HAS THE HUA HIN JAZZ FESTIVAL FOUND IT'S MOJO AGAIN?

● HUA HIN

This weekend sees the return of the Jazz Festival to Hua Hin, a once annual event that has suffered some setbacks in recent years after it had established itself as a major draw for visitors to the town. The line up this year sees some familiar faces mixed with some new blood, and appears to be heading back towards the format that proved so successful in the early years of the event.

Artists from Thailand will be joined on two stages, an Open stage and the Main stage, by performers from Japan, Australia, USA, Denmark, and the UK. The Main stage will be located on the beach next to the Centara Grand Resort, while the Open stage will be on the beach access road that runs between Centara Villas and the Centara Grand, the continuation of Damnoernkasem Road (Soi 61), along with a number of other stalls and events in both areas.

Both stages will have acts on both Saturday 24th and Sunday 25th June, with the Open stage having a more fluid lineup which does not have a set schedule; the Main stage does have a schedule, beginning at 6pm and running to 11pm; the running order (Thai unless stated) on Saturday is Abacus (U.S.A.), Malene Mortensen (Denmark), Koh Mr.Saxman & The Sound Of Siam feat. Pui Duangpon/ Alex Foster /Vladimire Cetkar and JAZZKAMIKAZE (Denmark); on the Sunday the artists (in order) will be HUA HIN Connection Feat. Peter Gilligan, Asia7 feat. Thanis Sriklindee, The SwingKings, and the J-JAZZ All Stars (Japan). Entrance is free, but there will probably be some VIP areas that will have a charge. You can find full details and last minute updates on either the website, www.huahininterjazz.com, or Facebook page HuaHinJazzFest.

● A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

THIS WEEK IT IS....DRINK LIKE A FISH

Drink heavily, especially of alcoholic drink.

Clearly an allusion to fishes' close association with water and their apparent open-mouthed taking in of water. Freshwater fish actually take in water by absorption rather than by drinking, although sea fish do actively drink seawater.

The phrase is known since 1640 and appears in Fletcher and Shirley's The night-walker, or the little theife, from that date:

"Give me the bottle, I can drink like a Fish now, like an Elephant."

'Drink like an elephant' didn't catch on. There is a more recent potential boost to use 'drink like a fish' - at least for Californian Valley girls. In January 2005 a press release for the Dalian Fisherman's Song Maritime Biological Brewery in China, said that they had developed a fermentation process to make fish into wine. So now, you can 'drink, like, a fish'.

YOUR STARS

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

You won't be immortalized upon death, specifically, but people will come from miles around to see the Tomb of the Unknown Guy Who Tried to Eat a Whole 6-Foot Sub In 30 Seconds.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

It's not that she no longer loves you, it's that she never did. She is a plastic doll and cannot love.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

The smell still won't go away. It won't. It won't. It won't.

ARIES MAR 21 - APR 20

Sex with you is an earth-shattering experience, especially the part where hundreds of Indonesians lose their lives.

TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

For the last time: You do not have miraculous stigmata that cause you to bleed like the wounded Christ. You've been shot.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

You'll take a long trip on a luxurious passenger train and meet a diverse group of travelers, all of whom will later collaborate to murder you.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22

You've managed to maintain a little bit of mystery about yourself, but that will evaporate when they find the last two nurses' bodies.

LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

The stars only allowed you to keep that kitten because you promised you'd feed it and clean up after it. Now put it in the shoe box and say goodbye.

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

If there's one thing that gives you hope when all else fails—one small true thing that keeps you hanging on to this life—you sure haven't thought of it yet.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

After years of trying to cultivate a gruff-but-lovable persona, you've gotten as far as a pretty decent abusive-but-screwable.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

People are free to think whatever they want, but you're pretty sure the parking-lot attendant guys were the real heroes of Ferris Bueller's Day Off.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

You'll be diagnosed with a rare condition that makes it impossible for you to get started in the morning unless you have, like, three cups of coffee.

Got some great jokes?
Send them to us on submissions@awolonline.net

● TIME OFF
I rung up work this morning..
"My wife died last night." I explained. "I'm going to need some time off."
"Oh my goodness, that's awful." Replied the secretary. "We understand though, take as much time off as you need."
"Thank you." I said. "It'll be about 18 years, if I behave myself."

● GUESTS
An Irishman returns home and sees 16 crates of Guinness and a loaf of bread in the hallway.
He asks his brother if they were expecting company, and he said "No."
The first bloke then said "What's all this bread for then?"

● VETS
Chad took his dog to the vet.
"Doctor," he said sadly, "I"m afraid I"m going to have to ask you to cut off my dog"s tail."
The vet stepped back, "Chad, why should I do such a terrible thing?"
Chad replied, "Because my mother-in-law's arriving tomorrow, and I don"t want anything to make her think she is welcome."

● MATHEMATICS ROCKS!
"This next song is called Subtraction." "Take it away, boys."

● ARGUMENT
Last night I was in a bar when me and a friend got in an argument with some hard-looking guys; my mate quickly whispered to me "Let's pretend we're the police"..
Long story short, they kicked the hell out of us before we even got through the first verse of "Roxanne".

● WORRIED
When i heard an old man with a wrinkly face who everyone knew as Mr 'Cant' had passed away i was a bit worried it might be Harry Redknapp.

● GUINNESS
A Chinese man walks into a pub in West Belfast.
He orders a pint of stout, drinks half of it and then goes to the toilet.
He's no sooner gone than a bloke gets up out of his seat and goes up to the bar and farts in the Chinese man's Guinness.
The Chinese man returns but the barman stops him from drinking telling him what had just happened.
The Chinese man goes over to the guy responsible and shouts 'Ah you fart in ma Guinness?'
And the guy says 'No, I'm Gerry Adams'

● YOBS
Some local yobs stole 20 crates of Red Bull from our local corner shop.
I don't know how they can sleep at night.

● AIRPORTS, SPACE FOOD AND QUIET REFLECTION

It's that time of the year when any annual decorating projects take place here in the home of THAB. Those jobs many of us try to put off, or simply hire someone else to do, but which this year bring with them the sobering thought of hundreds of people in London who no longer have a home at all. That tragic high rise fire in Kensington, which has left many without family members, friends or neighbours, and all of them without their possessions or hope for the future.

Enquiries into the cause of the fire, and more importantly why it spread so quickly, could take months if not years, but London Mayor Sadiq Khan has pointed the finger at years of neglect by both local and national government, and subject to the formal investigation there seems no reason to doubt him.

We Brits like to think that our country is a world leader in the fields of construction and safety - well ahead of countries like Thailand for example, yet this isn't the first time we have been found to be sadly lacking. Across the UK there are hundreds of similar high rise blocks of flats, many dating back to the 1960's, when the ideal solution to housing problems was to build upwards.

In fact at the time it did seem like a sensible idea, and here in Hull at least those flats were not intended to house large families, so the realisation that families of up to six people, possibly more, were housed way up there in Grenfell Tower was a shock. As well as highlighting failures in building and maintainance, the issue of families with children having to live like that in what should be a 'first world' country surely has to be high on the agenda.

Everything else which is going on pales into insignificance this week. It isn't easy to lighten up, but let's at least try. First with the introduction of fish and chips into space.

On June 13th the honour of sending the first portion of this UK delicacy into space went to Hull based and award winning Papas chippy, and the fish was of course haddock. It was Papas way of celebrating their award, and they did it in style with a wedge of lemon on top of the meal. Something which is still considered to be quite posh in these parts.

Space being what it is the haddock, chips and lemon had to be firmly glued together in its' container, and only stayed up there a few hours, hanging on to a weather balloon before falling back to earth. But plans are also afoot for the launch of a pattie and chips into space on June 27th.

For those who don't know what a pattie is - probably most of you - basically it is seasoned mashed potato battered and deep fried, traditionally served with chips. A feast of carbs which can be enhanced by liberal applications of salt, vinegar and ketchup. Virtually unknown outside Hull (no surprise there) the meal has been chosen by the BBC as a way of introducing local children to science. The BBC Radio Humberside Space Mission is due to blast off this week, on June 23rd, although it might deliver a bigger blast if accompanied by a traditional portion of mushy peas.

Good news for expats last week with the findings of a survey of the worlds 10 worst airports. The survey, by 'Air Help', a company specialising in flight compensation cases, found that while Suvarnhabumi airport ranked at number 9, the UK did even worse with Gatwick, Stansted and Edinburgh all in the bottom 10.

The survey, which rated 76 airports for punctuality, quality and service also covered the worlds 10 best, with top place in that category going to Changi airport, Singapore. No surprise there then.

On the subject of airports, on June 23rd 1940 Amsterdams' Schipol airport became a target for allied bombing. Opened as a military airbase in 1916, by 1940 Schipol was also a civilian airport housing most of the KLM fleet, and had a huge production facility for military aircraft. It suffered heavy damage in 1940 when Germany invaded Holland shortly before the allied raid, and again when German forces retreated at the end of the war leaving destruction in their wake.

Given the way in which Schipol bounced back after the war and grew into what it is today, Departure Gate D6 leaves a lot to be desired.

And finally - also last week Thailand became the scene for one of those 'don't try this at home' incidents, when a zoo keeper in Samui put his head in a crocodiles' mouth. The croc seemed to be mesmerised as the keeper stroked its' open jaws with a thin stick, but soon became bored with the game. You have been warned....

MATCH REPORT HUA HIN CITY FC 0 – 1 NONTHABURI FC

Probably the largest crowd of the season turned out at Takiab Stadium to witness the changes that had happened since the end of Leg 1, which was just 3 weeks ago i.e. Many Leg 1 players had returned to their studies at university; A lot of new players had been recruited for Leg 2; The club had recruited a new head coach, Sebastien Roques; and the team would be wearing their brand new kit, brandishing new sponsors.

Expectations were very high, and the team played well in all areas of the field except where it mattered – in front of goal. Even then, they could be excused because the Nonthaburi keeper played out of his skin. Unfortunately, we still need a dedicated centre-forward. That position should be filled in a couple of days' time.

Despite the team not being quite complete, balls were going from defence to Dorian in midfield, who in very quick time moved them out to the wingers who were also very good. Movement of the ball was excellent. Hua Hin put ball after ball into the danger area, but were thwarted by the keeper or giant centre-half every time.

Nonthaburi's goal, which came midway through the first half was a bad mistake in several areas. Wichan came for a ball, leaving his goal undefended. Defenders were watching the ball, rather than their man. In the end it was a simple header into an empty goal mouth – game over.

From the minute they took the lead, Nonthaburi employed some very frustrating gamesmanship. They were constantly disrupting the flow of the game by feigning injury, and a Hua Hin player would put the ball out of play while everybody waited for the player to stand up again. This tactic was employed regularly for at least 30 minutes before the referee started booking players for deliberate time wasting. When it is so blatant, one wonders why the losing team participates in this 'gentlemanly conduct', when the conduct of the players feigning injury is far from gentlemanly.

All in all, Hua Hin's football has improved in many ways, and the results will start coming. When we gain confidence by putting a couple of results together, the side will become increasingly stronger.

FOOTBALL GOSSIP

Premier League champions Chelsea have made a move for Bayern Munich and Poland striker Robert Lewandowski, 28. (Daily Mirror)

Tottenham want £45m for England defender Kyle Walker, 27, who is a target for Manchester City. (Daily Star)

Arsenal have told Barcelona that defender Hector Bellerin, 22, is not for sale and are confident the Spaniard will stay this summer. (Independent)

And the North London club have opened talks with midfielder Aaron Ramsey, 26, over a contract extension to avoid further uncertainty over his future. (Daily Telegraph)

Juventus have lined up Manchester United defender Matteo Darmian, 27, as their preferred replacement for defender Dani Alves, who looks set to leave the Serie A champions. (Goal.com)

Alves, 34, is ready to agree a two-year deal with Manchester City once he resolves his departure from Juventus. (Daily Mail)

Manchester United would be Cristiano Ronaldo's only choice if he opted for a Premier League return, according to the 32-year-old's advisers. (Daily Record)

But Real Madrid president Florentino Perez has described the speculation over Cristiano Ronaldo's future as "very strange" and says there are no plans to sell the forward. (Talksport)

Swansea City will sign Chelsea striker Tammy Abraham, 19, on a one-year loan deal. (Daily Mirror)

Chelsea are planning to loan out 22-year-old centre-back Kurt Zouma this summer as they look to sign Juventus defender Leonardo Bonucci, 30, and Southampton's Virgil van Dijk, 25. (Evening Standard)

West Brom are set to offer defender Jonny Evans, 29, a £100,000-a-week contract, which will make him the best paid player in the club's history. (Sun)

Meanwhile, the Baggies have made a £12m offer for Southampton striker Jay Rodriguez, 27, although his former club Burnley and Newcastle United are also interested. (Daily Mail)

Chelsea are close to the signing of Middlesbrough winger Adama Traore, 21. (Sport via Daily Star)

THAT PESKY TAXMAN

CRISTIANO RONALDO HOPEFUL OF MOVE TO CAYMAN ISLANDS

● UK

It has emerged today that Cristiano Ronaldo has voiced his intentions to leave Real Madrid after being accused of tax fraud.

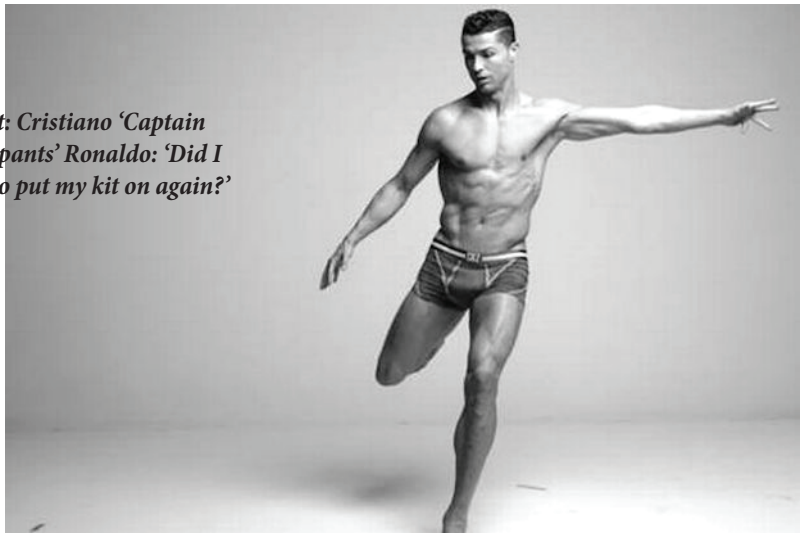
The Portuguese international has been in the headlines for all the wrong reasons this week, after being accused by Spanish prosecutors of defrauding authorities of £12.9 million in unpaid taxes between 2011 and 2014.

The 32-year-old joined Los Blancos in 2009 and has lifted the Champions League on three occasions during his time in Spain.

The shock news will have alerted European giants such as Bayern Munich, Paris St Germain and Manchester United into plotting a big money transfer.

However, Ronaldo is surprisingly keen on the prospect of joining many clubs within the Caribbean.

When questioned about what attracted him to the places, Ronaldo responded by stating, "There are many reasons for my decision. The lovely weather, the nice beaches, I also hear the tax regimes are quite friendly."



Right: Cristiano 'Captain Underpants' Ronaldo: 'Did I forget to put my kit on again?'

He added, "It's been very difficult being victimised over the past week.

"I just want to move to a country where I can continue to get paid for playing football and keep as much of that money as possible. Is that too much to ask?

"No, I don't know any specific clubs in the Cayman Islands or the Bahamas, but as long as it's tax-free, then it's good enough for me."
