FLOOD OF FISH

HUA HIN BEACHES FREE OF SMOKERS BUT INUNDATED BY FISH

● HUA HIN

This week's torrential rain is not unusual for this time of year, but the appearance of thousands of dead fish on the beaches left locals and tourists bemused as to what had happened. According to local officials, the phenomenon, which affected a ten kilometre stretch of beaches from Klai Kangwon Royal Palace to Kao Takiab, is directly linked to the heavy rains.

The rain caused floodwater, soil and waste to flow out to sea, which is said to have altered the chemical composition of the seawater in a way that blocked photosynthesis and depleted the amount of oxygen in the water. It is the second time this year that fish have died en masse in the province in the wake of deluges running out to sea, they said.

An estimated ten tonnes of dead fish were washed up on the shore, with locals descending on the free haul to collect anything edible, while the local authorities despatched around one hundred staff to collect them, according to Jeeraway Prapmanee, assistant district officer of Muang Hua Hin. Most of the hundreds of thousands of dead specimens were juvenile pony fish, according to reports. However, there were also small shrimps and other aquatic animals such as mussels. Quick actions was needed as the smell was becoming strong and unpleasant, and the majority of the haul were sold off to local animal feed producers.

The obvious question to be asked in the wake of this event is whether the authorities now feel a need to look again at the drainage systems in place that have indirectly led to this, as well as the overall cleanliness and safety of the seawater and beaches that are the initial attraction for most tourists, and the related issues of litter across the area - maybe a plan to 'Keep Hua Hin Tidy'? As AWOL celebrates it's 450th issue and ninth birthday, it would be a nice present!

● CRABS
A lawyer boarded an airplane in New Orleans with a box of frozen crabs and asked a blonde stewardess to take care of them for him..
She took the box and promised to put it in the crew's refrigerator. He advised her that he was holding her personally responsible for them staying frozen, mentioning in a very haughty manner that he was a lawyer, and proceeded to rant at her about what would happen if she let them thaw out.
Needless to say, she was annoyed by his behavior.
Shortly before landing in New York , she used the intercom to announce to the entire cabin, "Would the lawyer who gave me the crabs, in New Orleans , please raise your hand?"
Not one hand went up.... So she took them home and ate them.
Two lessons here:
1. Lawyers aren't as smart as they think they are.

2. Blondes aren't as dumb as most folk think

● FISHING
"Poor old fool," I thought to myself as i watched an old man fish in a puddle outside the pub.
So I invited the old man inside for a drink. As we sipped our whiskeys, I thought I'd humour the old man and asked, "So how many have you caught today?"
The old man replied, "You're the eighth."

● BUSY
My boss phoned me today.
He said, "Is everything okay at the office?"
I said, "Yes, it's all under control. It's been a very busy day, I haven't stopped."
"Can you do me a favour?" he asked.
I said, "Of course, what is it?"
He said, "Hurry up and take your shot, I'm behind you on the 7th hole."

● ASTEROID
The asteroid which is set to miss Earth by 26,000 miles has been christened 'Emil Heskey' by NASA

Wife: As opposed to what?

● STIFF
A man was walking down the street when he noticed his grandpa sitting on the porch, in the rocking chair, with nothing on from the waist down.
"Grandpa, what are you doing?" he exclaimed.
The old man looked off in the distance and did not answer him.
"Grandpa,what are you doing sitting out here with nothing on below the waist?" he asked again.
The old man slyly looked at him and said, "Well, last week I sat out herewith no shirt on, and I got a stiff neck. This was your Grandma's idea!"

● LEADERS OF THE PACK

Ladies - a question for you. What do you think about Theresa Mays' cropped flares? This is not a politically biased question, honestly, I would feel the same way whatever party she represented. Because I personally don't think they are a good look. Maybe if paired with knee high boots.... but the real issue here is that soon after her promotion to Prime Minister she was reported as saying that hubby Philip approves all her choices of clothing. What woman in her right mind would allow her other half to do that?

Meanwhile it has been the question of 'Deal or No Deal' that has gripped the nation over here. Or at least those who can get their heads around what exactly is going on with Brexit these days, which isn't many. What began as a referendum for a Britain with more control over it's own affairs, resulted in a U turn by the prime minister who had promised that referendum, and went on to provide a new un-elected PM. At least last weeks' Deal or No Deal scenario seemed to unite those like minded members of all parties who want to tread carefully.

The next question could well be what will come first - another new British leader, or an election in Thailand.

Whatever happens Yorkshire folk have given up caring and are focusing more on devolution for Gods' Own County. After all there is already a Yorkshire International football team being formed, under the management of Willie Eck-As-Like, and the Yorkshire Pudding has taken the whole country by storm in the shape of Yorkshire Pudding wraps. Which to be honest have to be better than those rubbery Pitta bread things.

Then there is also the fact that Yorkshire has more cricket grounds than the whole of Australia - what more does an independent county need to survive? Admittedly it would help if the government would agree to order a new batch of Hawk jets for the Red Arrows, in time to save the factory down the road from Hull which builds them. But we can't have everything.

Unlike Thomas the Tank Engine, whose dreams are about to come true when two new lady trains join him. That should put some fresh steam in his old boiler.

On This Day

On October 20th 1967 over 10,000 people took to the streets of Oakland, California, in a fifth day of protests against American involvement in the Vietnam war. For those of you who are interested in the story of that war the BBC has been showing an updated version of events. Simply entitled 'The Vietnam War', the documentary is in 10 parts with 3 still to be shown on BBC 4, and is available on i Player. It seems amazing that so much film footage has survived to provide such a graphic account of what happened some 50 years ago.

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

You will be physically overwhelmed by the simple eloquence and timeless beauty of a LeRoy Neiman painting, proving that there are dire consequences to having crappy taste.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

Help out your friends and relatives with a sensitive issue this week. Clearly label all your worldly possessions with the name of the intended recipient by about 8:15 on Friday night.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

You'll suddenly have a realization that the Universe has no meaning save that we make and that all human love is merely sexuality in disguise, but then you'll realise that some jalapeño poppers would be great about now.

ARIES MAR 21 - APR 20

Your plans for an exciting weekend will be spoiled when a busybody scientist decides he just has to ask you why you want all that plutonium.

TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

It will seem as if you've finally received divine evidence of your Christlike nature, but it turns out all women bleed like that.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

You've always been afraid of someone washing your mouth out with soap, but that was before you learned they made a special mouth-soap in the form of a minty paste.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22

Remember: The patient raindrops can eventually wear away even the hardest stone. Don't let them get too close if you value your life.

LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

There are two kinds of people in this world, and you're almost certain that one of the two kinds does not have a penis.

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

The stars foresee great heartbreak, loss, and danger ahead for you, especially if you do not stop asking why they didn't tell you George Clooney was going to get malaria.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

People say there are no second chances in life, but even as they tighten the straps, you'll be listening for the governor's phone call.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

While there's no shame in admitting you don't know everything, there's actually quite a lot of shame in admitting you can't figure out how to eat chips and salsa.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

Remember: It doesn't matter how well the bear dances, because it's impressive the bear can dance at all. Now go shave, lose some weight, and take dancing lessons.

● A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

THIS WEEK IT IS.... WHISTLE DOWN THE WIND

Send away or abandon.

The phrase 'whistle down the wind' is best known as the title of the 1961 film, directed by Bryan Forbes, and most people probably assume that it originated with the film. The plot revolved around the mistaken belief of a group of schoolchildren that a fugitive criminal they had discovered in hiding was in fact Jesus. In a tale heavy in Christian symbolism, the criminal was eventually inadvertently given away by the children and re-arrested.

The phrase is in fact much older and derives from the earlier 'whistle away', which meant 'dismiss or cast off'. This usage dates from at least the 16th century and was used, for example, in Nicholas Harpsfield's A treatise on the pretended divorce between Henry VIII and Catharine of Aragon, circa 1555:

Fourthly, whereas his authors write that St. Dunstane, Archbishop of Canterbury, ex communicated Earle Edwyn for marrying cognatam, that is to say his kinswoman, he hath translated it, for marrying his brother's wife. Fifthly, he belyeth our noble learned countryman John Bacon, saying that he was clapped and whistled out at Rome for maintaining this marriage

The 'down the wind' part of the phrase comes from the sport of falconry. When hawks are released to hunt they are sent upwind and when turned loose for recreation they are sent downwind. Thus, to 'whistle someone/thing down the wind' is to cast it off to its own fate. Shakespeare alluded to this in Othello, 1604:

If I do prove her haggard, Though that her jesses [leather straps] were my dear heartstrings, I'ld whistle her off and let her down the wind, To pray at fortune.

The first appearance of the phrase as we now know it that can be found in print comes from Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine, 1826:

Surely someone who can whistle down the wind this painful weakness of his nature ... is an anomaly, not a man.

German police tried to fine a man £800 for farting at them (twice)

A man has inadvertently done two of the most famous farts in history, after German police attempted to fine him £800 for quacking in their vicinity. Twice. Obviously, we weren't there, so we can't comment on the actual stench, but the police's over-reaction has become so notorious in Germany a politician has ordered an inquiry, says City Lab. (The inquiry isn't into Cristophe S's farts, of course, into why the police saw fit to fine him in the first place).

Possibly the best part is that local media has started referring to the case as the 'Crazy Toot Trial'. The offending farts happened when officers from Berlin's Police Unit 32 asked a group of people for documents in Rigaer Strasse, according to City Labs. The judge threw the case out in 10 minutes September, and a politician in Berlin's senate has now demanded an inquiry into why it happened in the first place.

Dover Sole jumped down man's throat because he tried to give it a 'goodbye kiss'

The fisherman who almost died when a fish he caught leaped into his throat has described why it happened… and it's made the story even weirder than before. Sam Quilliam, 28, said he wanted to give the Dover Sole a 'goodbye kiss' before throwing it back into the sea as it wasn't big enough to take home. But things went very wrong from there.

'I lifted it up and as I went to give it a peck it wriggled and I was shocked as it was coming to my face,' he said appearing on This Morning. 'When I was shocked I sort of opened my mouth and gasped and as it came towards me it's gone straight into my throat.'

As if the ordeal wasn't enough, he had to deal with being called a 'fish swallowing idiot' by keyboard warriors, who were quick to mock him. 'Glad he survived, what an embarrassing way to die that would have been,' one user wrote on Twitter. Another added: 'Next on, a man who swallowed a bear. I don't know why he swallowed a bear? Perhaps to catch the fish?' Explaining what happened, Sam said: 'Before I knew it, its head was lodged in my windpipe. 'Panic set in. To begin with I just stuck my hand as far down my throat as I could get it, just panicking and trying to get a grip of it and pull it out of my mouth. 'Where they're so slippery in one way where the scales are, they are really slick and smooth and slimy. I just couldn't get hold of it.' Sam quickly lost consciousness and went into cardiac arrest as the fish blocked his airways. Luckily he had two friends with him fishing on Bournemouth Pier, one who dialled 999 and the other, Matt Holmes, who had been on a first aid course and started giving him CPR. 'For him to stay calm and level headed and start doing CPR is really the reason I'm alive today,' Sam said. 'Without him doing that call I would certainly be dead.' The takeaway from this (not fish and chips, no) is that that you probably shouldn't try to kiss a live fish.

Man tries to kill spiders with blow torch – ends up burning his house down

There is nothing worse than a spider infestation, except possibly a blazing inferno engulfing your entire home. One man found out the hard way the true danger of a blow torch when he tried to destroy spiders in his home using fire. Instead of simply removing the eight-legged pests, the man burned his house to the ground. He accidentally created a massive blaze that required 23 firefighters to contain it.

The unnamed man, from Tucson, Arizona, US, was suspected of using a propane torch to kill spiders and burn spiderwebs underneath his mobile home. But instead his house caught fire, with the blaze tearing through the inside, leaving it completely gutted. The fire, at around 9.20pm local time on Monday night, forced the man and an elderly woman out of their home. Fire crews were called to the blaze and when they arrived, described seeing the woman being carried out of the burning house by her son and several neighbours.

Tucson Fire Department confirmed the woman suffered minor injuries after being treated by paramedics at the scene. It took firefighters 11 minutes to put out the fire, but by that time, the inferno had ripped through the entire home.

HUA HIN WORLD CUP 2017

This year's competition is booked for the weekend of 9th and 10th December, but full details are still to be announced. The organisers want to raise awareness and get people involved either as players or support as soon as possible so to find out more and be kept in the loop, please email huahinworldcup@gmail.com. Last year's Facebook page (Red Mountain Hua Hin World Cup 2016) is currently the only other place to get information, but a new page will be set up soon for this year's competition.

There is always a charity element to the competiton, with last year Jungle Aid being the beneficiaries, but this has not been announced yet for this year. There are also sponsorship opportunities, so please contact the organisers on the email address above if you are interested in this as well.

Last year's winners were Thailand, following up their win the previous year, with Sweden and Finland the other winners since the tournament started in 2013.

FEATURED GAME

THURSDAY 26TH OCTOBER 2017
EFL CUP - FOURTH ROUND
Tottenham Hotspur v West Ham 02:00

Two teams that have struggled to deal with playing in their home stadiums face each other in a competition that both have a realistic chance of going a long way in. The fact that they are arch rivals who both revel in bloodying the other's nose adds a bit of spice, and it will be interesting to see if both managers play their strongest sides. Obviously this preview is written without knowing the outcome of the weekend's league games, or any injuries or suspensions, but we suspect that the home side will rest some key players, while West Ham will play their strongest side available. This will be a close game, and we think extra time and penalties are likely to be needed to settle it; we are going for West Ham to come out on top.

NEWCASTLE UNITED ON OFFER FOR £3.99 IN SPORTS DIRECT

● UK

Mike Ashley is to sell Newcastle United alongside some cheap Firetrap t-shirts.

The millionaire businessman has understandably had enough of running the football club, as he can't get away with paying the players minimum wage or putting them on zero hours contracts.

"It will form part of our next bumper sale, which will start tomorrow and run until the end of time," confirmed Simon Williams, the manager of Sports Direct's flagship Newcastle branch.

"You can pick it up for £3.99, along with some low quality 'running' shoes and some TapOut gear. You should still have change from a tenner for the lot."

A spokesperson for Newcastle United said, "We are very excited to find out who our new owner will be. We're hoping it happens to be a high-powered business brain and not some chancer who usually visits in order to get a shirt for a job interview for under a fiver.

"Rafa Benitez is particularly pleased as it means he will no longer have to work Sundays at Sports Direct as part of his contract."

Whoever buys Newcastle United, it will be first Sports Direct sale that doesn't come with a giant mug

"We'd normally throw in a mug big enough to fit three normal cups of tea," confirmed Sports Direct spokesperson, Simon Williams.

"But throwing one in with the sale of Newcastle United would almost seem like mockery, bearing in mind they haven't won a cup of any kind since the late Middle Ages.

"We'll throw in something more appropriate – a return ticket to Newcastle coach station, perhaps. Or a small flask of tears."
