HEALTHY DOGS ROUNDED UP AND SENT TO 'INHUMANE' SHELTERS

● PRANBURI

As we have reported many times before, the issue of dogs in both our local area, and Thailand as a whole, is a difficult one, with on the one side those concerned about how stray dogs interact with humans in a negative way (road accidents, health and safety concerns), while on the other side those who wish to see dogs treated with care, compassion and in a way that benefits all of us.

One of the latter is a Thai Nun in Pranburi, who is well known for taking care of hundreds of dogs and cats, with the assistance of donations and sponsors, at a temple in the area. The animals in her care are checked, treated and vaccinated, and many have been successfully adopted, but last weekend the majority of her dogs were removed from the temple and were to be placed in shelters that some have described as 'dog hell'. It has also been reported that the accommodation they had at the temple has also been taken down. The reason for this has not been made entirely clear, although some reports have suggested the risk of rabies as the excuse, although this seems odd as these dogs were vaccinated.

The Nun, Khun Nid Sirimara, is devastated, after years of dedicating herself to looking after these animals, and is now trying to both retrieve the dogs, and find a new home for them. Friends have offered some land, but much work needs to be done there to provide a home for both the Nun and the animals, so we are appealing on her behalf to our readers to assist in any way you can. Friends and organisations are rallying round to help, but more funds are needed, and should you wish to donate you can do so via Paypal to Sue_j_r@hotmail.com (Indicate: Personal so no charge for sender or receiver, and add a note: For Nun and her dogs). For legal reasons we are unable to go into more detail on these events, but you can find more information in the shared posts on our Facebook page, AWOL expat.

● DETECTIVE TEST
A Policeman was testing 3 blondes, who were training to become detectives.
To test their skills in recognizing a suspect, he shows the 1st blonde a picture for 5 seconds and then hides it. "This is your suspect, how would you recognize him?"
The first blonde answers " That's easy, we'll catch him fast because he only has one eye" The policeman says "Well...Uh.. that's because the picture shows his profile so you can only see one eye!"
Slightly flustered by this ridiculous response, he flashes the picture for 5 seconds at the second blonde and asked her "This is your suspect, how would you recognize him?"
The second blonde giggles, flips her hair and says "Ha! He'd be easy to catch because he only has one ear!" The policeman angrily responds, "What's the matter with you two? Of course only one eye and ear are showing because it's a picture of his profile! Is that the best answer you can come up with?"
Extremely frustrated at this point, he shows the picture to the third blonde and in a very testy voice asks "This is your suspect, how would you recognize him?" He adds quickly ".... think hard before giving a stupid blonde answer"
The Blonde looks at the picture intently for a moment and says "HMMMM... the suspect is wearing contact lenses."
The policeman is surprised and speechless, because he really doesn't know himself if the suspect wears contacts or not. "Well, that is a good answer.. wait here for a few minutes while I check his file, and I'll get back to you on that"
He leaves the room and goes to his office, checks the suspect's file in his computer and comes back with a beaming smile on his face. "WoW! I can't believe it...it's TRUE! The suspect does in fact wear contacts lenses. Good work! How were you able to make such an astute observation?"
"That's easy" the blonde replied. "He can't wear glasses because he only has one eye and one ear!"

● SAMURAI
Back in the time of the Samurai there was a powerful emperor who needed a new head Samurai, so he sent out a declaration throughout the country he was searching for one.
A year passed, and only 3 people showed up: a Japanese Samurai, a Chinese Samurai, and a Jewish Samurai.
The emperor asked the Japanese Samurai to come in and demonstrate why he should be head Samurai. The Japanese Samurai opened a match box, and out popped a bumblebee. Whoosh, went his sword, and the bumblebee dropped dead on the ground in 2 pieces. The emperor exclaimed: "That is impressive!"
The emperor then asked the Chinese Samurai to come in and demonstrate his skills. The Chinese Samurai also opened matchbox, and out buzzed a fly. Whoosh, Whoosh, went his sword, and the fly dropped dead on the ground in 4 small pieces. The emperor exclaimed: "That is really VERY impressive!"
The emperor then had the Jewish Samurai demonstrate why he should be the head Samurai. The Jewish Samurai also opened a matchbox, and out flew a gnat. His flashing sword went Whoooooosh, Whoooooosh. But the gnat was still alive and flying around.
The emperor, obviously disappointed, asked: "After all of that, why is the gnat not dead?"
The Jewish Samurai smiled. "Well," he replied, "circumcision is not meant to kill."

● PET SHOP
I walked into a pet shop today and said, "I'll have those two cute baby rabbits in the window please."
"No problem." she smiled, "Would you like anything else?"
"Yes," I replied, "I'll have one of those big things that they go inside."
"A hutch?" she asked. I said, "No, a snake."

● ANOTHER DOCTOR
An 18th-century vagabond in England, exhausted and famished, came to a roadside Inn with a sign reading: "George and the Dragon."
He knocked. The Innkeeper's wife stuck her head out a window. "Could ye spare some victuals?"
The woman glanced at his shabby, dirty clothes. "No!" she shouted.
"Could I have a pint of ale?". "No!" she shouted.
"Could I at least use your privvy?". "No!" she shouted again.
The vagabond said, "Might I please...?"
"What now?" the woman screeched, not allowing him to finish.
"D'ye suppose," he asked, "that I might have a word with George?"

"Doing business without advertising is like winking at a girl in the dark. You know what you are doing but nobody else does."

● CRACKING THE CODE

Yes it fooled me as well. The announcement that the TAT (Tourism Authority of Thailand) plan to encourage more Hi End women to visit Pattaya didn't turn out to be quite what it first seemed did it? They actually meant Hi End women tourists who will spend their Hi End earnings on golf, spa treatments and plenty of posh food. Good thinking, but back to the real world .....

Alan Turing, computer scientist, mathematician and code breaker amongst other things, is often credited as the father of modern computing and artificial intelligence. It could be argued that Charles Babbage got there first in 1830 when he came up with the idea for the first programmable computer, but Babbages concept was never built. Turing had a similar problem with his own Automatic Computing Engine (ACE) in the late 1940's, which was considered too difficult to engineer and build, but did succeed with a smaller version in 1950.

Turing had a brilliant but short career. Born in 1912 he progressed through private schools to Cambridge University, then accepted a place at Princeton University where he studied for his Ph.D in mathematical logic. It was at Princeton that he developed the Turing machine, a computing machine which brought together the fundamental logical principles of the digital computer, but it would be his code breaking work during World War 2 which would earn him huge acclaim.

In September 1939 he was recruited to Bletchley Park, the centre of UK intelligence gathering, where he spent the whole of the war, and in 1945 was recruited to another UK government post with the National Physical Laboratory, where he designed the (then un-buildable) ACE and its' smaller successor.

Turings' final years were spent as Deputy Director of the computing laboratory at Manchester University, where little was known of the person behind the academic. Hardly surprising back then, because Turing was homosexual in a time when it was still illegal. In fact during his time at Manchester his relationship with another man resulted in a conviction for gross indecency, for which he accepted a course of chemical castration as an alternative to a prison sentence.

Then last year a stash of Turings' documents, including letters, discovered in a filing cabinet at the University, revealed much more about what he might have gone on to achieve. Among other things they show that Turing had an interest in developing computers which could play games and compete against each other, but that 'there always seems to be something more important to be done.' They also reveal that he was conducting his own research into radical new areas of computing, and was being asked to lecture at the worlds most prestigious universities.

But the documents also pose some questions. Turing had been turning down requests to lecture at American colleges, and in 1953 wrote to a colleague about a cybernetics conference in the US which he had declined to attend, saying that 'I would not like the journey, and I detest America'. Strange words from someone who had gained his Doctorate and developed his ground breaking Turing Machine in the States.

On June 7th 1954 Turing died from cyanide poisoning at the age of 41, but although the verdict on his death was suicide some doubt still remains. This was a man who had gained first hand knowledge of WW2 intelligence while at Bletchley Park, who for some reason had developed a dislike of America, and who had suffered mentally and physically because of his sexuality. The truth may never be known, but we do know that one of Turings' most prophetic quotes was 'I propose to consider the question - "can machines think?" '

September 22nd 1903 saw the patent granted for an item that must have been very well received by parents, and is still in use. The humble ice cream cone (or cornet as we know it in the UK) What would we do without it?

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

This will be a good week to renew the bonds of friendship, especially the ones on the nurse you keep chained to the basement water heater.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

While it's true that only God can judge you, it also won't take Him more than a couple of seconds.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

Your biggest mistake wasn't assuming there was some kind of secret to life. It was assuming that it was the kind of secret that would make your life better.

ARIES MAR 21 - APR 20

Love has been compared to many, many things, but thanks to your unique outsider's perspective, you'll be the first to spot its uncanny resemblance to the international bauxite market.

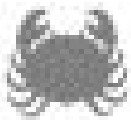
TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

Although it's true that violence never solves anything, it turns out it's just fine for a quick temporary fix in many situations.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

They say that it's not how well the bear dances that's impressive, but that the bear can dance at all, which is kind of insulting considering the number of hours you spent teaching it.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22



You'll come to in a New Orleans brothel between a dead politician's daughter and a duffel bag full of cash, but unfortunately it's all easily explained and is cleared up within minutes.

LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

Okay, the stars realize that last week's prediction of increasingly lower temperatures may not have been that impressive, but this week's incubus invasion should make up for it.

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

The old saying that there are no second acts in life may or may not be true for everyone, but you're going to be more concerned with how they just skipped ahead to the ending.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

You'll singlehandedly embody the dreams of an entire nation when you get a very large food item for free after eating said item in less than an hour.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

You'll soon provide proof that a small, dedicated group of people can change the world by accidentally driving a rented moving truck into a petroleum storage facility.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

Your week will be so varied, interesting, and surprising that eventually the coroner will just give up, shrug, and write "heart failure" in the spot marked "Cause of Death."

● A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

THIS WEEK IT IS....A RUM DO

An event that is disreputable or strange.

The 'rum' in 'rum do' is an adjective meaning 'odd' or 'strange', and nothing to do with the drink rum. The rum has reached us by a tortuous route. In the 16th century the adjectival meaning was almost precisely the opposite of the current sense - it then meant 'excellent' or 'great'. In A Dictionary of Slang and Unconventional English, Eric Partridge lists no fewer than 93 'rum' phrases, many using this earlier meaning; for example:

rum buffer - an excellent dog rum chant - a good song rum clout - a fine handkerchief rum doxy - a handsome whore rum kicks - breeches of gold brocade

These terms have now entirely disappeared from everyday language. What is unusual is that phrase with these phrase with the opposite meaning were all in use at the same time as the above:

rum customer - a dangerous fellow rum do (or 'rum go') - a strange event rum phiz - an odd face or countenance rum gagger - a teller of tall tales rum touch - an odd or eccentric fellow

There must be many more than those on Partridge's list as 'rum' could be used to precede almost anything, but the only ones to survive have the 'odd, perplexing' meaning; for example, 'rum do' and 'rum customer'.

Why the meaning of 'rum' altered isn't clear. It may be that many of the phrases that employed the earlier 'good' meaning applied to people that were good at lawbreaking or disreputable behaviour; for example:

rum bubber - a person skilled at stealing silver tankards from inns rum fun - a clever swindle rum diver - a skilled pickpocket rum mizzler - a thief, adapt at escaping rum padder - an upper-class highwayman

It could be, and this is speculation, that 'rum' migrated from simply 'good' and came to mean 'good at being bad'. From there it is a short distance to 'disreputable' and 'strange'.

Man protests in underpants until police give him back his bong and weed

Direct action can work to achieve change – just ask Jeffrey Shaver.

He successfully lobbied to have his bong and marijuana returned by police, after standing outside court in his boxers for a month.

'RETURN MY BONG,' one of his signs read in large letters, while another read 'RETURN MY MARIJUANA.'

The 31-year-old also had a T-shirt made which said 'Return my weed and bong,' for days when he felt like wearing clothes.

It all began when he was arrested for possession of weed, with police seizing his drugs and paraphernalia.

Police were called initially when Jeffrey caused a disturbance near vending machines at a hospital where he was being treated for a panic attack.

He was charged with possession of marijuana, which has now been dropped.

'The action of the Crown on this marijuana case has been completely unreasonable,' Jeffrey told The Record. 'There should have been no need to continue (protesting) for such a long time.'

He should be getting his bong and weed back soon – but now has another problem to deal with.

Police have charged him with public nudity over his protest in a thong outside Kitchener court in Ontario, Canada.

Unusual deposit: Geneva loos blocked by €100,000 cash

Prosecutors say there is no immediate reason to think it is dirty money, but want to be sure of its origin.

Toilets in Geneva have been blocked by €100,000 (£88,000) in high-denomination euro banknotes - prompting prosecutors to seek the money's origin.

Swiss media said the first blockage occurred in the vault at UBS bank in Geneva's financial district.

A few days later, back in May, three nearby bistros were found with 500-euro notes stuffed down the pan.

Vincent Derouand, from the Geneva prosecutor's office, said that throwing money away is not a crime - and nor is blocking a toilet.

There was no immediate reason to think it was dirty money, he said.

Mr Derouand explained: "We are not so interested in the motive but we want to be sure of the origin of the money."

It has reportedly cost many thousands of pounds to unblock the pipes.

Mr Derouand added that two people had agreed to compensate the restaurants, which have withdrawn an earlier complaint.

It is unclear who will get the cash - which was confiscated during the investigation - if it is found to be lawful.

Last year, the European Central Bank said it was discontinuing the 500-euro note over concerns it was being used for illicit activities including money laundering.

FEATURED GAME

SUNDAY 24TH SEPTEMBER 2017
PREMIER LEAGUE
Brighton v Newcastle United 22:00
The top two from last season's Championship face each other for the first time in the Premier League, with the away side on an unexpected roll of three straight wins. This will be a tough game for them though, as Brighton will know what to expect, and we believe will be hungrier for a vital win. Neither side seem to possess the quality to be facing anything more than a season of flirting with the relegation battle, but have two good managers who are tactically astute and experienced at this level. We're caslling this as a narrow win for the home side, but wouldn't be surprised if it ends in a draw instead.

THE GREEN STUFF

NEWLY-VEGAN LEWIS HAMILTON DEMANDS MERCEDES F1 TEAM DEVELOP CAR THAT RUNS ON BROCCOLI

● UK

Formula One driver Lewis Hamilton has told his Mercedes team he will only continue to drive for them if they develop an engine that runs on vegetables, after turning vegan in order to save the planet. Hamilton issued the ultimatum just hours after his victory in Singapore put him 28 points clear at the top of the Formula One championship.

"It's time to do something to save the planet, and that something is for me to go vegan," explained the enthusiastic new vegan who just couldn't wait to tell you about it.

"Of course, some people will say it's my private jet flights and gas-guzzling cars that are destroying the planet, and that might be doing some harm, but really, it's that steak you had last night that is killing us all.

"Cutting out meat is the one thing we can all do to help the environment, though I will now be trying to do more, as is my duty as a vegan.

"I look at my victory in Singapore, in a car that does less than four miles to the gallon, and I can't help but feel I should be promoting my veganism more publicly so that others can join my quest to prevent Earth succumbing to pollution and global warming."

Left: Lewis Hamilton was well known for tucking into a couple of meaty baps before turning vegan

Experts have said that an engine that runs purely on broccoli could have a significant detrimental effect on performance, and therefore Hamilton's chances of winning this year's Formula One championship.

As one former Formula One engineer explained, "I'd even go so far as to say a Mercedes engine powered by broccoli might even be slower than a Honda."
