TOUCHDOWN?

AIR ASIA FLIGHTS TO KUALA LUMPUR COULD START BY END OF 2017

● HUA HIN

The news late last week that Air Asia has applied to operate daily flights between Hua Hin and Kuala Lumpur came too late for our last issue, but is welcome news for the town should it become a reality. Earlier this year the local hotels association urged for the development of the airport and routes available, and it seems as though they are going to get what they pushed for, although it remains to be seen firstly whether the Thai airports authority approves the application, and secondly whether the demand will be there for the service.

There are, of course, some concerns for residents; while it is only likely to be one flight a day, those living under or near the flightpath may be inconvenienced by noise, and the other main issue could be the potential for increased traffic around departure and arrival times. These would, however, be a bigger concern should this route be successful and extra flights and additional routes are added as a consequence, and the trade off between increased prosperity for the town and those negative potential impacts would be much harder to justify. Having said that, more domestic flights to destinations like Phuket, Trat and Hat Yai would be welcomed by most residents we believe.

There have been two previous attempts to operate international flights to and from Hua Hin, the last one being Berjaya Air in 2012, who also flew for a short time to Subang airport in Kuala Lumpur. Several domestic routes have also come and gone, so whether this route will succeed is not guaranteed, and Air Asia also want landing fees and rental charges for airport facilities waived in the initial stages of operation to get the route started, which indicates some caution on their part. A decision is expected on the application within the next ten days, and if approved, flights could begin by the end of the year.

● A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

THIS WEEK IT IS....IN SPADES

In abundance; very much.

It's easy to believe that this expression derives from the imagery of digging with spades and that 'in spades' is just short for 'in spadefuls'. However, the spades concerned here aren't the garden tools but the suit of cards. Spades is the highest ranking suits in the game of Contract Bridge, a very popular pastime in the USA in the early 20th century, which is when and where the phrase originated.

Despite the agricultural-sounding name and the shovel-like shape, the suit in cards has nothing directly to do with garden spades. Playing Cards originated in Asia and spread across Europe around the 14th century, arriving in England a little later than in Spain, Italy and Germany.

The Italian versions of early cards used the suits Cups, Swords, Coins and Batons, which, on migration to England, became Hearts, Spades, Diamonds and Clubs. The image for Spades on English and French cards looks somewhat like that of the German Acorn or Leaf suits, but its origin is revealed by its name rather than its shape. The Spanish and Italian for sword is 'espada' and 'spada' respectively, hence the suit 'Swords' became anglicized as 'Spades'.

We have been 'calling a spade a spade' for many centuries, but the expression 'in spades' is a 20th century US coinage. The term was often used before that in relation to card games, where Bridge contracts might be entered into in the minor suits of Clubs or Diamonds or, for the higher scores, 'in Hearts' or, best of all, 'in Spades'.

The figurative meaning, that is, the non-cards-related 'very greatly' meaning, isn't found before the 1920s. The American journalist and writer Damon Runyon used the expression that way in a piece for Hearst's International magazine, in October 1929:

"I always hear the same thing about every bum on Broadway, male and female, including some I know are bums, in spades, right from taw."

It isn't possible to be sure that the figurative 'in spades' derives from Bridge, but the coincidence of the time and place of the origin of the expression and the popularity of the card game certainly does suggest a connection.

YOUR STARS

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

It turns out that it's neither the size of the wave nor the motion of the ocean that really matters, but the length and girth of your penis.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

You'll realize too late that there's more to life than eating instant mashed potatoes and drinking root beer while the kiddie pool you're laying in slowly fills up with your excrement.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

You'll learn that there are some things that money can't buy. For instance, with your record, you're forbidden from approaching close enough to purchase Girl Scout cookies.

ARIES MAR 21 - APR 20

You will be torn between two equally worthy suitors, one who is kind, selfless, outgoing, supportive, and loving, and one who is attractive.

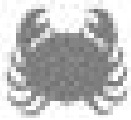
TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

While it is true that all-knowing God sees every sparrow that falls, He finds it a lot more amusing to watch you tumble down the stairs a couple times a week.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

They say that knowing is half the battle, but they never talk about how the other half is tactical deployment and careful use of grenades.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22



Your self-destructive behavior is beginning to get out of control, which is mostly notable due to how long you were able to control your behavior while destroying yourself.

LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

You'll be pleased to find that science has long since achieved your dream of creating a smaller, cuddlier, domesticated version of the tiger.

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

Scientists will announce the discovery of sunspots spelling out your name this week just to see if they can get you to stare at the sun all day.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

The natives will shrink in terror when you demonstrate your lighter, as even they know that smoking is not at all good for you.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

Losing weight will improve your performance in all areas of life, but bolting on new shock absorbers is painful and counterproductive.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

You'll learn too late that while it may be easy and even justifiable to ridicule the French, they take their full-contact judo very seriously.

Got some great jokes?
Send them to us on submissions@awolonline.net

● LOTTERY
"If you win the lottery the first thing I want you to buy me is a boob job and facelift" said my 49 yr old girlfriend as I was checking my numbers last night,
"Well actually the first things I would get is a reconditioned engine and a respray for my Mondeo" I replied
"Why bother tarting that old thing up, you might as well get a new one" she retorted
"My point exactly"

● EUREKA!
I think I've come up with a solution for global warming? Everyone in the world takes a 5 litre can fills it with sea water and put it under the stairs at home, job done.

● ISAY, I SAY, I SAY
This morning I changed a light bulb, later I crossed the road then I walked into a bar

It was then I realised my life is a joke.

● AUSTERITY
Due to the recession and to save on energy costs, the light at the end of the tunnel will be turned off.

● PARROT
A woman was thinking about finding a pet to help keep her company at home. She decided she would like to find a beautiful parrot; it wouldn't be as much work as say a dog, and it would be fun to hear it speak. She went to a pet shop and immediately spotted a large beautiful parrot. She went to the owner of the store and asked how much. The owner said it was $50. Delighted that such a rare looking and beautiful bird wasn't more expensive, she agreed to buy it.
The owner looked at her and said, "Look, I should tell you first that this bird used to live in a whorehouse. Sometimes it says pretty vulgar stuff."
The woman thought about this, but decided she had to have the bird. She said she would buy it anyway. The petshop owner sold her the bird and she took it home. She hung the bird's cage up in her living room and waited for it to say something. The bird looked around the room, then at her, and said, "New house, new madam."
The woman was a bit shocked at the implication, but then thought that's not so bad. A couple hours later, the woman's two teenage daughters returned from school. When they inspected the bird, it looked at them and said, "New house, new madam, new whores."
The girls and the woman were a bit offended at first, but than began to laugh about the situation. A couple of hours later, the woman's husband came home from work. The bird looked at him and said, "New house, new madam, new whores, Hi George!"

Directions: From Hua Hin go north on the Klong (Canal) Road through the traffic lights and turn left at the blue bridge with the water tower next to it, then immediately right before the 7-11. Follow this road for approximately 1.5 km and you will find us on the right opposite Tropical Hill.

● THIS IS REAL LIFE

Before you all rush off to book your flights from Hua Hin to Kuala Lumpur for a bit of Christmas shopping, why not consider going to Chiang Mai instead? After all it has been voted Asias' best place to visit. Other advantages are that by December the rains should have eased off enough to allow you to visit the waterfalls, and at least you can be sure that transport will actually be available to get you there. On the down side travelling from Hua Hin to Chiang Mai by road could be a calculated risk, given the way Thailands' road death toll continues to rise. But where there is a down side there is always hope for improvement, which should be achieved if everyone heeds proposals from the powers that be, and begin to be nice to each other.

Back in the real world - or what passes for it in the UK - it is impossible to miss the upcoming 20th anniversary of the death of Princess Diana, and by the time you read this her sons William and Harry will have aired personal memories of their mother in a TV programme. Now I am not anti-royalist. They do some good things and attract tourists. It can't be easy to be born into a life which is mapped out for them from day one, despite the privileges that life entails. To live with constant media attention, every wardrobe malfunction or bad hair day broadcast around the world. It is hardly surprising that one or two in the past have abandoned that kind of life, or, like Princess Anne, been strong enough to strike a balance between duty and personal life.

They are all human, as Prince Harry has shown this year by admitting to needing help in finally coming to terms with his mothers' death. An event no child should have to face, but the sad truth is that many do, albeit not so publicly. And it is also true that most people will, sooner or later, lose their parents. It is something which most of us can deal with privately and in our own ways, but not if your mother happens to have been the most iconic royal in the world.

Prince William has said that he wants his own children to grow up with fond memories of their grandmother Diana, and of course they should know what she was really like. But the fact is they haven't really known her at all. Anyone who was born missing a grandparent or two will know full well that no amount of family albums and reminiscing can make them seem real. To a child they are usually just a part of their family history which has gone, remembered only by parents, aunts and uncles.

Unfortunately next months' 20th anniversary seems to have provided opportunities for the lid to be lifted on yet more stories about Diana, together with a plan for a 10 part US drama called 'Feud'. Due to begin production this autumn the drama will of course focus on the time between her divorce and death, and is bound to be a winner. So we know that it will be impossible for Prince Williams' children to ever be completely free from the speculation and stories surrounding the grandmother they never knew. No doubt if they are interested enough they will decide for themselves later, using family reminiscences and palace archives to fill any gaps. For now, once that anniversary is over, maybe William and Harry should think about leaving the dust to finally begin to settle, out of respect not only for Diana, but for those children and their 'grandma Camilla'. Because as long as they continue to talk so openly others will continue to perpetuate the myth.

MATCH REPORT LOOK E-SAN FC 1 – 1 HUA HIN CITY FC

It was so strange returning to a venue we'd only played at 2½ months ago for yet another league match. However, this time weather conditions were good and the Hua Hin side were vastly different to the team who played here in May.

We were a little weakened in defence this week with the unexpected injury to Ali M during the pre-match warm up. That combined with the continued absence of Roland, we couldn't afford further injury in that position. The inevitable happened, and we did suffer another unfortunate injury half way through the match, and top goal scorer Ali G was forced to play the 2nd half in defence.

I'm not sure if this was a physical match, or whether the referee had a new whistle, and wanted to test it. Rarely did we seem to go more than 20 seconds without his whistle being blown. I actually started to believe it was a sympathy seeking tactic by Look E-San trying to disrupt the flow of the game, whilst picking up free kicks in the process. Thankfully, the referee did not see fit to blow his whistle when there was blatant diving inside the penalty area. Hua Hin had the perfect start within 3 minutes of the start when Wuttichai found himself unmarked in the penalty area, and a loose ball fell at his feet. He didn't need any further invitation to blast the ball home. The Look E-San goal after 17 minutes was a bit of a rare defensive error by Hua Hin. A strong defence has been Hua Hin's trademark all season, but the Look E-San defender was left unmarked, just off the centre of the Hua Hin penalty area. His finish must have been the easiest goal he scored all season, giving Natchapon little chance.

I think Hua Hin had the better of the first half, although they couldn't execute a clean finish. I've already said it was a physical match, and this involved Hua Hin injuries, and a change in formation. Dorian's ball distribution was very good, and it was good to see him forming a partnership with Arnon, who came close several times. It's such a shame we lost Ali G from the attack. I think Dorian, Ali G, Amos and Arnon could be a formidable strike force at this level. Because of the personnel change, I think the second half was fairly even. A special mention goes to Nattawut, who I don't remember featuring in a league match before. He came on with about 20 minutes to play, and did impress with his energy and obvious skill.

It was not the result we were looking for. A win would have taken us further up the league, but this result saw us drop a place. It will be a tough test at Kanchanaburi next week, where we take on Champions League contenders, Muangkan Utd.

Gunners midfielder Jack Wilshere wants to stay close to London if he leaves this summer, with West Ham the 25-year-old's preferred destination. (Independent)

Stoke will be busy in the transfer market over the next few weeks but are not expected to move for Arsenal's 23-year-old winger Alex Oxlade-Chamberlain. (Stoke Sentinel)

MAN CITY TO SCRAPE BY WITH JUST 673,832 PLAYERS AFTER KOLAROV SALE TO ROMA

● UK

Plucky underdogs Manchester City are going to do their best to survive the season with a mere 673,832 players on their books after the weekend sale of Aleks Kolarov to Roma.

"Well, ideally we'd want to start the season at a full strength 673,833 players," said manager Pep Guardiola.

"But we're a resilient group, if we can't get the replacement for Aleks and have to manage with just 673,832 players, then… well, you know, we're fighters."

The majority of players who are on Manchester City's books are currently out on loan to lower league teams or foreign leagues clubs – there is a team in the Second division that is currently made up entirely of Manchester City loanees, and an entire league in South America made up of Manchester City teenagers looking for experience.

One promising young Polish midfielder is on loan to a family in Bridlington to do keepie-uppies in their back garden.

"Well, we'd never have been able to afford as talented a player as Tomasz to stand in our back garden doing keepie-uppies," said Simon Williams, who had a Mexican defender on loan from Chelsea last season to do headers against the wall.

"So these loans work out brilliantly for us as we get a top player doing keepie-uppies in the back garden, and Tomasz gets all the experience that comes from doing keepie-uppies in the back garden."

It is thought that by 2024, all teams in all leagues across the planet will be made up solely with promising young players on loan from Manchester City.
