ZERO QUEUES?

BLUPORT IMMIGRATION OFFICE OPENING TUESDAY

● HUA HIN

According to reports this week, the previously mentioned outlet for one stop service immigration will open in the basement of the Bluport shopping mall next Tuesday, 9th May. This was announced last year when the brand new immigration building was also unveiled, and it has also been reported that this will open at the end of May, with the 28th mentioned by some.

The Bluport service will only be dealing with tourists staying less than 90 days and 90 day reporting, while all other immigration matters will have to be taken to the existing office near 19 Rai or the new building in Ban Nong Khon when it opens. However it is expected that this will significantly ease the workload at the main office, and hopefully will mean shorter queues and waiting times there.

The Bluport Hua Hin Resort Mall office will be opened by immigration chief Natthathorn Phrosunthorn, and it's opening hours will reportedly match those of the mall, currently 10am to 10pm. It is also being equipped with a high tech system to avoid customers having to wait at the office - after receiving a queue number, people will be able to scan the QR code into a smart phone, enabling customers to monitor the queue position while shopping, and avoiding having to wait in the office.

The provision of both the office and the first of it's kind queueing system will be a boon to the majority of expats living here on long term extensions, and will lessen the negatives of the new main immigration office location, as most will only need to visit there once a year. Hopefully some additional services, such as Re-entry Permits, may also be made available at the new office in time. Credit must go to the Prachuap Khiri Khan immigration chief Weerayot Karunyathorn for both recognising the need to address the increasing demand, and securing the budget to put the improved service in place.

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

Despite seemingly insurmountable odds, you will once again manage to talk your way out of sounding interesting this week.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

The alignment of the stars and the planets this week can only mean one thing: You're looking at a very simplistic, two-dimensional model of our solar system.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

You've never really imagined yourself as the committed type, but a state-appointed psychiatrist will soon prove you wrong.

ARIES MAR 21 - APR 20

Your bold, take-no-prisoners attitude has made you who you are today: one of the least successful criminal prosecutors in the country.

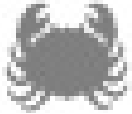
TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

Despite your attempts to make it look like an accident, investigators will immediately suspect you of burning down your wife for the insurance money.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

Your inquisitive nature will soon see you demanding answers to a series of questions ranging from "Huh?" to "Who the—?" and "Whazzat?

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22



An agonizing and seemingly endless disemboweling will soon show you exactly what you're made of.

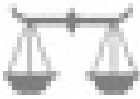
LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

You will soon meet the greatest love of your life, which, unfortunately, has less to do with the quality of the former than the brevity of the latter.

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

An old adage will be proven wrong this Thursday when bad things come to you in two-hundred-and-forty-threes.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23



Your perfectionist streak will consume you this week when you attempt to posit the world's single most precise chaos theory.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

Who's to say what's right and what's wrong, except maybe for all those police officers, the presiding district court judge, and a horrified jury of your peers.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

After decades of soul-searching and inward reflection, you'll finally realize this week that the question of God was always intended to be rhetorical.

● A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

THIS WEEK IT IS....THE USUAL SUSPECTS

The people habitually suspected or arrested in response to a crime. The phrase is usually used in regard to scapegoats rather than actual perpetrators of the crime in question.

This expression has a specific and unambiguous origin. It was spoken by Captain Louis Renault, the French prefect of police, played by Claude Rains in the 1942 U.S. film Casablanca. The context was a scene in which the Nazi, Major Strasser is shot by Humphrey Bogart's character, Rick Blaine. Renault was a witness to the shooting but saves Rick's life by telling the investigating police to "round up the usual suspects". The film then ends with the famous exit line:

"Louis, I think this is the beginning of a beautiful friendship."

The screenplay credits list Julius J. Epstein, Philip G. Epstein and Howard Koch as the film's writers.

'The usual suspects' is now as commonly used as other lines from the film that were spoken by Bogart and which were much more quickly taken into the public consciousness:

Play it once, Sam. For old times' sake.

Here's looking at you, kid.

Of all the gin joints in all the towns in all the world, she walks into mine.

The phrase appears a few times in print from the 1950s onward but didn't become commonplace until the 1990s. That may have been influenced by the eponymous 1995 film noir, directed by Brian Singer.

Each week we have an easy and a hard Sudoku puzzle. Just fill in the empty squares so that each horizontal and vertical line, and each section, has all the numbers 1 to 9.

● A MAN WALKS INTO A BAR...
The bartender asks "Why the long face?"
The man replies "I just found out my wife is sleeping with another man. I've decided I'm going to drink myself to death."
The bartender looks shocked and says "I'm sorry I can't help you kill yourself."
The man asks "Well what would you do in my situation?"
The bartender puffs himself up a bit and says "If I found out a guy was sleeping with my wife I wouldn't sit around feeling sorry for myself, I'd kill the guy."
The man jumps up from his stool and shouts "That's a great idea! Thanks!" and runs out of the bar. A couple hours goes by and the bartender is starting to get nervous when the man walks back into the bar with a smile on his face.
"Did you kill the guy?" The bartender asks nervously.
"Nope! I slept with your wife. Whiskey please."

● GYNAECOLOGIST
A gynaecologist had become fed up with malpractice insurance and paperwork and was burned out. Hoping to try another career where skillful hands would be beneficial, he decided to become a mechanic. He went to the local technical college , signed up for classes, attended diligently, and learned all he could. When the time for the practical exam approached, the gynecologist prepared carefully for weeks and completed the exam with tremendous skill. When the results came back, he was surprised to find that he had obtained a score of 150%. Fearing an error, he called the instructor, saying, "I don't want to appear ungrateful for such an outstanding result, but I wonder if there is an error in the grade."
The instructor said, "During the exam, you took the engine apart perfectly, which was worth 50% of the total mark. "You put the engine back together again perfectly, which is also worth 50% of the mark."
After a pause, the instructor added, "I gave you an extra 50% because you did it all through the exhaust pipe, which I've never seen done in my entire career.

● RABBITS
Two rabbits, who have spent their whole lives in a laboratory, are set free one night by an animal activist. They run off into the countryside and come across a field of carrots. Instinct takes over: they get stuck in and start to eat all the carrots they can, until they fall asleep. The following night they go into a field of cabbages. Again, they eat all they can and fall asleep. The night after that, they find a field full of lettuce, which, as before, they proceed to chomp through until they fall asleep. The next night they find themselves in a field full of lady rabbits, all of whom are willing partners. They do what comes naturally and embark upon an all-night session. In the morning, the older rabbit decides he wants to return to the lab. "What the hell for?" asks his pal. "We've had carrots, cabbages, lettuce and, best of all, those ladies last night. What's your problem?"
"Life is sweet, I agree," says the older one. "But the thing is, I'm dying for a fag"

"Doing business without advertising is like winking at a girl in the dark. You know what you are doing but nobody else does."

Man slashed sofa with kitchen knife because he thought his wife loved it more than him

A former football agent slashed his wife's sofa with a kitchen knife because he thought she loved it more than him. Peter Harrison, 57, had been warned not to contact Wendy after their relationship broke down. But he burst into the house after pushing part his son, grabbed a 10 inch knife and began to stab the sofa saying that she loved it more. In fear of what might happen next, his son and daughter barricaded themselves in a bedroom. A court heard he had previously sent messages to his estranged wife including threats to burn down the house and have them kicked out.

Harrison is a former agent of England striker Andy Carroll.

Judge Stephen Earl told Newcastle Crown Court: 'I have seen the level of damage you caused in the house. You felt she loved those inanimate things more than you so it was your way of taking out your frustrations on something.

'The level of fear that it caused is incalculable.'

He said: 'The one place someone is entitled to feel most safe is in their own home which is why this case does cross the custodial threshold.'

But Judge Earl opted to suspend the nine-month sentence for 18 months after Harrison admitted one charge of harassment, after hearing of his remorse since the incident in July last year.

The court heard he now works as a consultant selling his European football expertise to developing clubs in China and the Middle East.

Duncan Jones, defending, said Harrison regretted what had happened and accepted it was 'totally irrational'. 'He's 57 years old and has been out of trouble for over 20 years. He recognises now that his wife was unhappy but he had not appreciated at the time that she was unhappy. There had never been any violence or disagreements for 23 years. It was a very sudden change to his circumstances which he struggled to cope with.'

He said: 'He has accepted the relationship is over and there will be no repeat of the incident. He has a very low risk of re-offending.'

Someone has actually made a porn film called, 'Hard Brexxxit'

For most people in Britain, Brexit isn't a subject that tends to make us horny – it usually just causes pure, boiling anger.

But someone is making a porno based on Brexit – with a busty Theresa May lookalike called 'Teaser May', and a Donald Trump who somehow has even worse hair than the real thing.

It's not the first Brexit porn, of course – that honour goes to Chuck Tingle's unforgettable ebook 'Pounded by the Pound'.

The film's made by Television X – who previously made another hard-hitting political porno entitled, 'Aggie Snatcher: The Iron Lady Garden' in 2012.

Are we better in or out? Is Theresa secretly a remoaner?

Will Britain decide not to withdraw in the end – and just plunge back in?

Presumably we'll find out the answers when Television X release Hard Brexxit later this year.

Directions: From Hua Hin go north on the Klong (Canal) Road through the traffic lights and turn left at the blue bridge with the water tower next to it, then immediately right before the 7-11. Follow this road for approximately 1.5 km and you will find us on the right opposite Tropical Hill.

● ON THE ROAD AGAIN

At last - the answer to all of Thailands' driving problems. The length of the driver training course is to be increased from 5 to 15 hours. And as if that isn't enough the private driving schools will also be responsible for testing their own pupils!

Clearly a lot of thought has gone into ensuring that the country begins to claw its' way back down from almost top of the heap in terms of road deaths, while at the same time keeping the owners of driving schools very happy. Although as with other initiatives there could well be a quite rapid U turn.

Looking back I dread to think what my own driving would have been like with just 5 hours training, and know that even 15 hours wouldn't have been enough to master the dreaded hill start and three point turn. But the freedom of the roads was one of those things most young Brits at that time just had to invest time and money on achieving. Not least because in the 60's having your own car could be the only way to ensure a little privacy from those pesky parents.

Talking about the three point turn, changes will take effect to the UK driving test on December 4th, when reversing round corners and that turn will no longer be tested, (although they will still be taught.) Instead the new test will include the use of sat nav. That should be fun. How many drivers do you know who take what the sat nav says as gospel? I know several who argue with them, which must be quite a distraction, so perhaps testing on the use of them won't be such a bad idea after all.

Right now though the distraction of mobile phones is one of the biggest threats to road safety, at least in the UK, and it seems our police are fighting a losing battle against the problem. But at least one very sensible new law has just been introduced, which allows doctors to instigate the removal of driving licences from those patients they consider medically unfit to drive any more. That should sort out a few of us doddery old baby boomers and keep death off the roads.

On the subject of doddery old baby boomers, our esteemed UK Foreign Secretary Boris Johnson came out with his best line ever last week, when he referred to Jeremy Corbyn as a 'mutton headed old mugwump'. The population was sent into a flurry of Googling to find out the meaning of 'mugwump', a word which, up until then, only fans of Roald Dahl had heard of. It turns out that its' origins came from the Native American term for a war leader, and later it came into use as a description for a political turncoat. Which just goes to show that Boris' privileged education hasn't been wasted, and that he really should avoid having his quotes printed in the Sun.

Meanwhile things are looking a little brighter around Hua Hin, where a swamp of sacred pink lotus has flowered for the first time in 10 years. Though not yet back to it's previous standard the display, in Sam Roi Yot National Park, is attracting visitors once more.

On This Day

This weeks'anniversaries include the launch of Chanel No. 5 perfume on May 5th 1941. (It's good to know that France was getting its' priorities right during the war.) While in Thailand May 5th marks a far more auspicious occasion with the coronation of His Late Majesty King Bhumibol in 1950.

And finally, readers and biscuit lovers will be delighted to know that a very brief internet dispute has been quickly nipped in the bud by McVitie's. The controversy was about whether the chocolate coating on Hobnobs and Dlgestives is on the top or bottom of the biscuits. FEATURED GAME

SATURDAY 29TH APRIL 2017
PREMIER LEAGUE
West Ham v Tottenham Hotspur 02:00

A key game for both teams; for the home side, mathematically they need three more points to be safe, although realistically they probably already are. For Spurs, a win here would bring them once again within a point of Chelsea, and would also guarantee them at least second place. A win for the Hammers would see them leap up to 9th position ahead of the other results later. West Ham are now unbeaten in their last four, keeping three clean sheets, but their home form has been patchy, and Spurs will relish the wide open spaces of the London Stadium, and are of course the form side of the league. However West Ham have had a habit of raining on Spurs parade, and the ground will be rocking. A lot will depend on how many of the home side's first choice players are available, but it is difficult to see anything other than an away win.

DON'T BET ON IT

GAMBLING 'BAD' INSISTS ORGANISATION RUNNING A SPORT THAT WOULD BE BROKE WITHOUT IT

● UK

The football association has banned Joey Barton for 18 months for doing the sort of thing football sponsors definitely want to see more of.

The FA explained that betting on football matches involving your team, even when you're not playing in them, is definitely bad, despite the plethora of adverts in football urging fans to do just that.

A spokesperson for the FA said, "We're in a difficult position. Obviously, we would like to say that gambling is a pernicious industry that is subtly ruining the purity of our national game – but on the other hand, it's an industry that does continue to write some lovely, lovely big cheques to both football tclubs and the TV channels showing our matches.

"So it's probably best all round if we just heavily punish Joey Barton for doing what the gambling adverts encourage you all to do, and stay silent on the obvious rank hypocrisy of taking such a position."

Above: Oi! Ray! The acceptable face of gambling

The announcement of Barton's punishment was delayed due to a break in the FA hearing, during which Ray Winstone went before reporters to explain that Bet365 were offering odds of 5-1 that Joey Barton would get a ban of 12 months or over.
