RIDICULOUS

BRITISH MEDIA MAKES A MOUNTAIN OUT OF A MOLEHILL

● HUA HIN

The British tabloids have once again picked on Hua Hin in printing quite possibly the most ridiculous 'news' story that AWOL has had the displeasure of having to read. The Daily Mirror, the Daily Mail and the Daily Star must have been really struggling for news, but all three printed dramatic headlines about an incident that wouldn't even have been covered by this local newspaper had it not been for the furore that has been created by their coverage.

Some shaky phone video footage taken apparently shortly after midnight on New Year's Eve/Day revealed what could at the very worst be described as a minor altercation between two or possibly three intoxicated men, and lasted at most about two minutes, is the basis for sensational descriptions such as 'mass brawl' and fingers being pointed at Brits abroad.

This type of reporting is reminiscent of the incident at Songkran 2016, where the same papers didn't allow the facts to get in the way of a good story, although in that case the Thais were on the receiving end and were unfairly represented in what was an admittedly much nastier situation that deserved being reported accurately.

We have reported on Hua Hin events since October 2008, and we have seen far worse drunken fights that we never deemed worthy of reporting on, so for national UK newspapers to report this one is a sad state of affairs indeed, and has already appeared to have consequences, with early closing being imposed randomly in the centre of town, and the likely longer term impact on people wishing to come to Hua Hin. For anyone who loves Hua Hin, we should make sure that this nonsense is both exposed for what it is, and corrected wherever we find it, and aptly described as Fake News - Hua Hin is a safe and great place to come and we should shout it loud and proud!

AWOL IS HIRING!

We are the only weekly newspaper in this area and we are looking for two motivated and engaging people to work in the key areas of sales and distribution.

REQUIREMENTS:

- Thai Nationals
- Good understanding of spoken and written English
- Well presented
- Previous experience in a sales environment useful but not a necessity
- Ability to work to deadlines
- Own transport (not essential but preferred)

The positions will involve selling advertising space in the newspaper and online as the major task, as well as maintaining relations with existing customers and dealing with renewals of ads, and coordinating and monitoring the efficient distribution of the paper every week.

CONDITIONS:

The positions are full time jobs but the hours and days worked are very flexible; this is not a normal 9 to 5 Monday to Friday office job as many existing and potential customers work irregular hours.

The initial salary offered to the successful candidates will vary depending on previous experience and abilities, but will be in the range of 10000 to 15000 baht a month, plus any extra commission earned through performance. There will be sales targets which if achieved will generate this extra income. We anticipate this could result in an income averaging at least 20000 baht a month, with exceptional candidates capable of earning much more.

APPLICATION:

Please send an email to info@awolonline.net with the subject line "Employment Application" and include your reasons for wanting to work for AWOL, your previous work history, your personal details including phone number and address, and any other information you believe is relevant to your application.

● ADAM

God Said, "Adam, I want you to do something for Me."
Adam said, "Gladly, Lord, what do You want me to do?"
God said, "Go down into that valley."
Adam said, "What's a valley?"
God explained it to him. Then God said,
"Cross the river."
Adam said, "what's a river ??
God explained that to him, and then said,
"Go over to the Hill....."
Adam said, "What is a hill?"
So, God explained to Adam what a hill was.
He told Adam, "On The other side of the hill you will find a cave."
Adam said, 'What's a cave?'
After God explained, He said, "In the cave you will find a woman." Adam said, "What's a woman?'
So God explained that to him, too.
Then, God said, 'I want you to reproduce."
Adam said, "How do I do that?"
God first said (under His breath), "Geez....." and then, just like everything else, God explained that to Adam, as well.
So, Adam goes down into the valley, across the river, and over the hill, into the cave, and finds the woman.
Then, in about five minutes, he was back. God, His patience wearing thin, said Angrily, "What is it now?"
And Adam said...."What's a Headache?"

● HAPPY NEW YEAR!

My resolutions are:
1) Stop writing lists.
B) Be more consistent.
7) Learn to count.

● BAD LUCK AND TROUBLE

Have you ever considered that if blues singers stayed in bed until the afternoon, they wouldn't be so depressed.

● MORE BAD LUCK AND TROUBLE

A vegan, a bitcoin trader and someone who didn't vote in the 2016 Brexit referendum all walk into a bar.
Who tells you about it first?

● WORLD LEADER

It is time to elect a world leader and your vote counts. Here's the scoop on the three leading candidates.
Candidate A: associates with ward heelers and consults with astrologists. He's had two mistresses. He chain smokes and drinks 8 to 10 martinis a day.
Candidate B: Kicked out of office twice, sleeps until noon, used opium in college and drinks a quart of brandy every evening.
Candidate C: A decorated war hero. He's a vegetarian, doesn't smoke, drinks the odd beer and hasn't had any illicit affairs.
Which of these candidates is your choice?
Candidate A is Franklin D. Roosevelt
Candidate B is Winston Churchill
Candidate C is Adolf Hitler

● GIVING IT ALL AWAY

Now that the decorations are packed away again there has been time to relax a bit and reflect on 2017. There were certainly some memorable events. Not least the inauguration of a new US President, closely followed by a nail biting snap election in the UK, both of which proved that Governments and voters should never take anything for granted.

It was also a year for terror attacks on both sides of the Atlantic, and that terrible high rise fire in London. In fact it's hard to think of anything much that was good about 2017. Even a Royal engagement lost much of its' public appeal when the date of the wedding was set to coincide with the FA cup final this May. But two things 2017 should also be remembered for are Fake News and Crowdfunding. (On second thoughts make that three things - the rise of the Tweet.)

Crowdfunding, like Fake News and Tweeting, has grown massively along with hand held technology, that thing which also causes people to bump into lamp posts and walk blindly out into roads. But Crowdfunding is in a league of its' own. Somehow it has the 'Pudsey' effect - that annual Children In Need appeal which grows year on year now that people can donate simply by making a few clicks on their phone, and of course is encouraged by the kind of images which tug on the heart strings, with children and animals at the top of the list.

It wasn't always so. One of the earliest examples of an appeal for public donations for a specific project was during the construction of the Statue of Liberty. Then in 1997 the rock band Marillion made the first successful online appeal in Britain, to fund their reunion tour. By 2001 the first dedicated crowdfunding site had been founded, but the concept still concentrated largely on funding for new businesses, often with 'rewards' offered to investors.

Then last summer a crowdfunding appeal for baby Charlie Gard hit the deadlines, raising 1.3 million pounds in four months. Charlie was in Londons' Great Ormond Street hospital suffering from a rare incurable condition. His parents wanted him to be allowed to travel to the States for a revolutionary new treatment, and went through several court appeals in an attempt to secure his release from hospital, and permission from doctors for him to travel. Sadly for Charlie of course all the court appeals failed, and he soon died, leaving a decision still to be made over how the 1.3 million should now be used.

However distressing that must have been for those involved the Charlie Gard case highlights just how generous people can be, and unlike earlier fund raising appeals, such as the one for victims of the 2004 Boxing Day tsunami, donors can be pretty sure that most, if not all, of their money ends up where it is most needed. But on the downside it becomes harder for many small charities to raise funds without that benefit of a moving news worthy image to offer.

One woman in Hull though has just been awarded the British Empire Medal for raising over 119,000 pounds for Age UK, by spending the last 25 years dressed as a bee in city centre shopping precincts. Her dedication has earned 95 year old Jean Bishop the title 'Bee Lady', as well as a trip to the Palace this year, and the love and respect of all who meet her. The huge difference in her achievement when compared to some crowdfunding results doesn't really matter. Our Bee Lady did it the hard way, hit on the winning formula of the bee outfit, and enjoyed every minute.

On This Day

Now for the really important stuff. On January 5th 1840 the number of licensed public houses in England alone stood at 95,820. There is no record of what happened to the person who counted them, but by 2016 the total number of hostelries in England and Wales combined had fallen to around 53,000. To quote the 2017 Poet Laureate - the times they are a changin'.

● A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

THIS WEEK IT IS.... JET-BLACK

Absolutely black.

'Jet' is a well used word; we have jet engines, jet boats, jet washes and so on. Pretty well all of the common uses of 'jet' derive from the 'ejected stream of material' meaning - apart, that is, from 'jet-black'.

Jet is a hard, semi-precious stone formed by the fossilisation of wood. It may be either dark brown, with or without lighter brassy streaks or - and as far as we are concerned this is the significant characteristic - a deep glossy black. 'Jet' has been with us as a word since the formation of English and, as with many old words, it appears in early records with a myriad of spellings - 'giette', 'gete', 'jit' and so on. The earliest known reference to the stone (as 'get') is in John Lydgate's epic poem about ancient Troy, Troyyes Book, written in Middle English around 1425:

Jet blackAnd for to telle of this eban tre,
Liche in bokys sothly as I fynde,
It cometh out of Ethiope and Ynde,
Blak as is get.
[I have found truly in books what I say about the wood of the ebony tree. It comes out of Ethiopia and India, black as jet.]

Jet was mined and fashioned into jewellery in Britain and elsewhere from at least Roman times. It takes a high polish but is difficult to work and wasn't widely used.

It was the death of Prince Albert in 1861 that changed the status of jet ornaments as items of esteem. Queen Victoria was devastated by her husband's early death and went into a prolonged period of seclusion, taking up the persona of 'The Widow of Windsor', wearing only black clothes and, tellingly for the public's perception of jet, black jewellery. She decreed that jet was the only jewellery to be worn at court for a year after Albert's death. A fashion soon arose for jet necklaces and brooches, especially for widows. Fortunately, the UK has a good supply of the stone, which is found in significant quantities at the Yorkshire coastal town of Whitby.

The fashion has now again faded in the UK at least, although it continues in other parts of Europe, and widows there no longer normally wear black clothes and jewels.

Nevertheless, 'jet-black' is still the epitome of blackness. You can have 'as black as coal', 'as black as pitch' or even 'as black as Newgate's knocker", but for the real blackest blackness we resort to 'as black as jet'.

People start campaign to change street name from Bell End

A group of residents have launched a petition because they don't like the name of the street on which they live. People in Bell End, which leads on to Mincing Lane, want Sandwell Council to change the name to Bell Road because they feel they have 'become a laughing stock'.

So far 11 people have signed a petition on change.org that states: 'As you may be aware, the term Bell End can be seen and used as a rude and/or a offensive word. As well as this, it can affect people and children including children being bullied and teased at school and generally now become a laughing stock as seen very recently on Facebook and other social media sites and it's time for a change. We want the local Sandwell Council to acknowledge our name change request to a new road name and at the very least to a similar name.'

Stephen Young, 72, of Minge Lane in Worcester, which was also voted one of the rudest-sounding street names, believed the reaction of Bell End residents to be over the top. He said: 'There has been no plan to change the name of our road. 'We have had a problem with people nicking the sign but nobody is that fussed about the name. There are no plans to start a petition, people are happy with the name of the road.'

Speaking about the plans of residents from Bell End, Mr Young said: 'It's a bit silly really. It is a bit over the top.' Some residents said that people have taken selfies next to the street sign. Rowley Regis councillor Barbara Price said she could understand residents' concerns and has vowed to meet with council bosses to discuss Bell End. 'If some people find the name offensive and children are being teased about where they live then there is obviously an issue. I will be consulting with residents and speaking to the cabinet member in question to see if anything can be done.'

However, councillor Chris Tranter, who is a Bell End resident said: 'I was born here and lived here for 40 years and it doesn't bother me. You get the odd giggle on the phone, it is quite amusing really.'

Three years ago the road was placed fourth on a top 15 list for rude-sounding names, behind Minge Lane in Upton-upon-Severn, Slag Lane in Lancashire, and Fanny Hands Lane in Lincolnshire. At the same time research found that a semi-detached house in Bell End was worth £126,409…some £60,000 cheaper than a similar semi-detached house in nearby Uplands Avenue.

Couple finally receive letter sent to their home 65 years ago

A letter sent to thank a couple for a pair of baby booties has finally arrived… more than 60 years after it was posted, John and Victoria Berryman from Slaithwaite, West Yorkshire, were left full of questions when the letter – posted from Germany in 1953 – landed in their postbox this week.

The letter, which finally arrived on Saturday, talks about a newborn baby called Alastair, and sends thanks for his gifts. Remarkably, if Alastair is still alive he would turn 65 this year – but the Berrymans have no idea who he is. John, 74, said: 'I know our postman Jonathan very well. We have a postbox at the top of the lane but he hand-delivered it to our door. 'He said "this has turned up at the sorting office".

'It was already opened and the stamp was missing. He suggested it might have been because the stamp was rare and therefore valuable.' The envelope was addressed to the Tyas Lane home's former owners, Peter and Hannelore Hirst, who lived there during and after World War Two. The Hirst family had moved to Kent years before the Berryman family bought the property, but in another twist of fate the couple had actually stayed in the Berryman's holiday cottage next door in 2010 just so they could visit their former home. Meaning the current homeowners had their contact details. John said: 'We thought "the Hirsts – we have met them. Where has this letter been for 65 years?!" We are intrigued. 'I have never heard of a letter being delivered that late.' Signed from a couple, including a Richard whose surname was illegible, the letter mainly discussed their newborn son, Alastair.

The writer thanked the Hirsts for their gift, including a pair of booties, and their last visit. They also said they were planning on sailing home from Hamburg in Germany to Hull, East Yorkshire, and hoped the baby wouldn't get seasick. The letter was typewritten in English, with a few German words included such as 'tante' meaning 'aunt', and had a handwritten signature. A photo of baby Alastair is believed to be missing from the letter. John, who has had many jobs including as a sailor and a teacher but is now retired, believes Richard was a British solider who married a German woman. Victoria, 72, has since hunted out the Hirst family's booking form from their visit to the holiday cottage and has emailed a scan of the letter to their daughter, Hattie. The letter was dated August 2, 1953, and it was delivered on December 30, 2017. Incredible.

FEATURED GAME

SATURDAY 6TH JANUARY 2018
FA CUP - THIRD ROUND
Liverpool v Everton 02:55
Always a classic encounter, and even more so being the FA Cup; however, we don't expect either manager to be playing their full strength side as both teams have very big matches coming up (Everton away to Spurs, Liverpool home to Manchester City), although realistically this competition is a better chance of a trophy for both. Everton have improved considerably in recent weeks, while Liverpool are still showing some inconsistency - we expect Everton to be set up very defensively and for Liverpool to dominate possession and be peppering the goal, while still under threat from fast counter attacks. This should be a home win, but we would not be surprised to see any of the three possible results.

STILL A CHANCE!

'UNPATRIOTIC SABOTEURS TALKING DOWN ENGLAND'S ASHES CHANCES' CLAIMS FAN

● ENGLAND

England's Ashes victory could be jeopardised if newspapers continue to report the score, it has been claimed.

Speaking on the news, a self-satisfied man or woman with a plummy voice and well-paid newspaper column pointed the finger at 'saboteurs' who would 'rejoice if England do not get the 5-0 victory we deserve'.

The person, who appeared to be at no great risk of any major downturn in their personal circumstances either way, urged 'unpatriotic moaners' to recognise that England has the best cricket side in the world.

"We have a great team out there literally batting for England," he said.

"If everybody would just get behind them properly, I'm confident that they will be coming home victorious, with the very best result for the country. Look at the magnificent result we achieved in the fourth Test!"

Above: The 'magnificent' group of players making up the England Ashes squad

"You read people writing things like 'six hundred and sixty-two declared' and 'Broad: 35-3-142-0', and it's just giving comfort to the other side".

When it was pointed out that England were being repeatedly carted around the park, they replied: "There you go again! I'm not interested in that; I'm interested in the best result for England".

It later emerged that the person stood to gain from a substantial wager on an Australian victory, and had previously advised their private investment clients not to renew their BT Sport subscriptions.
