AWOL

ABSENT WITHOUT LEAVE FOR THE EXPAT IN ALL OF US
What's happening, and might be happening, in and around Hua Hin

THE PEACE IS BACK

NO NEWS IS GOOD NEWS AS HUA HIN RETURNS TO TRANQUILITY

■ HUA HIN, THAILAND

In a year that could quite easily be categorised as the worst in Hua Hin's history, this week AWOL is glad to report that nothing has happened this week to disturb the tranquil and relaxing atmosphere that is the norm in our beautiful city.

As reported in last week's issue, this was the first week of the pedestrian only zone between 7pm and midnight in Soi Binthabaht, and the opening ceremony went off without a hitch, and was well attended, with superheroes, dancing girls and special offers attracting a good crowd, and it must be hoped that this will encourage tourists to return to the town after the events of recent months.

The month of September sees the Hua Hin Golf Festival continue, with reduced rates at most of the golf courses in the area, and normally sees the beginning of a gradual return to the country for the 'snowbirds' - foreigners who swap the six to eight months of cold and wet weather in their own lands for the beautiful climate Thailand ,and particularly Hua Hin, experiences over the winter months.

AWOL is approaching a couple of milestones in the next couple of months too, as we enter of our ninth year of operation in October, with our 400th issue due around the middle of the same month. We are planning to have a party to celebrate these, and will be releasing details of the date and venue closer to the occasion; if any venue in the area is interested in hosting our party, please contact us on info@awolonline.net to put forward your proposal or arrange a meeting to discuss what you can offer. Lets all hope that the only spectacular happenings in Hua Hin for the remainder of this year will be enjoyable, social events, and that our party will be exactly that.

CAPRICORN Dec 22 - Jan 19
A scantily clad stripper will soon jump out of the cake, confirming a rather embarrassing mix-up at the bakery, and completely ruining your daughter's fourth birthday.

AQUARIUS Jan 20 – Feb 18
You've heard the saying "you are what you eat" many times before, but prosecutors will surely describe you as anything but an innocent newborn.

PISCES Feb 19 – Mar 20
The stars foresee travel in your future, so get ready to finally put on a pair of decent pants.

ARIES Mar 21 – Apr 20
Your tendency to see the worst in every situation will rob you of any pleasure you might have otherwise derived from next Thursday's biological-disease outbreak.

TAURUS Apr 21 – May 21
They've taken to calling you a broken man, defeated, beaten, dispirited, hopeless—but then, they have access to a thesaurus.

GEMINI May 22 – June 21
You're prepared to go to any length to get your wife back, which is funny, as finding what remains of her will actually require you to go to any depth.

CANCER Jun 22 – Jul 22
Continuing a proud, age-old tradition, you will hand down your family's priceless heirlooms to the next generation of Chinatown pawnbrokers this week.

LEO Jul 23 – Aug 22
You've never been able to bear the sight of blood. Luckily for you, concentrated arrangements of sulfuric acid will liquefy your retinas long before the radial arm saw starts in.

VIRGO Aug 23 – Sep 22
Endless complaints that your talents are being wasted at work will finally pay off when management decides to promote you to the new position of "Head Whiner."

LIBRA Sep 23 – Oct 23
You've always prided yourself on being able to both "talk the talk" and "walk the walk," but a debilitating stroke will soon leave you unable to do either.

SCORPIO Oct 24 – Nov 21
There's nothing wrong with being attracted to a man in uniform, but the stars still think you can do better than building custodian.

SAGITTARIUS Nov 22 – Dec 21
To no avail, you will once again pray exactly 223 times for God to heal you of your lifelong obsessive-compulsive disorder.

■ A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

This week it is..... Get underway

Begin a journey or a project.

We are familiar with this little expression but, like other idioms that we absorb without question when learning the language, it doesn't make much literal sense. Why 'under'? Why 'way'? It turns out that a confusing of several seafaring words had a bearing on the coining of this nautical phrase.

'Way' doesn't mean here road or route but has the specifically nautical meaning of 'the forward progress of a ship though the water', or the wake that the ship leaves behind. Way has been used like that since at least the 17th century; for example, this piece from Samuel Sturmy's Mariners Magazine, 1669:

"If you sail against a Current, if it be swifter than the Ship's way, you fall a Stern."

This usage continued into the 20th century and was also used in aviation as well as shipping. In 1911, The Times reported:

"He shut off his engine and by so doing took the 'way' off the biplane."

The term 'under sail' and 'underway' appear at first sight to be quite similar. The former seems easy to interpret, as sailing ships are literally under the sails when in motion, but what are we under in 'underway'? That is easier to understand when we know that this 'under' was originally 'on the'. Knowing that, 'on the way' makes sense. 'On the way' migrated to 'underway', probably due to the influence of the Dutch word 'onderweg', which translates into English as 'underway' but to 17th century sailors must have sounded more like 'on the way'.

More confusion enters with doubts over the phrase's spelling. The term 'weigh anchor', and the fact that when ships are loaded with cargo and ready to sail they are weighed down, has led to the phrase being written as 'under weigh'. This a common enough misspelling to have become almost standardised; so much so that, in his 1846 Nautical Dictionary, Arthur Young wrongly suggested that under weigh was in fact the correct original spelling:

"Under way, this expression, often used instead of under weigh, seems to be a convenient one for denoting that a ship or boat is making progress through the water, whether by sails or other motive power."

There seems little to justify it, but Young must have had some success in promoting that view as many prominent 19th century authors, including Thackeray, Herman Melville and Charles Dickens, all spelled the term that way - or should that be that weigh?

The word 'way' is now flourishing as the converse of 'no way', but as 'a ship's progress' it is all but defunct. The loss of the association with shipping has removed the incentive to spell the phrase 'get under weigh' and 'get underway' is now commonly used (although some still prefer to use the two-word form for 'get under way' and reserve the single 'underway for the adjectival 'the underway ship').

■ HEARING DIFFICULTIES

Joey went to the doctor today and told him he was having problems with his hearing.
He said, "Can you describe the symptoms?"
Joey said, "They're yellow, Homer's fat, and Marge has blue hair."

■ HOOKER

A man's walking home late at night when he sees a woman in the shadows.
"Twenty bucks," she says.
He's never been with a hooker before, but he decides what the hell. They're going at it for a minute when all of a sudden a light flashes on them—it's a police officer.
"What's going on here, people?" asks the officer.
"I'm making love to my wife," the man answers indignantly.
"Oh, I'm sorry," says the cop, "I didn't know."
"Well," said the man, "neither did I until you shone that light in her face.

■ SUGAR

Jokes about white sugar are rare. Jokes about brown sugar, Demerara.

■ HOUSE HUNTING

Just been looking at a lovely old house with period features.
She hates that nickname.

■ ROADIE

I have Polish friend who is a roadie for a band.
I have a Czech one too...Czech one too...Czech one too....

■ SAD MOVIE

A bloke was at the pictures and had his dog with him.
At a sad part of the movie the dog started crying.
A woman sitting near him said to the dog's owner,
" Wow that's amazing, your dog is crying at the sad part of the movie".
The bloke said " It really is amazing, he never cried when he read the book".

"Doing business without advertising is like winking at a girl in the dark. You know what you are doing but nobody else does."

LIFE ON MARS

HOW TO SURVIVE AS AN ALIEN IN THAILAND

UNSCHEDULED RETURNS

The death or hospitalisation of a relative in your home country after you have settled in another is, perhaps, one of the worst things any expat has to face, and is particularly difficult if you have been away for an extended period of time, leaving you unfamiliar with changes to laws and regulations that may impact on what you are able to do, as well as having to deal with the extreme emotions that these events can trigger.

This is, of course, neither an issue exclusive to Thailand, nor the fault of the country that you have made your home, but it is something to consider both before making any such move, and also something that can be made easier by planning ahead of any such event happening.

Things to consider implementing are making sure that your relatives have made wills, that close relatives have made provision for power of attorney for you where appropriate, that important documents, such as insurance and investments, are both easily accessible and up to date, important contacts such as lawyers are listed in a known place (e.g. address book), regular payments for things like utility bills and subscriptions, are recorded, and access to property and vehicles has already been arranged in advance.

Clearly this is normally only pertinent to immediate family such as parents, and ideally you need to discuss such eventualities well in advance of the likelihood of it happening.

There are several other things that can make such circumstances easier to deal with, which also apply to handling other instances when you have to return to your home country, and we will deal wih these in a future edition of 'Life On Mars', for instance retaining a bank account and an address in the country.

If any of our readers have gone through such a traumatic ordeal and have further advice for everyone, please write to us at the email address below, or post yourexperiences on the AWOL Forum to aid your fellow expats.

Send your comments or suggestions for this column to us at submissions@awolonline.net (Subject/Title 'Life On Mars') or on Facebook at www.facebook.com/AWOLexpat (please Like our page as well!)

UP AND UNDER

Despite scares over security and more changes to it's presentation than you could count I have used Hotmail for 17 years. Yes, there is the gmail as well now for the more important stuff, and there have been a couple of other 'main' e mail providers along the way. The truth is that in spite of all the changes I've simply become accustomed to it. Hotmail and it's simple folder system is my IT comfort blanket. Not to mention that I haven't discovered how to save drafts on g mail.

But Hotmail/Outlook or whatever you call it now is on dodgy ground with those silly coloured discs that highlight the initials of contacts. Yes I know you can click on the discs and bring up a list of options, like arranging a meeting, but err... why? The whole thing just looks like an outbreak of rainbow coloured chickenpox.

Thanks - I feel much better for that small rant. Half the population of Hull feels much better as well following last Saturdays successful trip to Wembley by Hull FC, where the team won the Rugby League Challenge Cup for only the fourth time in their 151 year history. I say 'half' the population because where Rugby League is concerned this really is a city of two halves, with the other half supporting Hull Kingston Rovers.

The few people in the Hull FC half of the city who weren't interested enough to either go to Wembley, or even follow the match at all, didn't need to switch on the news after the final whistle to know that their team had beaten Warrington. The cheering and tooting of car horns in the streets said it all. Because despite its newly promoted again soccer team Hull is still a grass roots Rugby League city at heart.

Now, by way of a change, to Manchester. With a population of over 530,000 in Manchester itself, and the Greater Manchester area home to 2.5 million, the city has the third largest economy in the UK. It is also third on the list for the number of foreign visitors after London and Edinburgh. So it disturbing to hear that 620,000 people in Greater Manchester are living in poverty.

This is according to a study carried out by the Joseph Rowntree Foundation and Manchester University, and would appear to be supported by the number of families unable to afford school uniforms for their children. Manchesters 'Smart Start' charity campaign has appealed to local businesses for help in providing 1 million pounds worth of school uniforms to meet the demand from families in need. And at 4 pounds for a school uniform from some supermarkets that's an awful lot of clothes.

When you see Thai school children, often from very poor families, all immaculately turned out, you have to wonder what is going wrong in the UK.

Back in 1666 the population of London were in even more need when, on September 2nd, the Great Fire destroyed 80 per cent of the city. Sadly they couldn't even blame the Great British Bake Off.

MONSTER OLYMPICS

TOKYO BEGINS PREPARATION FOR 2020 OLYMPICS BY ENGINEERING PSYCHIC TENTACLED HORRORS

■ JAPAN

Construction has already begun on a secret military facility beneath the Tokyo 2020 stadium as Japan prepares to host the next Olympics, we can report.

The base will be used to keep genetically engineered telepathic children, monsters from the depths of the sea and what has only been described as a 'gigantic writhing mass' in suspended animation to prevent them running amok during the games.

The IOC was critical of plans to create the terrors outlined in the application to host the games, but were reassured by the 'state of the art' security and cryogenic freezing facility which make it all-but-certain nothing can possibly go wrong.

The army is understood to be furious at the scale of the spending, arguing that the money would be far better invested in giant robot research.

"After the protests in Rio we are very keen to ensure that any disruption is kept to a minimum, and the Japanese planning team have reassured us that any screaming crowds of people will be running away from the Olympic venue rather than towards it," IOC spokesman Simon Williams told us.

"Obviously, we would have preferred there not to be any malformed children with hideous supernatural powers involved at all, but it's important to the IOC that we are sensitive and accommodating to local cultures when making the decision where to host the games.

"Furthermore, the Japanese government has drawn up plans to release a colossal fire-breathing Tyrannosaur into Tokyo Bay during the sailing regatta to fight off any gigantic squid or hideous alien monsters who might disrupt the women's 470 dinghy event with unwanted tentacled intrusion."

Already preparing for the opening ceremony, the Tokyo Olympic committee have suggested that the flame could be lit by firing an orbital laser weapon and have criticised the nimbyism of local residents who object to the obliteration of half the city just for a show.

"At this rate we'll have no choice but to have the flame lit by a girl crawling out of a television, which won't be the same at all," we were told.

Several overseas teams have already objected to new rules introduced for the games that all female competitors costumes must be based on a French maid's outfit.
