TWENTY YEAR TOURISM PLAN ANNOUNCED FOR PROVINCE

● PRACHUAP KIRI KHAN

A group comprising the government of the province and tourism organisations has announced the first ever strategic tourism plan for the area, intended to cover the next twenty years.

Udomsuk Nimcean, president of the Tourism Association of Prachuap Khiri Khan, said the group has completed the framework for the province's strategic tourism plan for 1-4 years, 10 years, and 20 years. "The entire province is ready to move to another level. This is the first time the association has drafted a proactive tourism development plan, focusing more on the high-end segment," he said.

Official figures show that the province has 500 registered hotels with 3,000-4,000 rooms, as well as hundreds of non-registered hotels and accommodations, with the vast majority in the Hua Hin area. These figures also show up to 7 million provincial visitors in 2016, with up to 45% staying in Hua Hin. Of the total visitors, 65% were domestic travellers, while the rest were foreigners, mostly from Sweden, Germany, Australia, Russia and China. The average length of stay for tourists is 3-7 days per trip, but free independent tourists stay longer -- 2-3 weeks per trip.

While there is always some doubts about the reliability of the tourism statistics, the overall concept of having a coordinated plan to promote tourism in this area is a welcome one, although so far there is only a general overview, and nothing has been announced as regards the specifics of how and where the promotion will be done, nor how it will be paid for. There also appears to be an official blind spot regarding the numbers of empty retail units that have appeared in the last few months that belie the optimism and figures being touted. What seems blindingly obvious to the majority of expats and foreigners is that far fewer western tourists are coming, due to a combination of a too strong baht, a military government and more attractive alternatives nearby, such as Vietnam.

● SILENCE IN COURT (thanks to Terry)
These are from a book called Disorder in the American Courts, and are things people actually said in court, word for word, taken down and now published by court reporters that had the torment of staying calm while these exchanges were actually taking place.

ATTORNEY: What was the first thing your husband said to you that morning?
WITNESS: He said , 'Where am I, Cathy?'
ATTORNEY: And why did that upset you?
WITNESS: My name is Susan!

ATTORNEY: What gear were you in at the moment of the impact?
WITNESS: Gucci sweats and Reeboks.

ATTORNEY: Are you sexually active?
WITNESS: No , I just lie there.

ATTORNEY: This myasthenia gravis , does it affect your memory at all?
WITNESS: Yes.
ATTORNEY: And in what ways does it affect your memory?
WITNESS: I forget..
ATTORNEY: You forget? Can you give us an example of something you forgot?

ATTORNEY: Do you know if your daughter has ever been involved in voodoo?
WITNESS: We both do.
ATTORNEY: Voodoo?
WITNESS: We do..
ATTORNEY: You do?
WITNESS: Yes , voodoo.
ATTORNEY: Now doctor , isn't it true that when a person dies in his sleep , he doesn't know about it until the next morning?
WITNESS: Did you actually pass the bar exam?

ATTORNEY: The youngest son, the 20-year-old, how old is he?
WITNESS: He's 20, much like your IQ.

ATTORNEY: Were you present when your picture was taken?
WITNESS: Are you shitting me?

ATTORNEY: So the date of conception (of the baby) was August 8th?
WITNESS: Yes.
ATTORNEY: And what were you doing at that time?
WITNESS: Getting laid.

ATTORNEY: She had three children , right?
WITNESS: Yes.
ATTORNEY: How many were boys?
WITNESS: None.
ATTORNEY: Were there any girls?
WITNESS: Your Honor, I think I need a different attorney. Can I get a new attorney?

ATTORNEY: How was your first marriage terminated?
WITNESS: By death..
ATTORNEY: And by whose death was it terminated?
WITNESS: Take a guess.

ATTORNEY: Can you describe the individual?
WITNESS: He was about medium height and had a beard
ATTORNEY: Was this a male or a female?
WITNESS: Unless the Circus was in town I'm going with male.

ATTORNEY: Is your appearance here this morning pursuant to a deposition notice which I sent to your attorney?
WITNESS: No, this is how I dress when I go to work.

ATTORNEY: Doctor , how many of your autopsies have you performed on dead people?
WITNESS: All of them.. The live ones put up too much of a fight.

ATTORNEY: ALL your responses MUST be oral , OK? What school did you go to?
WITNESS: Oral...

ATTORNEY: Do you recall the time that you examined the body?
WITNESS: The autopsy started around 8:30 PM
ATTORNEY: And Mr. Denton was dead at the time?
WITNESS: If not, he was by the time I finished.

ATTORNEY: Are you qualified to give a urine sample?
WITNESS: Are you qualified to ask that question?

And last:
ATTORNEY: Doctor, before you performed the autopsy, did you check for a pulse?
WITNESS: No.
ATTORNEY: Did you check for blood pressure?
WITNESS: No.
ATTORNEY: Did you check for breathing?
WITNESS: No..
ATTORNEY: So, then it is possible that the patient was alive when you began the autopsy?
WITNESS: No.

● OPENING UP

While Pattayas finest continue in their attempts to control the ladies of the night (morning, lunch time, afternoon and all points inbetween), they might want to take note of how similar measures are back firing in Hull.

Yes it goes on here as well, and for many years has been concentrated in the docks area, where business from the fishing industry once boomed. With the decline of fishing times became a bit harder for the ladies, but the area had become well known by then and they managed to carry on by maintaining a high profile. But by 2014 the Council, along with local residents and businesses, had had enough of the high profile, and Hull became the first city to implement orders contained in a 1972 Local Authority Act to crack down, creating a prostitution free zone in the area.

Along with tough new measures against offenders, the Council agreed to work with other agencies to provide support for vulnerable women who had been affected by their work, and presumably even more affected by the crack down on it. In reality the new policy of 'naming and shaming' offenders, compounded by forcing them into less safe areas, put the women at much greater risk.

Now some former sex workers have joined together to form a collective called An Untold Story, and have written a book with the same name. One of the group says that the police used to be quite nice when dealing with them. 'They were quite supportive, asking us if we were OK, if we had any dodgy punters... they're here to punish now, and not to support.'

The surprising thing in a way is that a senior police officer, who has called for local people affected by sex workers to report incidents, is also a woman. Could it be that it has taken the rise of women into the senior ranks of the police for such a tough stance to be implemented? If so there are probably no prizes for guessing why - but as far as the new collective is concerned there is no justification for the 'naming and shaming', which includes the publication of offenders photos and personal information, and little sign of the promised support.

Meanwhile, in response to official guidance, the country's first Sex Working Managed Area was set up in Leeds last year. A Government report recommended a change in the law to de-criminalise soliciting, and the Association of Chief Police Officers issued guidance on the need to ensure the safety and protection of sex workers. Then earlier this year clampdowns on prostitution in the form of raids, arrests and prosecutions spread to other cities across England. Ever wonder whether our powers that be talk to each other?

Last Friday evening though the bridges of Hull did talk. Well - kind of. The river Hull which divides the city has a navigable length of 20 miles, and along that length there are 13 movable bridges, which is apparently a world record. At 20.17 hours on the night in question all 13 bridges were opened at the same time, accompanied by a live performance of music composed to represent the sound of them opening. Thankfully the bridges were only opened for one minute, and not during a rush hour, although some Friday night revellers might not agree.

The idea of the potential chaos was to make people aware of the need for the city to be bound together. You couldn't make it up.

On This Day

Happy Birthday to Jerry Lee Lewis, who turns 82 today - September 29th. Hopefully I'm not the only person surprised to hear that he is still around!

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

This week will teach you that there are certain things that really can't be faked, such as love, respect, and the human arms.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

You'll be bitten by a vampire and become one of the Immortal Sanguinary Children Of The Night just when the whole fad is about to blow over.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

Your future has yet to be determined due to a malevolent online community's massive denial-of-service attack on the relevant zodiacal elements.

ARIES MAR 21 - APR 20

Your romantic life will hit a rough patch this week when your lover, having grown bored of your relationship, trades you to the Saskatchwan Rough Riders.

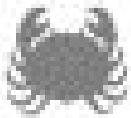
TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

The Parandrus, an antlered, hairy, cloven-hoofed beast the size of an ox and notable for its ill temper and foul breath, was thought to be mythical until people got a load of you.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

Your sudden desire for stability will lead to you retrofitting yourself with StabiliTrak, a rather dated skid-control system that brakes your feet individually to improve control.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22



You'll be taken aback by the news that your life story has been changed from a lightweight romantic comedy to a lengthy and detailed police procedural.

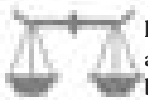
LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

The so-called Tenth Crusade will end almost as soon as it begins next week when armies of religious warriors have no trouble whatsoever conquering and subjugating you.

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

Pluto rising in your sign indicates trouble in your romantic life, which is problematic because, well. for astronomical reasons, Pluto's going to be rising in your sign for the next 87 years.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23



You have evidently failed to learn the lessons of history, as you begin next week by attempting to find the Northwest Passage, unite Britain and Ireland, and get your family to stop exchanging Christmas gifts.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

Only one major thing will happen to you this week. After that, however, it won't really be possible for anything to ever happen to you again.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

You'll begin to suspect that your spouse has taken other sexual partners shortly after they open a conversation with you by saying "I've been thinking about taking other sexual partners."

● A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

THIS WEEK IT IS.... TEMPEST IN A TEAPOT /STORM IN A TEACUP

A small or unimportant event that is over-reacted to, as if it were of considerably more consequence.

Readers from England who get irate that 'a tempest in a teapot' is a mangling of their perfectly good phrase 'a storm in a teacup' and that this US interloper only exists because of the neat alliteration of tempest and teapot need to calm down; the tempest version is the earlier form and it isn't American in origin.

In fact, neither the teacup nor the teapot were the first location of the said storm. As we will see, the phrase is really 'bad weather in a domestic receptacle of your choice'.

The expression probably derives from the writing of Cicero, in De Legibus, circa 52BC. The translation of his "Excitabat fluctus in simpulo" is often given as "He was stirring up billows in a ladle". Other cultures have versions of the phrase in their own languages. The translation of the Netherlands version is 'a storm in a glass of water', and the Hungarian 'a tempest in a potty'.

The first user of the expression in English made no mention of tea-making, although he wasn't far away. The Duke of Ormond's letters to the Earl of Arlington, 1678, include this:

"Our skirmish ... is but a storm in a cream bowl."

Also, before the 'teacup/teapot' versions were well-established, another nobleman came up with a version that didn't involve the tea-table at all. The Gentleman's Magazine, 1830, records:
"Each campaign, compared with those of Europe, has been only, in Lord Thurlow's phrase, a storm in a wash-hand basin."

'Tempest in a teapot' is the version that is used most often in the USA but which nevertheless appears to have a Scottish rather than an American origin. Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine, 1825, included this:
What is the 'tempest raging o'er the realms of ice'? A tempest in a teapot!

Finally, we come to the 'storm in a teacup' version of the phrase that we English might imagine is the 'proper' original version. This appears to be neither original nor English as it is later than the versions above, and the first mention that I can find of it also hails from north of the border. The Scottish novelist Catherine Sinclair wrote a novel of fashionable society life, Modern Accomplishments, or the march of intellect, in 1838:
"As for your father's good-humoured jests being ever taken up as a serious affair, it really is like raising a storm in a teacup."

Grandmother forced to deny that her home is a brothel

A grandmother so sick of men waking her up in the middle of the night, after mistaking her home for a brothel, has been forced to put a note on her door telling them to go away.

Her message reads: 'This is a private address not a massage parlour!!!!!' and was taped to the front door of her house in the Rock Ferry area of Birkenhead.

The woman behind the note says she constantly has calls at her home in the early hours by men looking for sex.

She asked not to be named, but said her grandchildren often come over to stay and that having callers like this was very upsetting.

She believes there is a brothel very close to where she lives, and that the late-night visitors are getting confused.

Merseyside Police say they are aware of the address in question, due to previous reports about the property, and have now issued a fresh appeal to anyone who has information about it to get in touch.

Nazi gun uncovered on new statue for Russian AK-47 inventor Mikhail Kalashnikov

A new monument dedicated to the Russian inventor of the AK-47 assault rifle has been altered after it was found to carry the image of a gun used by Nazis during the Second World War.

Just three days after the statue of Mikhail Kalashnikov was unveiled in Moscow, arms experts discovered that instead of showing an AK-47, a drawing on its base depicted a Sturmgewehr (StG 44) rifle.

Sculptor Salavat Shcherbakov said he did not know how the mistake was made, adding that he did not have "any saboteurs in my team who might have chosen a wrong sketch on purpose".

He told Russian state media: "I didn't do that either. There may have been a mistake, but we still need to find out if it is or it is not."

A spokesperson for the Russian Military and Historical Society said the drawing had to be removed otherwise "a lot would need to be explained".

Mikhail Kalashnikov became a national hero after the AK-47 entered service in 1949 and became a standard weapon for Soviet forces.

It also became one of the world's most widely used assault rifles, with an estimated 100 million made across the globe.

General Kalashnikov, who insisted the rifle was "a weapon of defence... not a weapon for offence", died in December 2013.

During the unveiling of the statue on Tuesday, Russian culture minister Vladimir Medinsky praised the inventor and said the AK-47 was a "cultural brand for Russia".

He had added: "Mikhail Kalashnikov is in a way the craftsman of the 20th century.

"He's the implementation of the best characteristics of a Russian man.

"He was incredibly talented, simple, honest and all these traits helped him design this line of weapons used to protect our motherland."

Man caught with kilo of gold hidden in rectum at Sri Lanka airport

A man has been arrested by Sri Lankan customs authorities after being spotted attempting to smuggle, with "difficulty", close to a kilo of gold hidden in his rectum.

The 45-year-old India-bound passenger was seen behaving "suspiciously" in the departure lounge of Colombo airport, spokesman Sunil Jayaratne said.

"He was called for a thorough screening after customs officers noticed him walking with difficulty and appearing to be in pain," Mr Jayaratne said.

A close examination revealed the man was hiding 904 grams of gold wrapped in black plastic sheets, including seven yellow "biscuits" and six chains, he said.

The haul was worth more than £22,000.

Mr Jayaratne said the contraband was seized and the man fined 100,000 rupees - just over £1,000.

The suspect was described as a courier for an organised smuggling ring.

FEATURED GAME

SATURDAY 30TH SEPTEMBER 2017
PREMIER LEAGUE
Chelsea v Manchester City 23:30
A massive game that the reigning champions will not want to lose, as it would open up a six point gap between the two sides. This early in the season that could prove difficult to overcome. The two charismatic managers may pull a few tactical or selection surprises to catch the other out, but these are pretty evenly matched sides on paper, but City have the edge in terms of their squad, and the subs they can call upon to change a game. However we think this will be a draw, probably with a few goals in it as well, and some high quality football.

JOSE MOURINHO ATTEMPTS TO SHIFT FOCUS TO HIS PACKAGE

● UK

The Manchester United manager, Jose Mourinho, has asked fans to focus on his allegedly large wang, in an attempt to protect star player, Romelu Lukaku.

Jose Mourinho employed the strategy following an outcry from anti-racism groups, after the famously cock-obsessed fans of Man Utd started chanting stereotypical things about a black man's todger.

"I'd compare it to the length and width of a tube of tennis balls," confirmed Mourinho.

"I can see why our fans wish to discuss genitals – especially if you're in possession of a set as frankly magnificent as mine.

"But we shouldn't be chanting it about a black person, as that enforces a stereotype. So I'm happy to take the bullet here.

"I'd like to offer 'the special one, he's got a massive dong' as an opening line. Technically it doesn't rhyme at all, but it's good enough for football. So crack on."

Left: Jose Mourinho tries to take the pressure off his players by indicating what he believes Antonio Conte and Pep Guardiola have to work with Man United fan, Simon Williams, from Surrey, said, "I mean…does he?

"If anything, he seems the kind of person that's compensating for a lack of thwack in the truncheon department.

"I mean I should know, I drive a BMW Z4 for a reason."

Meanwhile some older football fans are wondering what all the fuss is about, having lived through song scandals before, such as 'Georgie Best, Superstar, wears frilly knickers and a Playtex bra' and the iconic leader of the pack as regards genitalia songs, Chuck Berry's 'My Ding A Ling', which managed to throw in not-so-subtle references to paedophilia for good measure. Perhaps the Red Devils fans need to raise their game a little?
