hua HIn with a casino, it's own version of New Yorks Central Park, a 1,300 seat theatre, and an ice rink. There is also an adults only solarium, which is possibly the closest the ship will get to Thailand, although I think it simply means that children aren't allowed.

So if you fancy a change and have a spare couple of thousand pounds or so - each - for a week on board in a decent cabin, give it a try. For me it looks a little bit too top heavy.....

Still on the subject of holidays - how much luggage space do you allow your childrens requirements to take up? A couple of weeks ago I was doing a charity collection stint in a well known supermarket. You have one in Hua HIn as well, but as yet not on the Harmony of the Seas. You know the scenario. You stand at the end of a checkout with a bucket and some leaflets and offer to pack customers shopping for them, while trying hard not to be too intrusive. It actually went well and was more fun than expected, offering the opportunity to see what people buy and have a chat with the nicer ones. (FYI our Polish neighbours buy a lot of Primula spread.) But one lady just piled the conveyor belt high with multipacks of crisps and other savoury snacks, which ended up filling her trolley.

This puzzled the check out lady as well as me, but a polite comment or two revealed that the customer was bound for a flight to the Caribbean the following day, together with her children, who had insisted that they wouldn't like any foreign versions of the snacks.

Any comment would be superfluous.

GOODBYE TO GEOFF

As many of you will now know, Geoff Gillgrass, a regular visitor and pool player for Limelight, died on Saturday night from a heart attack. He was cremated at Hua Hin Temple yesterday (Thursday 26th May).

Geoff was very well known and extremely well liked - he always had a smile on his face, would help anybody and loved to chat to everybody. He was an avid Liverpool fan and came from the city, so became known as 'Scouse Geoff', and he had the ready wit and jokes that are common to that area.

He loved Thailand, and Hua Hin in particular, and for his first few years was a long stay tourist until he finally moved here full time a couple of years ago. He lived in Soi 80 and would often be found in the bars there, as well as his regular stop at Limelight.

We would like to express our sincere condolences to all his family and friends, and here at AWOL we feel lucky to have known Geoff for most of his time in Hua Hin. Geoff was only 57 and has been taken from us far too soon. R. I. P.

EVERY WINNER LOSES

LOUIS VAN GAAL SACKED FOR ONLY WINNING ONE FA CUP THIS YEAR

■ ENGLAND

Manchester United Manager Louis van Gaal has been sacked after failing to win more than one FA Cup this season.

The Manchester United management team has denied handling the sacking badly, insisting that they'd given van Gaal almost 48 hours to have a cup of tea and look at the trophy he'd won for them before giving him his belongings in a bin bag and getting security to escort him from the premises.

The Glazers were hoping for more from van Gaal, and he was told pre-season his job was at risk if the team did not win the League, Superbowl, the World Series of Baseball, the raffle at the local church fair, and the FA Cup at least twice in the same year.

"Manchester United has nothing but respect and gratitude for our former manager… thingy …whatsisname," said a spokesman.

"He has served the team wonderfully since… whenever it was, and won us almost enough titles and trophies.

Left: Jose Mourinho gives his verdict on both the man he is replacing and the Manchester United board

"But you know what they say; FA Cup winner is still first loser, or something.

"Thanks for all your hard work and don't let the door hit you on the way out."

It is understood that United approached Leicester Manager Claudio Ranieri to replace van Gaal, but were rebuffed when Ranieri told them he was only interested in a contract of longer than four months, a complete deal-breaker for the Glazers.

Van Gaal is to be replaced by Jose Mourinho, who most recently hit the headlines when he was sacked by Chelsea for winning the Premiership – an experience which sources say should prepare him wonderfully for working at United.
