What's happening, and might be happening, in and around Hua Hin

WHAT'S GOING ON?

TOWN JITTERY AFTER ATTACKS; RUMOURS AND SPECULATION FUEL SUSPICION

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

As we write this week's front page, six days after the initial explosions that killed one and injured 20 people, Hua Hin has, on the face of it, returned to normal. However in the days since the incidents, which occurred at the same time as other attacks in Trang, Phuket, Phangnga, Krabi, Nakhon Si Thammarat, Ranong and Surat Thani, and further explosions in Hua Hin, leaving a total of 4 dead and 37 injured across Thailand, a combination of things has left many wondering exactly what is going on.

Schools across the area were ordered closed on Monday despite the 'back to normal' announcement on Saturday, and there have been many reports of further unexploded devices being discovered subsequently. While there has been some evidence of greater vigilance by the authorities, some of the measures taken have been seen by some as both inadequate and incompetent, judging by comments made on social media and forums, amid a raft of misinformation, speculation and rumour. There were also reports that Hua Hin police were aware of the threat of Thursday night's explosions, and this has helped fuel a growing suspicion that the true state of affairs is being covered up in order to minimise the affects on tourism.

AWOL is not privy to any more information than our readers, and we agree with the opinion that we should not allow those who try to disrupt our lives with such attacks to do so, but at the same time the authorities, police and army have a responsibility to provide comprehensive and consistent information to quell the suspicions and speculation, and a duty to catch and deal with those responsible for the attacks as quickly as possible.

Our message is simple - Stay Safe, Be Vigilant and Don't Let Them Win

CAPRICORN Dec 22 - Jan 19
While you're relieved to hear that the test results were negative, the mile-wide skywriting does seem a little excessive.

AQUARIUS Jan 20 – Feb 18
People claim that age is nothing more than a state of mind, making this week's stroke revealing on a few different levels.

PISCES Feb 19 – Mar 20
You will scream the name of a loved one from the rooftops this week. Unfortunately for you, she'll still refuse to let you back into the apartment.

ARIES Mar 21 – Apr 20
You will put your best foot forward this morning, though you'll still have to drag the other frightening mass of flesh and bone behind it.

TAURUS Apr 21 – May 21
After years of hesitation, you'll finally come out of your shell this week, falling prey almost immediately to a swooping falcon attack.

GEMINI May 22 – June 21
You shall drink from the fountain of wisdom this week, repeatedly missing your big dumb mouth, and completely soaking your ridiculous shirt.

CANCER Jun 22 – Jul 22
There's nothing more American than a warm slice of apple pie, which makes the three tons of explosives found in its possession that much more shocking.

LEO Jul 23 – Aug 22
You may think your peers have lost all respect for you, but fear not: It's impossible to lose something you never really had.

VIRGO Aug 23 – Sep 22
Remember: Being a doctor is more than just putting on a white lab coat and going door-to-door checking in on patients. You'll need a stethoscope, too.

LIBRA Sep 23 – Oct 23
They say that behind every successful man is a woman, but all you really see is a dozen or so monkeys, three spotlights, and a playbill for Arthur Miller's The Crucible.

SCORPIO Oct 24 – Nov 21
Since the dawn of time, man has dreamed of flying. Sadly, after this week's events, it'll mostly just be nightmares.

SAGITTARIUS Nov 22 – Dec 21
Self-improvement may be a noble goal, but the stars aren't so sure the leg rests, dual cup-holders, and wood paneling are what people had in mind.

■ A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

This week it is..... There is no such thing as bad publicity

Literal meaning.

The idea that no publicity can do harm is clearly open to question. For someone seeking notoriety and a somewhat scandalous reputation, like Marie Lloyd and Mae West in days gone by, or Paris Hilton in our era, that may be true. The shareholders of BP and Toyota, which have both suffered falls in their market price due to worldwide publicizing of their recent difficulties, or the Tourist Authority of Thailand due to recent events, may feel differently.

'There's no such thing as bad publicity' is often associated with Phineas T. Barnum, the 19th century American showman and circus owner. Barnum was a self-publicist of the first order and never missed an opportunity to present his wares to the public. As with many other supposed quotations, there's no hard evidence to link the 'bad publicity' quotation to him.

The proverbial expression began to be used in the early 20th century. The earliest version that I have found in print is from the US newspaper The Atlanta Constitution, January, 1915:

All publicity is good if it is intelligent.

The thought behind the proverb had been expressed earlier by Oscar Wilde:

The only thing worse than being talked about is not being talked about.

Probably the most celebrated adapter of the expression was another great wit from the Dublin literary scene, the Irish Republican and "drinker with a writing problem", Brendan Behan. Behan's boisterous lifestyle meant that for him, more than others, there was truth in his opinion that:

There's no such thing as bad publicity except your own obituary.

■ WILL

"Am I mentioned in the will?" the nephew asked anxiously.

"You certainly are" , replied the lawyer.

Right here in the third paragraph your uncle says: To my niece Sarah I bequeath a hundred thousand dollars, to my cousin Janice fifty thousand dollars, and to my nephew Charles, who was always curious to know if he was mentioned in my will, I say "Hi, Charles".

■ OLYMPICS

At the Olympics a man went up to a competitor who was carrying a very long pole. "Are you a pole vaulter?" "No, I'm German, but how did you know my name is Walter?"

■ MORTICIAN

A man who'd just died is delivered to a local mortuary and he's wearing an expensive, expertly tailored black suit. The mortician asks the deceased's wife how she would like the body dressed, pointing out that the man does look good in the black suit he is already wearing.

The widow, however, says that she always thought her husband looked his best in blue, and that she wants him in a blue suit. She gives the mortician a blank check and says, 'I don't care what it costs, but please have my husband in a blue suit for the viewing.'

The woman returns the next day and to her delight, she finds her husband dressed in a gorgeous blue suit with a subtle chalk stripe; the suit fits him perfectly. She says to the mortician, 'Whatever this cost, I'm very satisfied.. You did an excellent job and I'm very grateful. How much did you spend?'

To her astonishment, the mortician presents her with the blank check, 'There's no charge.' 'No, really, I must compensate you for the cost of that exquisite blue suit,' she says. 'Honestly, ma'am,' the mortician says, 'it cost nothing. You see, a deceased gentleman of about your husband's size was brought in shortly after you left yesterday, and he was wearing an attractive blue suit. I asked his wife if she minded him going to his grave wearing a black suit instead, and she said it made no difference as long as he looked nice.'

'So I just switched the heads.'

LIFE ON MARS

HOW TO SURVIVE AS AN ALIEN IN THAILAND

ALIENS

Foreigners who visit and live in Thailand are aliens; this is not intended to be insulting, it is just a simple fact that is applicable to foreigners in any country. However, while this term is simply used by the authorities to distinguish between those who are natives and those who are not, in Thailand there are so many differences and sometimes difficulties in daily life for us aliens, we might as well be on another planet!

And so this new section in AWOL was born, to try and help deal with and understand some of what we encounter here on Mars, sorry, Thailand. Each week we will tackle a variety of practical issues and cultural concerns, and try to offer help, guidance and tips on what to do, what not to do, what to say or not say, and a whole host of explanations, examples and true stories that will hopefully give everybody more insight into life in the Land Of Smiles.

The kind of topics we will be covering can be broadly categorised as follows;

Health, Safety, Home, Nightlife, Travel, Food and Drink, Legal, Family, Officialdom, and Environment.

There will be crossovers between these topics, but one thing we will not really cover, for legal reasons, will be the Royal Family.

We will also be asking you, our readers, to send in your questions, stories, experiences and anything else related to your time in Thailand, whether they are good, bad or indifferent, and try to work them into this weekly column.

Please send your comments to us as follows;

SHOCKING TRUTH

None of us want to see a repeat of last weeks' bombings. Although they are an all too common occurrence in the far south the targeting of Hua Hin was a shock, but realistically should it have come as any surprise?

Because regardless of who was responsible, Hua Hin has a particular significance as the home of the Royal Families summer palace.

Unfortunately early signs of finding the bombers weren't looking good, with the reported arrest of two 'suspects' who were quickly released after questioning, and with the admission, less than 48 hours after the bombings, that the bombers were still at large but believed to still be in Thailand. At the same time, while assorted Embassies advised tourists to exercise extreme caution, some in authority stated that as there had been no further incidents Thailand had returned to normal - whatever that is.

Subsequently more arrests have been made, and people have also been taken in for questioning by the military, so we can only hope that by the time you read this those responsible are under lock and key.

At least there seems to have been some progress in the handling of DNA tests, which were expected to be available just three days after the attacks. A great improvement on the handling of DNA in the case of the KohTao murders two years ago.

Of course we Brits are really in no position to question any other police force in the World, now that we know the extent of some of our own top brass's alleged tea money perks, (or should that be champagne money?) which has no doubt been going on for years. We have also been reminded this year of how the Hillsborough disaster was mis-handled. Then last week the debacle that was the Yorkshire Ripper investigation came back to mind when it was announced that after 32 years in Broadmoor high security psychiatric hospital the Ripper - Peter Sutcliffe - is to be transferred to a regular high security prison. A move which many who remember Sutcliffes' reign of terror believe is 32 years too late.

In fact, if it weren't all so serious, it would come as no surprise to hear that the Met had been ordered to download Pokemon Go apps in order to to familiarise themselves with the latest threat to society.

On a lighter note, can the news that Thailand plans to increase its' provision of telephone numbers by 550 million really be true? By my reckoning that amounts to around nine additional phone numbers per person, which even allowing for extra mobiles to enable 24/7 Pokemon research seems a little over the top.

Let's hope that an extra zero has found it's way into that figure, which is said to include some extra landline provision as well as mobiles. Otherwise Thailand may find itself in the same sorry state as Hulls' own independent telephone company KCom, which is rapidly losing landline customers as mobile wifi becomes more readily available.

As a final nod to the Olympic Games this weeks date in history fits the bill. On August 19th 1936 an American woman spectator at the Berlin Olympics managed to plant a kiss on Adolf Hitler. She apparently thought he looked like a decent guy, but would be proved wrong three years later. Hitler, clearly well trained by his PR people, seemed amused by the incident, but afterwards showed his true colours by either dismissing or demoting his security guards.

FEATURED GAME

Saturday 20th August 2016
PREMIER LEAGUE
Leicester v Arsenal 23:30
Both teams lost their opening games, so points will be available for at least one of them here. The Foxes will be keen to react to their shock defeat to newly promoted Hull, and the Gunners will be equally keen to put the champions in their place. We think that this will be an intense game with a few goals, and that Arsenal will just edge it by the odd goal.

"OH NO IT'S MO"

DAILY MAIL'S BLOOD PRESSURE 'DANGEROUSLY HIGH' AS BLACK MUSLIM IMMIGRANT WINS TEAM GB GOLD

■ BRAZIL

The Daily Mail is going to have to see a doctor after black Muslim immigrant Mo Farah won gold for Team GB.

Symptoms, including blood pressure of 190 over 90 and a tightening of the chest, began at about 1:30 last Sunday morning as the final of the Olympic 10,000 metres began in Rio.

Relief was temporarily felt as Farah fell during the race putting him towards the back of the field, but the palpitations were soon back in full force.

A spokesperson for the paper told us, "There was hope everything would be alright as Mo was overtaken on the last lap, but it was a brief respite.

"At the point Mo crossed the line in first place while doing the Mo-bot the paper was on its knees with a mouth full of bile.

"It rolled into the foetal position and kept repeating to itself, 'Oh God, we're going to have to be nice to him, oh Jesus, please don't make us say nice things about him, not him, please'.

"When presented with the amended front page showing a victorious Mo with a Union Jack and his gold medal, oxygen was required, and an ambulance was called."

Left: Daily Mail readers rush to stamp on the stricken Farah, pausing only to tell him to 'get out of their country'and to 'get a proper job'

However, reports are emerging that doctors expect the paper will make a full recovery after it was treated with a second-hand story about a Muslim woman caught shoplifting after hiding food under her burka in an Asda somewhere in Birmingham.
