FIFTH ANNUAL HUA HIN 'WORLD CUP' NEXT WEEKEND

● HUA HIN

The 5th annual 7 a side Hua Hin World Cup is taking place at True Arena in Hua Hin on the 9th and 10th December 2017 from approximately 9am to 2pm on both days. The teams taking part are England, Sweden, France, Spain, Thailand, Finland, Denmark, Scotland and Mexico. The draw for the tournament is taking place tonight (Friday 1st December) at 8pm at the ACE Bar and Bistro on Soi Kanjanomai, with the balls being drawn by Fabian and Anthony from the two main sponsors, and all are welcome to attend.

The event is a family centered tournament with fair play and respect at the heart of everything. There is still time left for anyone wanting to play - the squads are almost full but the organisers could do with a few extra players to make up the numbers in case of last minute dropouts or injuries.

The main sponsors this year include Ace Bar and Bistro Hua Hin (formerly Red Piano), Red Mountain Hua Hin, Smart Digital Thailand, Surf FM 102 (Hua Hin) and Hua Hin City FC and Panama Bar. Additional sponsors are Prime Steak House, Kat-Tech, and JW Property.

The tournament is a non profit, charity centered event and the organisers hope that the Hua Hin community will make the most of it by attending - entry for spectators is free, and refreshments will be available throughout the tournament. Jungle Aid will be providing medical support during the tournament and are also the nominated charity benefiting from the proceeds.

An after tournament party is being held at ACE on Sunday 10th December, which is a private party for teams, sponsors and organisers until 9pm, but is then open to everybody after that to rub shoulders with the winners and stars of the tournament, and to congratulate everybody involved - we hope our readers will show their support.

● MIND YOUR P'S AND O'S
Ordered 4 Kindles from Amazon as Christmas presents and they sent me a Two Ronnie's DVD.

● ENGAGEMENT
Prince Harry's Dad was so pleased to hear about his engagement today. And so was Prince Charles.

● TITILLATING
One night, after the couple had retired for the night, the woman became aware that her husband was touching her suggestively. He started by running his hand across her shoulders and the small of her back. He ran his hand over her breasts, touching them very lightly.
Then, he proceeded to run his hand gently down her side, sliding his hand over her stomach, and then down the other side to a point below her waist. He continued on, gently feeling her hips, first one side and then the other. His hand ran further down the outside of her thighs.
His gentle probing then started up the inside of her left thigh, stopped and then returned to do the same to her right thigh. By this time the woman was becoming aroused and she squirmed a little to better position herself when the man stopped abruptly and rolled over to his side of the bed.
"Why are you stopping darling?" she whispered.
He whispered back, "I found the remote!"

● IMMATURE
My 18 year old son is so immature. He still believes that the white haired, bearded, jolly old bloke is going to give him loads of free stuff that's going to magically appear and never have to be paid for.

Or 'Jeremy Corbyn' as he likes to be called.

● JOB INTERVIEW
I went to interview for a job that I was frankly very qualified for and wanted badly, and I was really upset when the interviewer told me right then and there that I wouldn't be getting it...
"This is ridiculous," I said as I demanded an explanation, "I have over 15 years experience managing restaurants and waiting tables."
"True," he said, "But basically, sir, you're not what we have in mind for this position at Hooters."

● STUDY
A recent study has found women who carry a little extra weight live longer than men who mention it.

● ROADIE
I have a Polish friend who is a roadie for a band.
I have a Czech one too, I have a Czech one too, I have a Czech one too.

● A GRAND LEGACY

Next Wednesday, December 5th, is Fathers' Day in Thailand, as well as Constitution Day. Most significantly it marks the birthday of his late Majesty King Bhumibol, a very modern and progressive monarch who reigned during a period of great change in the country. This week and next we take a look at just a few of the many changes brought about by King Bhumibol himself, and his special relationship with Hua Hin.

Expats and visitors alike will know that Hua Hin boasts a Royal summer palace, Klai Kangwol, meaning 'Far From Worries.' Klai Kangwol was built for King Bhumibols' uncle King Prajadhipok. Completed in 1929 it provided a Royal retreat easily accessible by the new rail link from Bangkok, with of course a handy little golf course.

It has to be said that there is no shortage of Royal palaces in Thailand. As well as Klai Kangwol King Bhumibol used Bhubing Palace in Chiang Mai, built in 1959 Thaksin Ratchaniwet Palace in Narathiwat Province used from 1973 and Bhuban Palace in Sakon Nakhon Palace from 1974 but none of them were exclusively for leisure. They also provided administrative bases from which the King could access more remote parts of the country, and crucially his people.

Early in his reign King Bhumibol had travelled extensively abroad, establishing links with other countries, and promoting Thailand around the world, but by 1967 political problems both at home and in other South East Asian countries prompted him to focus his attention where he felt he could do more. He was quoted as saying 'If the country is faced with difficulties and people in the remote areas are suffering, we cannot simply stay put in this paradise of a capital'. (Now of course many would disagree with the idea of Bangkok as a paradise, but 50 years ago the city was crisscrossed by khlongs rather than highways, with not a high rise building in sight. Not to mention that where there are sky trains trees once grew.)

True to his word the King didn't stay put, using his palace outposts as bases from which to see for himself exactly how people in rural areas were living, driving himself around on remote tracks and no doubt causing his security staff to lose sleep. It was a time of communist insurgencies, especially in the south, but nothing deterred the King, whose aim was to enable poor people to improve their lives by introducing them to more modern ways. He had a broad approach, what we would now all 'all inclusive', and his Royal projects were aimed at the development of Thailand and improvement of living standards. Among other things they included sustainable farming and cultivation methods, more reliable water supplies, broader education, and accessible health care. Until then there had been no incentive for doctors to work in rural areas - the money needed to pay for medical treatment was in Bangkok, and living conditions in the villages weren't suited to their professional status.

King Bhumibol began to redress the balance, making trips to meet villagers, taking with him medical and other supplies which, along with his wife Queen Sirikit, he personally distributed. Concerns were raised about the risk of the King being in close contact with contagious diseases during those trips. Previous monarchs would never have ventured into such unhealthy and dangerous places, let alone had close contact with the people who lived there, but the King was unfazed. He was now spending more than eight months every year away from Bangkok, and much of that time was at the Hua Hin palace.

Improving opportunities for education was close to his heart. The King believed in life long access to learning, the use of modern teaching methods, and in vocational education. He was very aware that many children in remote areas couldn't access schools, and that the children of soldiers injured in the many clashes going on were even more disadvantaged. So he set up special schools for the poor and those affected by the unrest.

The very first school which King Bhumibol personally contributed to was at Klai Kangwol Palace. It had been founded earlier by his brother King Ananda for children of the palace staff. Thanks to King Bhumibol it has now grown to accommodate some 2000 pupils. But it wasn't quite all hard work in Hua HIn. A world class sailor, the King enjoyed taking part in Hua Hins' annual Royal Regatta up until 1985 and even designed a smaller class of sailing dinghy which was better suited to the stature of Thai people.

Next week - in a right royal spin on sois near Hua HIn, and broadcasts from Klai Kangwol.

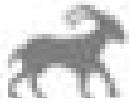
CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19



Someday in the future, humanity will have a healthy attitude toward sexuality, but until then, you have an idea that could make you incredibly rich.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 – FEB 18

You are about to embark on a great journey across an infinite ocean of possibilities, unless of course the more cynical theories about the afterlife are correct.

PISCES FEB 19 – MAR 20

Your confusion over the exact meaning of the term "elope" will become apparent this week when parts of the bodies begin to turn up in the desert.

ARIES MAR 21 - APR 20

Venus, the Herald of Love, passes into your sign this week, but it's so creepy in there that She only takes about six minutes to get out again.

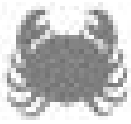
TAURUS APR 21 – MAY 21

Just keep telling yourself it's all going to be all right until you finally get it through your head once and for all that you can't trust anything you say.

GEMINI MAY 22 – JUNE 21

Although it's true you can successfully hide certain things in plain sight without anyone noticing, it turns out not to be true of a whole Girl Scout troop's worth of corpses.

CANCER JUN 22 – JUL 22



You tend to think of yourself as a big, neurotic mess, but don't sell yourself short. You're also a big, psychotic mess on top of it all.

LEO JUL 23 – AUG 22

The stars can't believe they actually have to say this, but just because you find a recipe that makes pancakes for 1500 people doesn't mean you actually have to make that many.

VIRGO AUG 23 – SEP 22

You will die alone, unmourned, and unloved, but because you do it on live television, you'll still manage to be considered a success.

LIBRA SEP 23 – OCT 23

Your problem, if you're honest with yourself, isn't that you love too much. It's that you make love to people's mailboxes too frequently.

SCORPIO OCT 24 – NOV 21

Don't worry: You're more than just a collection of annoying, loosely bundled neuroses. There are some tightly wound and dangerous psychoses in there, too.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 – DEC 21

It's true that your heart is mature beyond your years, which is nice, except in the case of your rapidly aging mistrial and aortic valves.

● A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

THIS WEEK IT IS.... NOT A DICKY-BIRD

Not a sound; not an utterance.

A 'dicky-bird' might be of uncertain spelling - it is variously spelled 'dicky-bird', 'dickey-bird', 'dickybird', 'dickeybird' and, when referring to the retired English cricket umpire, 'Dickie Bird'. The country of origin isn't at all uncertain; 'dicky-birds' are unequivocally English. The term dates from at least the 18th century, when it appeared in the London Evening News, May 1766 as the title of a story they intended shortly to publish:

"The Swan and the Dickey-bird: A fable - shall be inserted in our next"

At that time 'dickey-bird' was a generic nursery term for the small, chirruping birds often found in the English countryside and features in the well-known nursery rhyme Two Little Dicky Birds. The rhyme is usually accompanied by wiggling index-finger gestures, to represent the birds:

Two little dicky birds,
Sitting on a wall;
One named Peter,
One named Paul.

The rhyme was adapted from the earlier 'Two Little Blackbirds', which was first published in London in the first book of nursery rhymes, Mother Goose's Melody, circa 1765:

There were two blackbirds
Sat upon a hill,
The one was nam'd Jack,
The other nam'd Gill.

The 'not a dicky-bird' phrase indirectly derives from the tweeting sounds made by the birds. 'Dicky-birds' became established as a Cockney Rhyming Slang term for 'words', in the mid 20th century. The first record of it in print is in the 1932 'P. P.' Rhyming Slang:

" Word... Dicky bird."

So, 'not a dicky-bird' means 'not a word', that is, silence, especially in the context where a spoken or written word might have been expected - for example, 'Jack said he would write, but I haven't heard a dicky-bird from him for weeks'.

Stunned surgeons find 263 coins in man's stomach

A man who gorged himself on coins and metal objects was rumbled when surgeons checked his stomach and found 7kg of metal. The 35-year-old had kept his bizarre eating habits to himself but surgeons found 263 coins, 100 nails and dozens of razor blades. Maksud Khan was rushed into surgery at Sanjay Gandhi Hospital in Satna, Madhya Pradesh, with severe abdominal pains. Dr Priyank Sharma, who led the surgical team, said: 'The patient was complaining of stomach pain, so we thought of getting an endoscopy done. 'We were shocked to discover coins, nails and nut-bolts in his stomach.' He said it was the first time he had seen anything like it in his career.

Mr Khan's family think he began to eat metal objects after developing depression but said he did not inform anyone of his bizarre eating habits. Doctors said Mr Khan worked as a driver and would often swallow coins given to him by customers. He had been complaining of stomach pains for three months.

Fortunately doctors believe there will be no lasting damage to his internal organs. One of the doctors said: 'The operation was done in the nick of the time as some of the nails lodged had pierced his stomach, caused bleeding and resulting in loss of haemoglobin.' Khan has told the doctors that he will never ingest metal again.

Farmer fined for trying to pick up women in his tractor

A farmer has been fined for trying to pick up women in his tractor. Anthony Breslin told police he was looking for women after they pulled him over in Derry city centre. The 18-year-old from Gortnaskea in Burnfoot, County Donegal, admitted to having no L plates on the vehicle on August 16 District Judge Barney McElholm said: 'This is Don Juan – I was going to say Derry Juan but that would not be correct.' Defence solicitor Seamus Quigley said: 'We all know tractors are all about pulling power but this taking it to extremes.'

Mr Quiqley said Breslin had been sent by his father to look for some cattle, the Belfast Telegraph reported. But after that he had 'taken the head staggers' – a Northern Irish expression meaning to be stupid – and that he had gone to Derry to look for women. Breslin was fined £50

'Car thieves' stripped of their clothes after being caught by vigilantes

Two alleged thieves were forced to sit half-naked and blindfolded on a busy road after being caught reportedly stealing cars. The young men were reprimanded by locals of Culiacan, a city in the Mexican state of Sinaloa, and had warning messages scrawled across their bodies. They were then left on the central reservation of the Boulevard Francisco Labastida Ochoa with their hands tied behind their backs. Messages painted onto their skin warned that that they 'should not steal more vehicles'. The men tried to untie each other, but being blindfolded with their hands bound behind their backs, they failed to succeed. They then pleaded with pedestrians and car drivers to assist, but everyone refused. Although the incident was posted across social media, no one called the police to help them.

FEATURED GAME

SUNDAY 3RD DECEMBER 2017
PREMIER LEAGUE
Arsenal v Manchester United 0:30

Two in form teams who will both be desperate to get three points to maintain both their chances of a title challenge and the pressure on runaway leaders Manchester City. Both only achieved narrow victories last weekend against unfancied opposition, but this only emphasised how important wins are in their chase of City. Defensively United are far superior to their hosts having only conceded six as opposed to the Gunners' sixteen, and they have also scored five more goals, so the stats favour them, but in recent games Arsenal have shown more grit, so this is a very hard game to call. With two exceptional goalkeepers on show, we can't see many goals, but we think the away side might just sneak it late on.

DEAD CAT BOUNCE

ERWIN SCHRÖDINGER NAMED EVERTON MANAGER

● UK

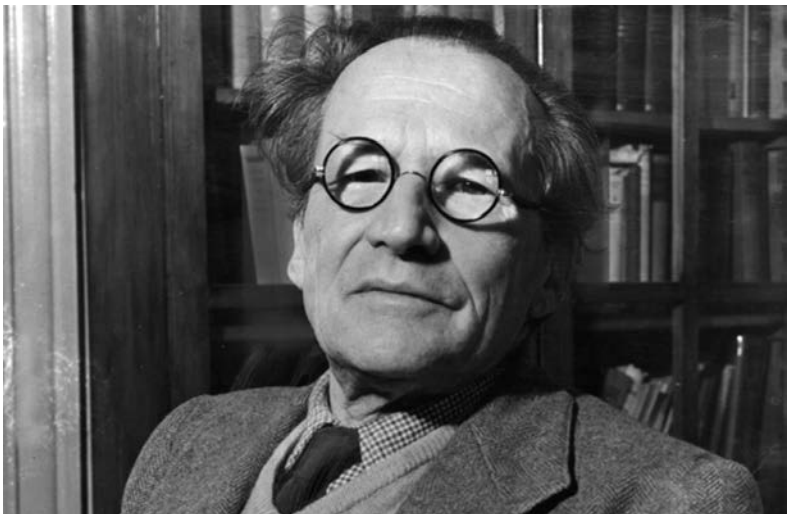
Famous quantum physicist Erwin Schrödinger has been named the new manager of Everton football club, their third in less than a year.

The surprise choice explained his strategy in a hastily convened press conference. "The very act of observing something changes the thing observed," he explained. "Until observed, the thing exists simultaneously in all possible states."

"I would therefore recommend Everton fans simply don't check the score after games, especially the next few against Huddersfield, Liverpool and Newcastle. In this way, the possibility of Everton having won, or at least not embarrassed themselves, continues to exist." It's thought that many Everton fans have already adopted this strategy.



Above: New Everton manager, Erwin Schrödinger, who may or may not simultaneously exist as Sam Allardyce

However, some sceptics insist that Everton will still have lost, whether individual fans check the result or not, and that in any case the unbearable smugness of Liverpool fans in particular will be impossible to avoid.

Schrödinger then tried another tack, saying that every possible result exists simultaneously somewhere in the multiverse, and there is a universe somewhere in which Everton have made a confident start to the season and now look unstoppable favourites to win the League. "It's just a shame this isn't the universe they show on Match of the Day."
