FIGHTING FOR THE RIGHT NOT TO PARTY

● HUA HIN

AWOL has previously reported on the problem of 'party houses' appearing in private residential areas across the area, and this story has now hit the national press as Hua Hin residents afflicted by the problem attempt to publicise the issue further, after claiming that local officials have done little to end the problem.

The so-called party houses are usually private houses that are rented out for very short term periods, generally weekends or sometimes just one night. They are advertised as being available for large groups of people to hold their celebration or party, and will usually have a swimming pool, as well as facilities geared to a party, such as karaoke machines and pool tables. The problem begins when the parties go on late into the night, and become louder and louder, with neighbouring houses suffering from the noise, and often unable to get the partygoers to respect their wishes and need to sleep. Police do get called but once they leave the problem will often start up again.

As it stands, unless the house owner has a hotel licence, the practice of letting a property for less than a 30 day period is illegal, but of course pursuing this legal path can be costly in both time and financial terms, depending on who the owner is and the location of the property. It is easier to prevent the issue if, for example, the property is in a private estate that is run by the homeowners with their own legally binding by-laws established by a committee and voted on. However many estates in the area are still controlled by the developer, so any action would need to have their involvement, which is not always easy to get. The fear now is that disgruntled residents will start to take matters into their own hands, and it must be hoped that the relevant authorities act before things turn ugly.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

Don't take it personally: Someone had to be the cutoff point for who does and doesn't get on the Emergency Earth-Escape Rocket.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

Alarming developments this week mean that withholding sex will no longer be one of your more effective threats.

ARIES MAR 21 - APR 20

You'll be thrilled all the way down to your toenails this week when electrodes are planted in the appropriate pleasure centers of your brain.

TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

After the events of next Sunday, for the rest of your life, people will stop you on the street and ask you to sign packages of pork chops.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

Millions will be rescued this week when the Red Cross deploys thousands of desperately needed words to the site of an unspeakable tragedy.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22

You must admit that you're sleeping better than ever, but it's kind of unpleasant to wake up every morning with a blowgun dart in the back of your neck.

LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

More than anything, you want to mold and shape young minds. Unfortunately, most commercially available Jell-O molds are unsuitable for this purpose.

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

Your new pheromone-based scent will make you irresistible to women, who will devour you, bones, hair, and all.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

Well, the stars tried, but somehow, you've been left more or less in control of your own destiny this week.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

For centuries, great thinkers have contemplated the purpose of life. It's best to just relax and assume they've figured it out.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

If you've ever regretted not pursuing a career in bullfighting, this week may bring an accidental chance to start over.

● A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

THIS WEEK IT IS....A TURN UP FOR THE BOOKS

An unexpected piece of good fortune.

Since the 1820s, or thereabouts, the term 'turn-up' has been used to mean 'a surprise; an example of good fortune'. The reference was to cards or dice, which are 'turned up' by chance. Specifically, the 'turn up' was referred to in the game of cribbage. At the start of a game of cribbage a member of one team cuts the pack and a member of the other turns up the top card. If this is a Jack, the second team gets extra points - called 'two for his heels'. Holding the Jack of the suit that is turned up also merits a point - 'one for his nibs', the Jack being one of the 'Royal' cards and 'nibs' being slang for 'a person of importance'.

'Turn up' was defined by John Camden Hotten in 1859, in A Dictionary of Modern Slang, Cant and Vulgar Words:

Turn up: An unexpected slice of luck.

That's straightforward enough, but why would a turn up be 'for the books'? Books can be cooked, one can go by them and you can be in someone's bad books, but why would you have a turn up for them?

The phrase was originally 'a turn up for the book'. At 18th and 19th century English race meetings, when bets were placed the punter's name and wager were written down in a notebook. Not unreasonably, this process was called 'making a book'. If a race was won by a horse that the 'bookmaker' had no record of in his book, he had a 'turn up' and kept all the wagered money. Camden Hotten was good enough to come to our aid again with his extended definition of 'turn up':

Among sporting men bookmakers are said to have a turn up when an unbacked horse wins.

So, 'a turn up for the book' translates as a stroke of good luck for the bookmakers. The earliest example I can find of the expression in print is from a report, in the Leeds Intelligencer newspaper, of the success of a horse called Blackdown at the Doncaster races in August 1863:

A rare turn-up for the book-makers, the majority of whom had never written Blackdown's name in their books.

● GRANDPA
A man goes to visit his 85-year-old grandpa in the hospital.
"How are you grandpa?" he asks.
"Feeling fine," says the old man.
"What's the food like?"
"Terrific, wonderful menus."
"And the nursing?"
"Just couldn't be better. These young nurses really take care of you."
"What about sleeping? Do you sleep okay?"
"No problem at all --- nine hours solid every night. At 10 o'clock they bring me a cup of hot chocolate and a Viagra tablet, and that's it. I go out like a light."
The grandson is puzzled and a little alarmed by this, so he rushes off to question the Nurse in charge.
"What are you people doing?" he asks. "I'm told you're giving an 85-year-old Viagra on a daily basis. Surely that can't be true?"
"Oh, yes," replies the nurse. "Every night at 10 o'clock we give him a cup of chocolate and a Viagra tablet. It works wonderfully well. The chocolate makes him sleep, and the Viagra stops him rolling out of bed."

● THE REVEREND
Francis Norton woke up Sunday morning and realizing it was an exceptionally beautiful and sunny early spring day, decided he just had to play golf. So... he told the Associate Pastor that he was feeling sick and convinced him to say Mass for him that day. As soon as the Associate Pastor left the room, Father Norton headed out of town to a golf course about forty miles away. This way he knew he wouldn't accidentally meet anyone he knew from his parish.
Setting up on the first tee, he was alone. After all, it was Sunday morning and everyone else was in church! At about this time, Saint Peter leaned over to the Lord while looking down from the heavens and exclaimed, "You're not going to let him get away with this, are you?"
The Lord sighed, and said, "No, I guess not."
Just then Father Norton hit the ball and it shot straight towards the pin, dropping just short of it, rolled up and fell into the hole. It WAS A 420 YARD HOLE IN ONE!
St. Peter was astonished. He looked at the Lord and asked, "Why did you let him do that?"
The Lord smiled and replied, "Who's he going to tell?"

● SUPERMARKET
The man approached the very beautiful woman in the large supermarket and asked, "You know, I've lost my wife here in the supermarket. Can you talk to me for a couple of minutes?"
"Why?" "Because every time I talk to a a beautiful woman my wife appears out of nowhere."

"Doing business without advertising is like winking at a girl in the dark. You know what you are doing but nobody else does."

A man dressed as a gorilla is still doing the London Marathon

It has been 120 hours since the London Marathon started on Sunday – but one competitor will only complete it today.

He's called Mr Gorilla, and he's taking so long because he's crawling.

Dressed in a gorilla suit, he didn't want to ruin the authenticity by walking.

So he put on knee pads and has been doing it in sections, day by day.

At press time, he'd made £1,086.20 – which is 62% of his target.

He still has a long way to go, both financially and in terms of distance.

It's all in aid of The Gorilla Organisation, which protects the great apes in their natural habitat.

But people who saw him making his slow way around the course have been donating.

'Saw you at Charlton Fire Station,' one person said while giving £20. 'Hooray for body hurting eccentricity and determination.'

Another said: 'You crawled past me at a bus stop – hope you made it. Great cause!'

Explaining his preparation before the race, Mr Gorilla said: 'I have practised crawling at least twice now.

'It was most unpleasant I can tell you.

'26.2 miles of crawling is going to be absolute purgatory, but, in for a penny and all that.

'Talking of pennies. Where are yours? Come on, cough up a few for the Gorilla Organisation!'

Why you should pick your nose and eat it

Try not to be sick, but – apparently it's ok for people to pick their noses and eat it.

According to one study snot, while gross, is actually full of healthy bacteria that helps protect your teeth.

There are still risks associated with it – synusitis, for example, and nosebleeds.

But Katharina Ribbeck, an assistant professor in the department of biological engineering at MIT, told reporters that snot could also help prevent infection.

Indeed, there's some evidence that the mucus in snot could fight off respiratory infections and stomach ulcers.

And Austrian respiratory specialist Prof Friedrich Bischinger added that people who pick their noses are healthier, happier, and likely in better tune with their bodies.

'Eating the dry remains of what you pull out [of your nose] is a great way of strengthening the body's immune system,' he said.

'Medically it makes great sense and is a perfectly natural thing to do.

'In terms of the immune system, the nose is a filter in which a great deal of bacteria are collected, and when this mixture arrives in the intestines it works just like a medicine.'

So next time your kid starts veering towards their face for a dig around their nostrils, maybe just let them get on with it.

Although if your Tinder date starts doing it, feel free to quietly make your escape.

● SWEET CHILD OF MINE?

Last week we took a look into the lives of Chang and Eng, Thailands' famous Siamese twins, and how they made a pretty good living by agreeing to appear in travelling shows, and went on to buy a farm and marry.

That was back in the early 1800's, not too long before public opinion began to turn against such displays of physical deformity. But something would happen in Canada in the 1930's which was to prove that even Provincial Governors weren't above cashing in on the opportunity to exploit people.

The story began on May 28th 1934, in a small house near Corbeil, Ontario, when Mrs Dionne gave birth to quintuplets. The five identical girls were named Cecile, Marie, Yvonne, Emily and Annette, and unusually in those days they all survived. But how much did the intervention of Ontario Province help or hinder the girls' development?

The Dionnes' house was small, had no running water or electricity, and there were already children in the family, so it was considered to be in the best interest of the 'quints,' as they were known, to be taken into care. The girls were quickly moved to the Dafoe Hospital, where they were housed in their own nursery, with their own private playground surrounded by a barbed wire fence. They were allowed almost no contact with other children, including their own brothers and sisters, and had a small school set up for them which a few other pupils had to be vetted to attend.

So far it could be considered reasonable action for the Province to take. In a time when surviving quins were unheard of, and the girls home clearly wouldn't have been suitable for their welfare, it is the kind of thing which could still happen today. Except for one difference. The quins' hospital/home put up a sign declaring it to be 'Quintland', and displaying the times of the 'next showing of the quints.' When show times arrived visitors payed to watch the quins at play through the wire fencing.

The viewings went on until the quins were nine years old, by which time Quintland had attracted some 3 million visitors. By then the Dionnes had also benefited from the Ontario venture and had moved to a more modern home, and the quins were returned to a family which, by then, they barely knew. Having been used as a social experiment the girls had hardly socialised with anyone except each other, and as we would realise now had probably also been a feast for many paedophile eyes. Yet somehow they managed to get on with their lives.

It wasn't until 1998, when Marie and Emily had already died, that Yvonne, Cecile and Annette jointly sued the Province and were awarded 3 million dollars. Sadly Yvonne died three years later, while one of Ceciles' sons promptly disappeared with her share of the compensation and hasn't been seen since. Could he be living next door to you in HuaHin?

We often hear about the mistreatment of elephants in Thailand, but the countries' Golden Triangle Asian Elephant Foundation seems to be doing some good work. The Foundation recently took part in research led by Cambridge University into elephant self awareness, in which twelve of their elephants were tested.

The results of the study suggest that elephants are aware of their own bodies, realising for example when they need to move out of the way. And if you think about it, how many elephants have you seen reversing out of the way when you have been sitting at a bar? It's good to know that you hadn't had one too many after all.

On This Day

A pretty significant event, in both good and bad ways, took place on this day in 1770, as it was when Captain James Cook, aboard his ship Endeavour, landed at Botany Bay in Australia. The bad that came of this was the subsequent mistreating of the indigenous Aborigines, the effects of which stil impact on modern Australian society, as well as the detrimental environmental effects on the country as a previously closed natural world was exposed to diseases and species never encountered. The good we will leave to you to judge, but Australia and it's peoples have made significant beneficial contributions to the world in most fields.

FEATURED GAME

SATURDAY 29TH APRIL 2017
PREMIER LEAGUE
Southampton v Hull City 21:00
With Middlesbrough and Sunderland apparently already doomed, the final relegation place would seem to be between Hull and Swansea, so this game is vital in Hull's battle to avoid he drop. Southampton can only reach 8th place at best and are safe from relegation bar a bizarre combination of circumstances, so we expect that the greater hunger for a result will be with Hull; however, Southampton are a very good side and the away side will struggle to keep a clean sheet. Stranger things have happened but we can't see Hull getting any sort of result here, and they will be depending on Swansea losing their remaining matches.

COCK AND BULL?

RELIEF AS CHELSEA ENSURE BRITAIN WILL NOT SUFFER ANOTHER CHAS AND DAVE FA CUP FINAL SONG

● UK

Music lovers across the country are ecstatic that Tottenham's defeat to Chelsea on Saturday means there won't be a new FA Cup song recorded by Chas and Dave.

Terrified families had been shuddering at the possibility of another novelty footy record being made by the famous North London piano-n-bass duo if Spurs had won.

However, after Chelsea ran out 4-2 winners in a classic semi-final encounter, the mood of the entire nation was visibly lifted.

Left: Quite possibly the scariest site ever seen in British football

Blacksmith Simon Williams, aged 42 of Devon, is 6ft 5in tall and weighs 16 stone. He spoke for many when he said: "I can put up with all this talk of imminent global nuclear annihilation without turning a hair.

"But the prospect of yet another FA Cup Final song by Chas and Dave made me just want to stay in bed all day and give up on life."

Mr Williams' views were echoed by recruitment consultant Colin Smith, aged 47 of Brighton, who said: "I'm a child of the 80s and lived through some terrible times.

"And without a doubt, one of my most traumatic memories was watching Chas and Dave's Ossie's Dream being performed on Top Of The Pops.

"I had a feeling of fear deep within my stomach warning me that hideous spectre might return.

"Thank God it's over."
